ALL WASHED UP AT STINSON BEACH

This 35 foot fishing boat, the Ella, out of San Francisco's Fishermen's Wharf, ran aground in heavy surf at Stinson Beach early yesterday morning. Owner Manuel Santos had been fishing offshore for albacore with another boat, the David C, and anchored overnight. Early yesterday his anchor line broke, his engine refused to start, and he began to drift into the beach. The David C, attempting to tow him to safety, broke a drive shaft and had to be rescued by a coast Guard cutter, the Point Chico which towed her to Fishermen's Wharf. The Ella owner salvaged some equipment, but says he probably will abandon the boat, estimating his loss at $4,500.

Market Loses $4,000 To Speedy Safe Thief

Few Clues In Police Puzzler

San Rafael police today were trying to solve the strange theft of $4,000 in checks and cash from Sil's Supermarket at 175 Belvedere, a theft that must have occurred within 15 minutes of closing the store for the night.

Complicating the problem for police was the fact that there was no sign of forced entry nor any forcing of the store's safe.

According to owner Silvio Bianchini, the market shut at 9 p.m. Thursday and "everybody was out by 9:15." About 15 minutes later, Bianchini said, he was phoned at his home at 125 Canal Street by a patrolman, reporting that the market's front door was ajar.

On returning there, Bianchini tried the safe door and it swung open freely. Asst. Mgr. Norton Jackson of 55 Fairfax Street and helper Alan W. Heisler of 198 Belvedere Street returned to the store and confirmed that both the safe and front door had been properly secured at closing time.

Police Chief Charles J. Chiesa said that two men were seen loitering near the store around closing time and that someone may have been hidden inside. He said police will also interview four or five former employees who knew the combination.

For Bianchini, it was the second such loss in four months. Last May, three armed robbers beat up Jackson and made off with $3,600.

Bay Group Approves Spoil Drop

Marin's application to remove a condition prohibiting disposition of spoils from the proposed Corte Madera Flood Control Project was approved by the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission yesterday.

Voting 17 to four in favor, the commission approved dredged soil being dumped on the Muzzi property south of Corte Madera Creek and east of Highway 101.

The county had applied earlier this month to have the condition removed. County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney and Public Works Director Donald R. Frost, in the presentation to the commission, pointed out that the commission has no control over fill of the property which they said can be DOUBLE SESSIONS SOLUTION FOUND?

Renting Five Portable Classrooms May End Mill Valley's Park School Problem

By PAUL PETERZELL

Double sessions at Mill Valley's Park School will end within eight weeks, Supt. G. R. McConnell said yesterday, under a plan drawn by his staff to rent five portable classrooms.

McConnell will poll district trustees over the weekend, he explained, and order the classrooms Monday if they approve the plan. Portable classrooms rent for $2,200 a year, he said. They could be delivered about a month after being ordered, he explained, and equipped and connected to utilities in another month.

"We see no other alternative worth considering," McConnell said.

LOCATION SET

Two of the portables would be located at the Edna Maguire School site, and would house the two sixth grade classes now at Park School. The other three would be on the Park School site.

Temporary double sessions for the three first grade and three second grade classes at Park School began with the opening of school on Monday. Double sessions were authorized by the trustees last Saturday when it learned that five classrooms in the 1908-wing of the school annex would be unsafe in an earthquake.

Demolition of the unsafe portion of the annex would cost $5,600, school officials were told yesterday by Harold M. Engle Sr., of Engle and Engle, San Rafael structural engineers. Repair of the existing wall between the unsafe and approved wings would cost $6,705, it was estimated. And rental of two portable toilets for four months, pending some permanent provision for new toilets, would cost about $1,450, including hookup to water and sewer pipes.

The estimates were prepared by Zoellner Construction Co. of Ross, Engle said. Carl Zoellner, father of Richard Zoellner, head of the firm, designed the approved wings of the annex, Engle noted.

Total cost of demolition, plus rental of the toilets, was estimated at $13,755.

REPAIR COSTS

Structural rehabilitation of the unsafe wings of the annex would cost $65,000, plus the cost of modernizing the heating, plumbing and electrical systems, Engle estimated. Total cost of rehabilitation could run up to

Offices, Warehouse Damaged By Flooding

One day after the County Schools office held an open house in its new facilities at 201 Tamal Vista Avenue, Corte Madera, a burst water pipe this morning flooded the building the schools office shares with Montgomery Ward Co. and caused damage estimated at tens of thousands of dollars.

The leak was apparently caused by a failing strap around the main sprinkler pipe in the schools office section of the property. The metal strap was placed around the pipe earlier this week when a new sprinkler alarm system was installed. The strap was to seal an outlet used by the old system.

Lee Roden, warehouse manager of the department store, discovered water standing at shoe-top level in his warehouse when he arrived there at 8:15 a.m. He called the Corte Madera Fire Department, which notified the Corte Madera police, and a representative of the Marin Municipal Water District arrived within a few minutes to shut off the water in the building.

Meanwhile Roden traced the water to the walls dividing the warehouse from the schools office. It was found gushing forth from the sprinkler pipe.

Damage in the Ward's warehouse may run into the tens of thousands, Roden said. It was full of Christmas stock and other items standing on the floor. William G. Vanasen, director of business services for the schools office, declined to estimate the

Football Pep Parade Held In San Rafael

Downtown San Rafael echoed this morning to the music of the San Rafael High School band riding down Fourth Street on a flatbed truck.

Riding with the band were the school's cheerleaders in white football jerseys sporting the familiar red letters and numerals.

They were accompanied by nearly 100 students and parents, staging their annual pep rally to whip up support for the city's home team.

The truck stopped in each block for music and football cheers. Then students and the Sideliners — parent-members of the school's adult cheering section — distributed half-priced season tickets for five home football games and three preseason basketball games. The tickets went to merchants for sale to the public.

Pittsburg City Hall Picketed

PITTSBURG (AP)—City public works employees, striking for more pay, are picketing municipal offices in Pittsburg.

The city's 122 employees generally observed the picket lines when the protesting employees turned out yesterday. Only department heads reported for work.

The public works employees want a 5 per cent pay increase. The city council has approved pay raises ranging from 2.5 to 10 per cent, but the union says the plan excepts most of the union members from the pay boost.

AW, YOU'RE MAKIN' ME BLUSH

Duffy, a blue-blooded English Bulldog, seems a bit abashed because Patrick Tabor, 7, of Los Altos Hills, is making fun of his squashed-in face — but that's the way a self-respecting bulldog's supposed to look. Duffy and friend are in Novato today for the annual specialty show of the Bulldog Club of Northern California. Tomorrow, they'll be joined by 1,100 dogs of other breeds, and 2,000 to 3,000 owners and spectators for the annual Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club show, beginning at 9 a.m. in Rancho Rafael, Ignacio. Dirksen Calm On Rights Role

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, confident that the 1966 civil rights bill will die in the Senate Monday, does not expect his party's role in its death to be an election handicap.

"It would be strange if we Republicans didn't gain, and gain substantially" in the November elections, he said yesterday.

And as for the opposition he is leading against the civil rights bill, Dirksen said: "I care about maintaining the right kind of party, going in the right drection.

"Somebody had to kill Cock Robin and it just might as well be me."

A second cloture vote to halt the opposition filibuster on the bill will be taken Monday. The first vote on Wednesday taken by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield failed by 10 votes of the necessary two-thirds majority to invoke cloture.

Although Mansfield predicted he will pick up from two to four votes, he has all but conceded defeat for his planned second try on Monday.

The bill would place a partial ban on discrimination in the sale and rental of housing and would give the attorney general new powers to start civil rights suits that could carry criminal penalties for persons who cross state lines to incite riots.

Double Life Ended By Cancer

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — John (Fritz) Johnson, whose life turned into a nightmare when it was discovered he was a "dead-ringer" for another man who had vanished eight years earlier, died yesterday of cancer. He was 39.

Johnson

To the end Johnson denied any knowledge of a double life as Larry Bader, an Akron kitchenware salesman who disappeared on a fishing trip on Lake Erie in 1957. Bader left a pregnant wife and three children in Akron. But Johnson accepted — after fingerprint identification in 1965—the conclusion that he was the former Ohioan.

Three days after Bader disappeared, he turned up in Omaha and acquired a job as a bartender using the name of John Fritz Johnson.

Fritz soon took a job as an announcer for an Omaha radio station. Then he became sports director for one of Omaha's three television stations and one of the city's most flamboyant and well-liked personalities.

To "strengthen his back" he took up archery, a sport which Bader also pursued.

He hired an attorney who advised him that he and his Omaha wife, Nancy, a pretty model, should live apart. Later through mutual agreement Johnson and Nancy received an annulment. The couple had two children, one adopted by Fritz from Nancy's previous marriage.

Scandal Figure Weds Israeli

LONDON (UPI)—Mandy Rice-Davies, the angel-eyed blonde in Britain's 1963 Profumo scandal, married an Israeli airline steward today.

Mandy, 21, and her new husband, Rafael Shaul, 26, slipped into a registry office through an underground passageway and left by the same route.

The usually vivacious blonde refused to smile for photographers and kept her head down when she climbed into a car with Shaul, whose family owns a chain of discotheques in Israel.

Mandy, who wore a green and oatmeal-colored outfit with mauve stockings, met Shaul while she was performing in a Tel Aviv night club earlier this year.

Germans To Try Sub Salvage

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—A German salvage ship stood by to begin recovery operations today for the U-boat Hai, which sank in the North Sea Wednesday night with the apparent loss of 19 lives in West Germany's first postwar submarine disaster.

Schleswig Prosecutor General Ernst Nehm announced he would open an inquiry into the tragedy to determine if criminal negligence was involved. Parliament's Defense Committee also is preparing an investigation.

Only one member of the 20-man crew—Petty Officer Peter Silbernagel, 23, is known to have survived. West German naval officials say they have given up hope of finding any of the other crewmen alive.

Pope Plans Prayer Month

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican announced today Pope Paul VI will issue an encyclical letter Monday dedicating October as worldwide month of prayer to end the war in Viet Nam.

A statement from the Vatican described the coming encyclical — the fourth of Pope Paul's reign— as a "pontifical document of notable importance . . . an encyclical letter in which the Holy Father will invite the faithful of all the world to special prayers in the coming month of October."

Vatican sources explained the month would be marked for intensified prayers by the world's half-billion Roman Catholics for peace in Viet Nam.

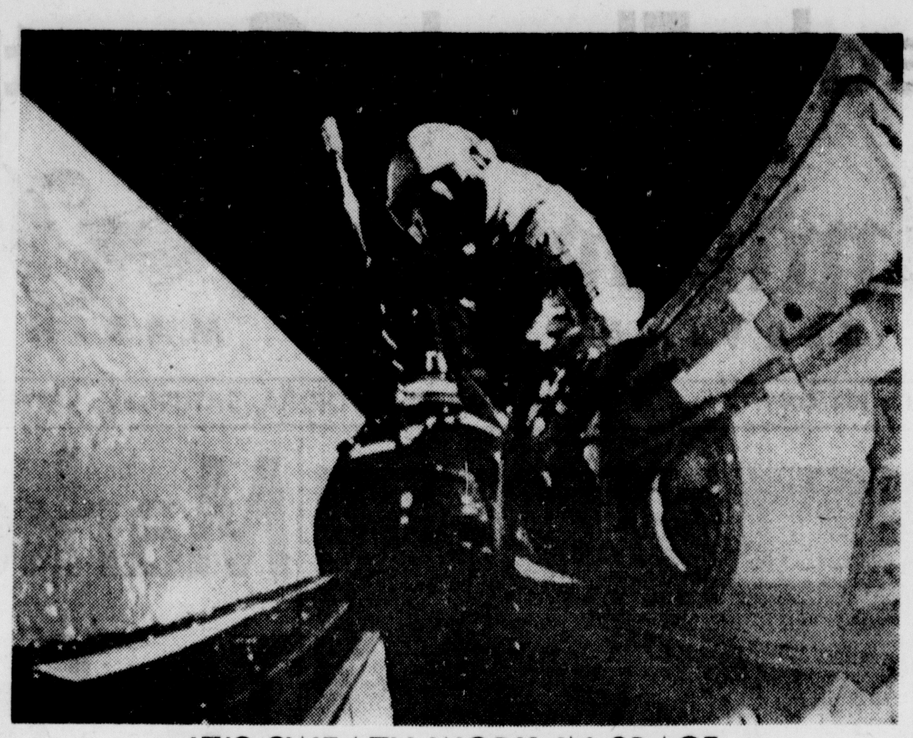
The announcement of the encyclical, the most solemn form of papal document sent to all the church's bishops, came just a day after Vatican sources had said the Pope was planning a "spectacular gesture for peace."

Korean Mutiny

TOKYO (AP) — Four crew members of a North Korean fishing boat mutinied in the Yellow Sea, killed seven military guards on their craft and sailed into Japan seeking political asylum, the Japanese Maritime Safety Agency reported today. It said nine other North Koreans who did not ask asylum were locked in a cabin.

Nuclear Sub Launch

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP) — The Pargo, the Navy's 24th nuclear attack submarine, was launched today. The 292-foot submarine, of the Sturgeon class, bears the initials LBJ on her keel plate. President Lyndon B. Johnson chalked his initials on the keel June 3, 1964, and shipyard workers later welded the initials.



IT'S SWEATY WORK IN SPACE

Astronaut Richard Gordon, cutting short his space walk because exertion overtaxed his space suit environment and fogged his helmet, returns to the open hatch of Gemini 11's capsule after paying an historic visit to the Agena target whose antenna shows just to the left of the astronaut's head. The NASA photo was made by a 16 millimeter color camera attached to the Gemini, on Tuesday, and released by the space agency today.

China Using Army Against Red Guards

HONG KONG (AP)—Peking was reported today to have moved regular troops into Canton streets to curb violence by local teen-age Red Guards in that southern China metropolis.

Arrivals from Canton said the army regulars began patrolling the streets Wednesday night or early Thursday, after a group of Peking Red Guards left Canton Wednesday.

They said the Peking and Canton Red Guards had clashed several times over the Cantons' insistence upon using physical violence against persons accused of bourgeois habits and customs.

"The Peking guards" said one border crosser, "were much better disciplined and more reasonable. They tried to talk the Canton guards out of using so much physical force and violence. But they failed. There was a lot of shoving around and quite a few fist fights between the opposing groups.

"Then the Peking group moved out and the regular army soldiers began patrolling the streets."

Fire Setting Suspect Pleads Guilty

Army S/Sgt. Robert B. Reed, 25, pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to three misdemeanor counts of an amended complaint charging him with causing fires in Chileno Valley.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. scheduled judgment for 3 p.m. Oct. 13.

Sergeant Reed, based at Two Rock Ranch Station in Sonoma County, originally was charged with three felony counts of starting the fires. The new complaint alleges he placed a flaming substance in a place which might cause each fire.

The counts are for the June 13 grass fire on the Dolcini Ranch, a June 20 fire on the Hey Ranch, and a July 20 fire on the Bragga Ranch. Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry Herman said reason for the lesser complaint was that the case hinged upon a confession obtained from the sergeant by the Army, and a possibility developed that the confession might not be admissible in trial under recent U. S. Supreme Court decisions.

He also noted that Sergeant Reed has a good record during his 10 years in the Army, including two years served in Viet Nam, and a felony conviction would result in dishonorable discharge. The misdemeanor conviction will not, he said.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said the sergeant currently is obtaining military psychiatric aid.

Skunk Killed by Dog Found To Be Rabid

A skunk killed by a Weimaraner in Sleepy Hollow Sept. 4 was rabid, according to Marin County Health Officer Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht.

The dog, owned by Arthur T. Roth of 1195 Butterfield Road, Sleepy Hollow, has had two previous rabies vaccinations and was given another. It will be held in quarantine for 30 days as a precaution.

Housewife Disproves Old Adage About Baby-Kissing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agnes Hatfield ran second in a Republican congressional primary in Maryland without even trying.

She:

Did not make a single campaign speech.

Did not spend a cent on her campaign.

Endorsed another candidate in the same race.

Did not want to win.

Mrs. Hatfield says it all has to do with where your name is on the ballot — hers was first. She suggests her finish should "make people start thinking."

A professor of child studies at the University of Maryland, she ran in a field of four Republicans in Maryland's 5th District.

Lawrence J. Hogan, second on the ballot, won last Tuesday's primary. He will face Democratic incumbent Rep. Hervey Gilbert Machen in the general election.

"I did this as a test, and it apparently proved a point," Mrs. Hatfield said. "It doesn't make any difference whether a ballot is arranged alphabetically, or by the color of your eyes — but the first name on it apparently has an edge."

She proposed a study of the matter and suggested giving each candidate a certain percentage of ballots with his name first. Some states already follow this procedure.

Mrs. Hatfield, 45, who lives in suburban Hyattsville, Md., received 2,200 votes compared with Hogan's 5,134. The candidate she endorsed, William R. Martin, finished last with 201 votes.

Mrs. Hatfield has never held political office and doesn't plan to run for anything again. She said she is afraid she might win.

Taxi-Auto Crash Victim Is 'Fair'

Roseanne Renick, 46, of 340 Fawn Drive, San Anselmo, was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with chest injuries and a possible fracture of the right arm. She was the driver of a sports car involved in a collision with a taxicab yesterday morning at the intersection of Fifth Avenue and Court Street, San Rafael.

The taxi driver, Vernon R. Ray, of 1445 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, was expected to leave Terra Linda Valley Hospital today where he was treated for chest and abdominal bruises.

Indonesia To U.N.

LONDON SHOPKEEPER CLEARLY FOOLS 'EM

LONDON (AP)—"Look," exclaimed a man, "they're fighting. Can't you see the rippies in the water?"

There were "oohs" and ahhs" as the crowd pressed closer to the store window, and peered into a bowl which a sign said contained "transparent Chinese-dragon-fighting fish."

"Make room for others," called out a girl stenographer on her way to work. "We want to see too."

Brian Miller, 39, who runs the small newspaper and tobacco shop where the bowl was displayed, said several persons came in asking to buy the fish.

"At first I told people the fish were not for sale. But they became so insistent I had to tell them the sad truth," he added.

The truth, as the shop owner in Tiverton, Devonshire, sheepishly explained it:

"I just put the bowl of water and the sign into the window to attract attention. When I told some of my regular customers—especially those who'd seen the fish fighting — they didn't like it.

"Never again," he said. The bowl was displayed briefly Thursday. "If I live to be 100 I'll never understand the public," he added.

Rescue Helicopter Shot Down—By A Huge Wave

HONG KONG (AP) — Three Californians were rescued—with only minor bruises and scratches — after their helicopter was knocked down by a freak wave that flooded its engine 65 feet over the typhoon-churned Pacific.

Cmdr. Dale Barck of Chula Vista, the pilot, and his crew told about it here today.

His crew were co-pilot Ens. Dan Kern of Chula Vista and Petty Officer William Thoday of Imperial Beach.

Barck's was one of three helicopters sent from the aircraft carrier Oriskany to rescue 44 officers and crewmen from the 10,000 ton ore carrier, August Moon. The vessel, with four British officers and 40 Chinese, grounded on Pratas Reef Thursday and began breaking up.

All 44 were airlifted to safety without an injury yesterday.

Brack's copter was hovering 65 feet above the storm-lashed ship when a wave flooded and killed its engine.

"I have never known anything like it," said Barck, who has been flying helicopters more than 15 years.

"We were hovering there, at least 65 feet high, waiting to move into position to winch the men up, when all of a sudden we get this wall of water thrown smack in our faces.

"One second we are doing fine and the next second we've got a dead engine soaked with sea water.

The three men were buffetted by the surf for about five minutes before the other two helicopters—busy rescuing men off the freighter—got to them.

Widow, 89, Fighting For Her License

UKIAH (UPI) —An 89-year-old widow has appealed for the return of her driver's license.

Mrs. Jennie Arnold of Point Arena, told Superior Court Judge Robert Winslow yesterday she had been driving since 1919 and had been cited only twice for traffic violations, the last time on Jan. 23, 1966.

The January citation, for making an unsafe pass, was later dismissed because of insufficient evidence. But the investigating highway patrolman recommended she take a driving test, which she flunked. Her license was then suspended.

Mrs. Arnold told the court that although she was assured before the examination there would be "no tricks," the examiner ordered her to make a left turn through a red light during the test.

Appearing on her behalf was Tiney Mitchell, a Point Arena service station operator who said he had seen Mrs. Arnold driving almost every day since 1948.

"She couldn't drive a cab in Los Angeles but she is certainly capable of navigating in Point Arena," he said. Point Arena, situated on the California coast about 100 miles north of San Francisco, has a population of 596.

Although banana stalks are usually referred to as "trees" because they attain heights of more than 30 feet, they are in reality large perennial herbs.

TYING THE LOOSE ENDS TOGETHER

Telephone company maintenance splicers Mike Stocking, Robert Bruce, and John Proffitt, all of San Rafael, had a tedious task as they spliced together more than 200 telephone lines cut by a plumbing company's equipment on Makin Grade at Madrone Avenue in Kentfield yesterday at 10:30 a.m. The accident knocked out telephone service to downtown Kentfield and most of College of Marin. The last lines were restored to service by 7 p.m. (Independent-Journal Photo)

Udall Expects Swift Redwoods Park Vote

Interior Secretary Stewart Udall says that legislation to create the proposed redwoods national park in California will win swift action at the next session of Congress.

Udall, in a news conference yesterday, praised the decision of Harold A. Miller to stop cutting redwoods in Northern California.

Miller is president of Rellim-Miller Redwood Co., one of four lumber companies that voluntarily stopped cutting after President Johnson, at Udall's urging, requested emergency legislation to stop logging in an 18,000-acre section of the proposed park in the Mill Creek watershed in Northern California.

"I want to say some kind things about Mr. Miller in his home city," said Udall.

Udall was criticized by former Oregon Governor Charles Sprague, publisher of the Oregon Statesman in Salem.

Udall said, "It was unusual legislation. But how could I stand aside when the trees were being cut? I talked with President Johnson about it for 10 minutes and he agreed it should be introduced."

Land And Air Fights Fierce

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. pilots downed a Communist MIG in one of two dogfights over North Viet Nam yesterday, but two American planes were lost in other action over the north, a U.S. military spokesman reported today.

The Soviet-built MIG was knocked out of the sky by a heat-seeking Sidewinder missile in an engagement northeast of Hanoi in which three Americans piloting F4C Phantom jets were outnumbered by four MIG17s. The pilot of the struck MIG bailed out.

On the ground, a Communist force of more than battalion strength opposed two companies of U.S. Marines today just three miles south of the demilitarized zone.

Two Chances To See First Lady Tuesday

Marin residents will have two opportunities to see Lady Bird Johnson when she visits here for dedication of the Point Reyes National Seashore Tuesday.

Hamilton Air Force Base will be open to the public when the first lady arrives in a chartered American Airlines jet at 3:30 p.m., a base spokesman said.

At the base, she will be met by Gov. and Mrs. Edmund G. Brown. She is scheduled to make brief remarks there before taking a 16-minute helicopter trip to Drake's Beach where she will dedicate the Point Reyes National Seashore at 4 p.m.

The Marin County Public Works Department is installing a landing pad for Mrs. Johnson's helicopter party at the beach.

During the one-hour dedication ceremony, Mrs. Johnson will unveil a metal plaque. School bands from Marin County are scheduled to play and thousands of spectators are expected to throng the beach.

Mrs. Johnson and her party, which includes Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall and his wife, will fly to and from the beach aboard three SFO chartered helicopters. The copters will take her from the beach to the Presidio in San Francisco, a 10-minute drive from the Fairmont Hotel on Nob Hill, where she will stay overnight.

Mrs. Johnson will attend the formal opening of the San Francisco Opera at the War Memorial Opera House that night, for the performance of Bellini's "I Puritani."

Wednesday, she will leave San Francisco at 11:30 a.m. aboard a chartered PSA Electra jet to view the Big Sur Scenic Highway down the coast.

She will dedicate the highway at Hurricane Point, 15 miles south of Carmel and spend the night in a guest house at the Hearst Castle at San Simeon. She will leave for Arizona the next morning.

Teachers Strike Against Raise In Richmond

RICHMOND (AP)—Some 300 union teachers in the Richmond district's 61 schools called California's first teachers strike Friday night because they didn't think they should get a raise.

A rival teachers group had secured the pay boost for both union and non-union teachers.

The union teachers, about one-fifth of the district's teaching force, voted that a recent two per cent raise granted all Richmond's teachers should instead be put into "badly needed" school improvements, such as reducing the size of classes and improving school libraries.

Additionally, they demanded a vote to determine representation on a council recently set up by the school board to negotiate with teachers.

The union, Local 866 of the AFL-CIO's Federation of Teachers, competes with its larger non-union rival, the Assn. of Richmond Educators. It has rejected a school board proposal that representation on the new council must be based merely on the relative size of the membership lists of the two groups.

Even before the strike was called, some of the union teachers had been staying home. They were honoring picket lines erected after a walkout last Monday of non-teaching employees.

Whether any of the union teachers show up for classes this Monday will depend on a negotiation session today.

The raise money to which the union objects came from $600,000 gained recently through tax assessments in the district. It was secured by the Association of Richmond Educators.

The union said all of the money should go toward school improvements.

A spokesman said the teachers were granted "a long overdue but substantial raise" last year.

Earlier yesterday school officials said they would seek a court order to halt immediately the walkout of non-teaching employees.

Negotiations broke down Friday because the school officials didn't want to talk as long as the strike continued. They believe the walkout is illegal.

The strikers, out since Monday at 61 schools, initially demanded salary increases of 5 to 10 per cent. Strike leader Henry Clarke of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees said his union now has cut its demand in half.

School officials said classes are continuing at near normal.

They also said they would consider granting strikers a written pledge that there will be no retaliation against them or their sympathizers. The strikers have warned that they would defy any court order not accompanied by such a pledge.

Hundreds Listen In Corte Madera As Birchist Lambasts Viet Nam

By PAT PERRY

More than 300 people gave a standing ovation to a John Birch Society speaker at the Corte Madera Recreation Center last night in the first major public meeting of the ultra-conservative group in Marin County.

E. Edward Griffin, a staff major coordinator for the society, held the packed audience rapt as he talked for more than two hours on the war in Viet Nam.

Although none of the Birchist views he propounded were new — he blamed everything from the current high interest rates to the establishment of the United Nations in New York on Communist strategy—the meeting itself was highly significant.

Formerly the John Birch Society has been markedly shy in its public image, even to keeping names of members secret. Last night organizer Gary Whitworth, a member of the American Opinion Library in Novato, confessed to the audience that they had "misgivings" about the meeting, wondering whether it would be well attended.

When asked if the audience would be interested in more similar meetings the gathering applauded vigorously.

The recreation center's lobby featured a colorful display of literature, ranging from Karl Marx's Das Kapital to Griffin's "The Fearful Master — A Second Look at the United Nations." Birch Society bumper stickers, such as "Get the U. S. Out of the U. N." were ranged above tables which invited visitors to join the Marin Committee to Support Your Local Police, in Novato, a group, prodded by J. Edgar Hoover and dedicated to abolishing police review boards.

The audience was a fair cross section of Marin residents — young, middle aged and elderly. There were, however, no members of minority races. Nor was there any heckling during the three-hour meeting, which began with a blessing by Rev. J. Buerer, minister of the Faith Baptist Church in Novato.

Griffin, who established one of the first chapters of the society in Los Angeles in 1960, said there is "no possible, logical excuse for our war in Viet Nam, except we are there to be at war, because of the principle of reversal to make it look like our administration is a strong anti-Communist force, when all the while it is engaging in a process which is gradually turning over of one more slice of this planet to the Slave Empire."

For possible solutions to the war, Griffin proposed: "We should support our boys in Viet Nam" (applause); "we should raise a slogan for victory" (applause; "we must change a lot of names on door plates in Washington" (applause); "we have got to encourage the proper investigating committees in Washington to investigate the State Department" (applause); "we must disentangle ourselves from the international spider web called the United Nations," (applause.)

Jubilant Gemini Astronauts Tape Their Flight Memories

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Gemini 11 astronauts today continued an extensive debriefing on their three-day space mission, recalling the exciting events for a tape recorder.

Mrs. Jennie Arnold, Point Ar- "self debriefings" in which Navy Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr. and Navy Lt. Comdr. Richard F. Gordon Jr. recite the events as they remember them in broad terms, with experts listening in. (See pictures Page 2.)

The astronauts fly tomorrow to the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Tex., where they'll go into more detailed discussion of all phases of the flight, with specialists asking questions.

In Houston, they'll also have reunions with their families.

Conrad and Gordon were flown here by helicopter yesterday from the carrier Gaum. They landed just two miles from the ship after completing their record-shattering space journey Thursday.

Of special interest during the debriefings will be the workload that exhausted Gordon and forced him to cut short a space walk. The questioning may lead to a solution to the problem of man working outside an orbiting ship — something U.S. spacemen have found to be difficult.

During the journey, Conrad and Gordon set seven new man-in-space records, including an altitude of 850 miles, quickest rendezvous and linkup with an Agena satellite, flying formation while tied to the Agena by a 100-foot tether and first automatic re-entry and landing.

6:20 p.m., Marinwood — Small grass fire at Mary Silveira

SCHOOLS

$110,000, he said. Replacement of the unsafe wings with classrooms with a comparable square footage would cost about $105,000, McConnell noted. The five classrooms total about 7,000 square feet.

Indicating that he would recommend against rehabilitation, McConnell said construction of new classrooms would "allow a more functional plant."

The question of whether to demolish the unsafe wings now, or to close them to see if the cost of demolition could be financed by a bond issue in April, will come before the board when it meets Sept. 26. Current reserves total $87,000, McConnell said.

Zoellner's estimates of demolition did not include any salvage, Engle said. Blackboards, fixtures and furniture, therefore, could be recovered by the district.

Demolition and clearing of debris would take about 10 days, Engle said. The portable toilets could be brought up immediately from Los Angeles, where they are used by movie studios, he added.

Noting that the total cost of demolition and of portable classrooms would be about $25,000, Asst. Supt. Leo B. Edson suggested the state legislature may help compensate school districts for the cost of complying with the Field act, which set structural standards for earthquake safety in school buildings built before 1933.

SITE TOO SMALL

Location of all five portable classrooms at Park School was ruled out, McConnell explained, because the site is too small. Also ruled out was use of non-school buildings for temporary classrooms and conversion of other rooms in the school.

McConnell authorized Engle to draw plans to replace a brick chimney at Homestead School with a steel stack. Engle told the board last Saturday that the brick stack would topple in a light earthquake shock. Engle said he would have the plans ready by the middle of this coming week.

bought and used by private operators as a dump. They said it was unrealistic of the commission to use its control over the dredging operation to prevent filling of the land.

Two local residents, Richard E. Persoff of 151 Summit Avenue, Corte Madera, and Ann H. McCorry, 121 Greenbrae Boardwalk, Greenbrae (who is also a member of the flood control zone's advisory board), had opposed the fill.

Yesterday the commission also adopted a policy statement on preservation of San Francisco Bay, calling for protection of the Bay's tidal flow and of the fresh water which pours into the Bay from the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers. Filling and diking in the Bay should be limited to preserve the strong tidal flow, necessary to conserve fish and wildlife, the commission ruled.

Child Beating Case Delayed

Eugene A. Boehm, 21, yesterday waived time for filing an information against him in a child-beating case until 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in Marin Superior Court.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said without the waiver, made by Boehm and his attorney, Robert I. Conn, before Judge Joseph G. Wilson, deadline for filing would have been today. Boehm, held in county jail in lieu of $7,875 bail, was bound over to superior court Sept. 2 on charges of murder and felony child-beating which resulted in the Aug. 18 death of 16-month-old Timothy Wayne Buckley.

An information must be filed within 15 days unless a waiver is made. Bales said he will now file by Tuesday. Boehm is accused of administering the beatings while living with the baby's mother, Mrs. Roberta Marie Buckley, at 70 Lucky Drive, Greenbrae.

San Rafael Smoggy

San Rafael's smog level topped the Bay Region yesterday, according to figures released by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District office. The local count of .16 oxidents per million part of air surpassed the eye irritation level of .15 and approached the San Rafael September record of .17 set in 1962. San Rafael holds the six-county district record of .34 set last June 14.

damage there, but said it was considerable.

County Superintendent of Schools Virgil S. Hollis said that over $100,000 worth of schools material was in the flooded area.

Damaged materials, Vanasen said, include "considerable amounts of film, data processing forms, paper supplies, business records and audio-visual equipment such as tape recorders and projectors.

"We've notified the insurance company. I don't know how much damage was done to the tiles and walls."

Vanasen had been notified of the flood by Hollis, who he said was in the building to open the instructional materials center for teachers at 9 a.m.

Sausalito Gets New Fire Truck

Sausalito firemen Thursday accepted delivery of a new $35,000 fire engine.

The 1,250-gallon pumper, Chief Charles E. Masten said, "will considerably increase our pumping capacity." The new trucks also has an 800-gallon tank.

It replaces a 500-gallon pumper, with no tank, built in 1935.

The new truck has a 153-inch wheel base, especially short to allow it to operate in hill areas. It was built by Van Pelt Truck Co. of Oakdale.

Attorney Belli's Wife Wins Decree

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Attorney Melvin Belli, 59, has been divorced by his third wife, 38-year-old Joy, on grounds of cruelty.

Superior Judge Gerald S. Levin granted the divorce yesterday. Mrs. Belli testified her husband called her "filthy names" in front of their son, Caesar, 9, rarely spent any time at home and once "threatened to blow my head off."

Youngster Slightly Improved After Fall

Eric Morris, six year old son of Dr. and Mrs. James M. Morris, 153 Homestead Boulevard, Homestead Valley, was reported a little improved today at University of California Medical Center in San Francisco.

Eric, whose father is assistant professor of orthopedic surgery at the center, suffered head injuries Thursday afternoon when he fell down a 40 foot embankment near his home.

Petty Theft Charge Plea Entry Slated

Michael Edward Overstreet, 18, and Gordon Keith Jennings, 19, are scheduled in Marin Municipal Court to plead at 1:30 p.m. Monday to a joint charge of petty theft.

Overstreet, of 1309 Leafwood Drive, and Jennings, of 1364 Grand Avenue, both of San Rafael, allegedly took cameras and other items from the home of Sarah Buecher, 68 Convent Court, San Rafael, last Tuesday. They originally were booked in county jail for burglary.

leased auto south in the company of his daughter, Elizabeth, 16, and another girl, Sharon A. Gould, 29, of Seattle.

The Partridge girl told California Highway Patrolmen her father was driving at about 65 miles per hour just south of the Corte Madera Overpass when a violent coughing spell caused him to lose control of the car.

A steel cable on the fence was driven almost completely through the top of the car, pinning the unconscious Partridge across his throat and to his seat. Highway patrolmen found the two girls lying in the divider area about 10 feet from the car. They were both treated at the hospital for cuts and bruises and released.

Elizabeth Partridge told the officers that she, her father and the other girl had been at the San Rafael home of some friends The car was a total wreck.

Paint Store Owner Has Heart Attack

Ernest Beckstrom, owner of Marin Color Service, at Lincoln Avenue and Third Street in San Rafael, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Ross General Hospital where he was taken after suffering a heart attack yesterday.

Beckstrom, 51, lives at 286 Mountain View Avenue, San Rafael. He has owned the San Rafael business for 16 years. Mrs. Beckstrom said today her husband will probably remain in the hospital until the end of the month.

Costly Clothes Have Topstitching Detail

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE:

For a year or more so many of the expensive clothes have had a lot of top machine-stitching on the seams for the detail. This is usually done about 5/8 to 3/4 inch from the seam and looks so beautiful. When I try to do the same thing, I can't get the same effect. The seams of the patterns don't seem to be wide enough, and I get diagonal wrinkles between the seam and the stitching. Please help!

MRS. T. E. R.

DEAR MRS. T. E. R.:

Topstitching is most effective and attractive when it is done through two layers of fabric. In other words, the seam allowance must be wide enough to extend beyond the stitching line. Wherever you plan to topstich your garment, make your seam allowances 1 inch instead of 5/8 inch. This will provide the double layer of fabric.

Most women have the difficulty you describe, having diagonal wrinkles between the seam and the stitching line. When you are machine-stitching two layers of fabric together, it is only natural for the top layer to shift forward; the teeth on the plate of your machine keep the bottom layer from shifting. To compensate for this, keep the forefinger of each hand on each side of the presser foot, easing the fabric forward (ahead of the stitching). This should keep the grain line perfect and produce a beautiful effect. Remember also to keep the machine-stitching a little longer than usual, often buttonhole twist is used for this decorative type stitching.

DEAR EUNICE:

How do you put a hem in your skirt when you have lined the skirt? The hem won't lie flat where the pleat folds. Instead it is thick and bulky.

MRS. M. C.

DEAR MRS. M. C.:

Usually a skirt is not underlined if there are pleats involved because of the added bulkiness. If your skirt needs the underlining, I would suggest you only use it to a point just above the top of the pleat.

If you are lining the skirt because of keeping a uniform color throughout, I would suggest a separate lining instead of underlining (treating the two layers of fabric as one). The separate lining would hang free, however, this restricts the ease that you would normally gain from the pleat. The lining may also be slashed at the pleat area and loosely tacked down, one part of it would be under the fold of the pleat; the other would be tacked to the top of the pleat.

DEAR EUNICE:

I am a leader of a 4-H group of girls and need information desperately. The girls are supposed to make a dress and line it, however, they just aren't ready to learn lining as yet. Can you suggest materials that they could work with and still not have to line?

MRS. L. K.

DEAR MRS. L. K.:

This question has come up so often and was brought to mind again when my youngest girl was trying to make some clothes for school. First, I would suggest you use a bonded flannel or double knit. This type of fabric is firm, can really take a beating (ripping), and looks great without lining. Let's don't give these youngsters an unfair advantage. The important point to make is that they learn to love to sew!

If sleeves are your problem and you just can't get rid of those "puckers," you will love my step-by-step instructions given in detail in my leaflet "All About Sleeves." For your copy, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents with your request to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

Borloz And McGinnis Wedding In Novato

Judith Ann McGinnis and Rene Maurice Borloz were united in marriage at the Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato on Saturday. The Rev. Arthur R. Harrison of St. Francis Cabrina parish in Cambrian Park officiated.

Judith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. McGinnis, formerly of Novato and now living in Kansas City, Mo. She wore a gown of satin with a chapel train. Matron of honor was Mrs. Richard P. Smaw and bridesmaids were Susan McGinnis of Kansas City, Mrs. Stephen Halbe, Mrs. Max Jackson and Sue Edgar of Fairfax. They wore dresses of buttercup yellow crepe. Cristi Ann Jackson, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl, and ringbearer was Ramon Rivamonte.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rene Borloz of Novato. Best man was his cousin, Robert M. Deny of Sonoma. Ushers were Peter Sturken of Kentfield, Michael Smith of San Diego, Thomas Mindling of Novato, James McCoy of Oakland and George Chipman of Novato.

A reception at Wild Horse Valley Clubhouse in Novato was held.

The bride was graduated from Novato High School and attended College of Marin.

Rene was graduated from Novato High School and attended College of Marin. He was a graduate of the technical school at Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls, Tex. The couple will reside at Vandenburg Air Force Base where he will serve with the Air Force.

The bridegroom is the brother of Mrs. Max Jackson and Mrs. Stephen Halbe of Novato.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

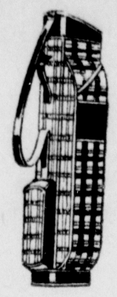
Golf Tournament Parties—

By MOLLY MARIN

This weekend's Tournament of Stars golf tournament at Peacock Gap Country Club is the occasion for many gin fizz and cocktail parties for residents of Peacock Gap.

It has become a tradition now by homeowners who live on the golf course to get together with neighbors to view the tournaments from their terraces. Among the residents entertaining on Sunday will be Messrs. and Mesdames Zane J. Sandom, John L. Gould, Samuel L. Wright Jr. and C. R. Paulson.

P. H. Brydon, director of the Strybing Arboretum of Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, and Mrs. Brydon of Belvedere, visited some 40 gardens in England, Ireland and Scotland this past summer. Director Brydon will show slides and tell of their experiences on Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. at the Hall of Flowers in Golden Gate Park. Among the highlights of their trip was the luncheon hosted by Sir Eric Savilil, designer of the Queens Garden at Windsor Great Park, and the hospitality of Edmund de Rothschild at his castle and gardens in Exbury.



COUNT AND Countess Alvisa Grozzi of Venice were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dollar of Kent Woodlands at a luncheon at Trader Vic's on Friday. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. John McGuire, Phyllis Spaulding and Andrew Delfino.

MR. AND MRS. Harold Staho of Corte Madera will sail tomorrow on the Lurline for a month's vacation in Hawaii. They will take a tour of the Islands. They will host a bon voyage party for 75 aboard the boat prior to sailing.

A FAREWELL party honoring the Rev. William E. Mena of St. Hilary's Church was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Rice in Tiburon Monday evening. One hundred parishioners attended the party. Reverend Mena is leaving the Tiburon parish for new duties in San Francisco.

BECOMING ACQUAINTED with a remarkable little Mexican peasant boy was one of the highlights of the month-long Mexican trip for the Donald Smiths and their three children of Mill Valley. In the little town of Alamos they were so impressed with Emilio Grageda, who had just graduated from Grammar School with the highest grades in the State of Sonora, that they hope to bring him here to attend college eventually. One of 11 children of an unemployed father, he picked up English by shining shoes. Mr. Smith, who had been attending an eight-week seminar in economics at the University of Missouri under a U.S. State Department grant, drove the camper the family had used in 1964 on a 10-month world tour to Mazatlan, Kay and the children, Brandon, 13; Devon, 11; and Tia, 6; flew there to join him. They rented a bungalow in Mazatlan for a couple of weeks and enjoyed fishing at Topolobampo.

Workshop Is Set For Camp Fire

Camp Fire leaders, guardians and interested mothers of the Marin section of the Golden Gate Council will have an opportunity Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. to attend a Creative Arts workshop at the First Methodist Church of San Rafael.

Mrs. Willard Ivarson, chairman, announced the features: Home arts of needlecraft, Mrs. Howard Kinn; cooking, Virginia Shattuck; flower arrangements, Mrs. A. V. Girot Jr.; performing arts, drama, Mrs. H. E. Moody; music, Mrs. L. E. Christensen, games, Mrs. Richard Auslen; hand arts, mosaic, Mrs. Elias Katz; ceramics, Mrs. E. J. Hubbell and puppetry, Mrs. J. R. Polach.

Club To Present Fashion Festival

"Fall Festival of Fashion" has been planned for the opening meeting of the San Rafael Improvement Club on Tuesday at the clubhouse.

Mrs. Edward W. Brown is program chairman for the 1:30 p.m. show with Mrs. Kenneth Walkmeister, co-chairman. Mrs. John B. Bellamy Jr. will act as commentator and Mrs. Fred Foster will offer piano accompaniment.

Models will be Mesdames John McInnis, Richard Hardin, Robert Swart, Donald Murray, Douglas Godfrey, Eldred Hillis, Leslie Turner, Gerrit Vander Hoogt, Harold Fowler, Robert Kantner and Miss Linda Thaning.

Mrs. Albert Walz is tea chairman assisted by Mesdames Nell Pearce, John Ongaro and Donald Murray. Pouring will be Mesdames Louis Walsh, Herbert Christ, Clarence De Long and Herbert Walton.

Belvedere Guild Event

An old fashioned ice cream social and potluck supper will be held by Belvedere Guild No. 1, of Sunny Hills, at 6 p.m. tomorrow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Steen in Belvedere.

Barbara Steinhardt Engaged To Richard Mayer Of New York

On Tuesday Dr. and Mrs. David Steinhardt of Los Altos Hills, announced the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Jean, to Richard T. Mayer of New York City. The occasion was a champagne and supper party for 25 guests.

The Steinhardts were residents of Strawberry Point for 12 years until they moved to Santa Clara County in 1964, when Dr. Steinhardt became Chief of Surgery at the Kaiser Foundation Hospital there.

Among the guests were friends from Marin, including the Anshall Nelsons of Strawberry, the J. G. Messimers of Greenbrae, and their families. Mr. Mayer's mother was also present, after having attended her daughter's wedding in Denver, Colo.

BARBARA STEINHARDT

Miss Steinhardt is an alumna of the Katharine Branson School in Ross. She is presently entering her junior year at Barnard College.

The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Mayer of Lakewood, Ohio. He is employed on the staff of the New York Times, and attends Columbia University.

The couple will return shortly to New York City to continue their studies.

ANNOUNCEMENT HAS been made of the engagement of Rosemary Anne Hexberg of Rapid City, S. D., and Howard Wheatley Allen of Kentfield.

Wheat Allen Will Wed In October Rite

A family dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Allen of Kentfield was the occasion for the announcement of the engagement of Rosemary Anne Hexberg of Rapid City, S.D., and Howard Wheatley Allen, their son.

The wedding will take place on Oct. 8 at the Allens' beach house in Seadrift.

The bride-elect, the daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Caspar J. Hexberg of Rapid City, is the sister of Mrs. Gary Brandt of Cedar Rapids, Ia., Kristine Hexberg of Pasadena and Karl, Katrina, Kurt and Eric Hexberg of Rapid City.

Rosemary is the granddaughter of Christian J. Hexberg of Oakland, Mrs. C. J. Hexberg of San Rafael and Mrs. B. L. Phillips of San Francisco.

She attended San Francisco Art Institute and California College of Arts and Crafts.

Wheat is the brother of Joelle, Joan and Peter Bishop Allen, all of Kentfield. Mesdames Frank H. Allen and Edward Wheatley Bullard are his grandmothers. He was graduated from Redwood High School, Dartmouth College and attends graduate courses at the University of California School of Architecture.

Historical 'Battle' Told In Tiburon Talk

By BETTY FROST

Calling interest in the "environmental tradition" of the Belvedere-Tiburon Peninsula "historical fun," Russell Keil of the Belvedere - Tiburon Landmarks Society addressed 30 members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Corinthian Yacht Club at luncheon Thursday.

His talk, "Where We Live," included an anecdote on the founding of the Corinthian Yacht Club. According to Mr. Keil, James F. Donohue, who opened the rail line from San Rafael to Point Tiburon in 1884, also donated the lumber for the original yacht club, which was established in its present location in 1886. Donohue believed the young yacht club would enhance interest in the area and attract visitors.

HE ALSO SPOKE of a running battle between boatmen who had built small shacks at the water's edge in Belvedere Cove and the U. S. Army, who contested their squatter's rights shortly after California was taken into the Union. In that earlier era, before the establishment of plush summer homes by San Francisco's elite, it was said, "No lady steps foot on Belvedere."

The struggle of Donohue to obtain right of way for his railroad through the holdings of the Reed family provided an amusing sidelight to local history. When the railroad man failed to obtain the desired permission from John Reed's widow, Ylaria Sanchez Reed, by direct negotiation, he sent his smooth-talking brother - in - law, Baron Rudolph von Schroeder, to see her. The charming baron appealed to the devout lady's conscience. In exchange for the right of way, the Donohue interests promised to build a church. The church, constructed in 1888, was old St. Hilary's. An outstanding example of carpenter's Gothic architecture, the little white church was acquired as headquarters for the Landmarks Society when the Roman Catholic parish on the Tiburon Peninsula outgrew the small structure a decade ago and construction of the present St. Hilary's Church, school and convent were planned.

EMPHASIZING THAT these were but a sampling of the many stories dealing with regional history, Keil, a founder of the Landmarks Society and member of a pioneer family on the Tiburon Peninsula, urged his audience to investigate for themselves the local legends, "just for fun."

BEAUTY OF HANDWEAVING

Ida Grae of Mill Valley, instructor of handweaving at California College of Arts and Crafts, spoke on "The Antiquity and Beauty of Handweaving" for the Christian Women's Club of America who met at Peacock Gap Country Club yesterday afternoon. Displaying some examples of the ancient clothing techniques with Mrs. Grae (second from left) were, from left, Barbara Ann Scott, Nina Kerr and Bettina Danielle Grae.

OPERA HOUSE DEBUT—Opening night crowd of 3,000 packs the brand-new Metropolitan Opera House to hear Samuel Barbara's "Antony and Cleopatra," in a premiere performance. (UPI Telephoto)

Met Opening Is Glittering Event But Critics VoiceSome Doubts

NEW YORK (AP) — The Metropolitan Opera opened its $45.7-million new home at Lincoln Center in a blaze of glory last night — and it almost seemed as though fireworks went off when General Manager Rudolf Bing announced from the stage that the musician's strike, which threatened future performances, had been settled.

Cheers went up from the audience already dazzled by the gala opening night, with Samuel Barber's new American opera "Anthony and Cleopatra" on one side of the footlights and a cross-section of the world's power and wealth on the other.

Leontyne Price sang the role of Cleopatra. The parents of her leading man, Justino Diaz, who played Antony, flew to New York from Puerto Rico to attend the performance.

'AMERICAN DREAM'

Bing had just come from backstage where he and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson — guest of honor at the opening — had met with the parents of Miss Price. Amidst the diamonds and the white ties, the Mississippi Negro farm tenant parents of the diva were like the embodiment of the great American dream.

With Mrs. Johnson in the state box, as her chief guests, were President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines and his wife Imelda in a pink and white, jewel-encrusted native gown called a terno.

Joining them were Gov. and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York — who had not been expected — and who seemed to occupy the section of the box left vacant when U.N. Secretary-General U Thant failed to show up. He sent word that he had a toothache.

Sens. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y. and Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who had not been on the list of advance ticket holders either, were in the audience.

Mrs. John F. Kennedy, widow of the president, was absent because, a spokesman said, she was in Boston entertaining scholars sent here by the British government in honor of her husband.

'BEST DRESSED' ABSENT

With most of New York's "best-dressed" unable to get tickets, fashion reporters described the audience as "rich but tacky."

Mrs. Johnson, at her best in an alabaster chiffon gown by George Stavropolis, was an exception.

Mrs. James Price, in a beige lace suit and pearls and the star's brother, immaculate in the white dress uniform of a U.S. Army lieutenant colonel, beamed with pride as Mrs. Johnson told them Leontyne was "so regal." Col. Price returned from Viet Nam last year.

They weren't at all in awe of Bing — his chest covered with medals — and Mrs. Price told him she had always thought he was a "stout gentleman."

"I was until a week ago," he said, referring to the strike and the mechanical difficulties and the other troubles which for a time made it seem a dream that the Met would be able to open its new home on time.

The building itself, the magnificent finale to the cultural complex of Lincoln Center, seemed to overshadow the opening night.

The fountains, and the Marc Chagall murals and the audience took almost as much attention.

OPERA 'VULGAR'

New York Times critic Harold C. Schoenberg called the opera a "big complicated package: Big, grand, impressive and vulgar."

"Almost everything about the evening," he said, "artistically speaking, failed in total impact."

John Chapman of the Daily News said it was an "eye popper" but not exactly an "ear soother."

He found the score "more exciting orchestrally than vocally" and praised "an almost continuous visual excitement in the production."

Mrs. Johnson told the singer's mother "she was perfectly magnificent." The critics applauded Miss Price too.

Terms for settlement of the strike of the 100-man orchestra made them, union chief Max Arons said, the highest paid players in the world.

When the opera ended, with 14 curtain calls, New York's Mayor John V. Lindsay gave a champagne reception for 1,800 in the grand tier lobby. There were about another 1,800 crashers and the jam was like New York's subway at the rush hour. At one point a Secret Service man asked reporters: "Have you seen Mrs. Johnson anyplace?"

The answer was "no" and the reason, it turned out later, was that she had discreetly slipped out and gone to her Carlyle Hotel apartment.

Touring Opera Unit Cash Voted

MONTEREY (UPI) — The California Arts Commission voted yesterday to co-sponsor, with the San Francisco Opera Assn., a touring theater group which will bring opera performances to schools and communities throughout the state.

It is to be called the Western Opera Theater and the sponsors hope it can be organized in the near future. Rehearsals reportedly will begin Nov. 15, with performances due in February.

The nine-member commission voted unanimously to finance "to the maximum" operation of the group. Initially, executive director Anthony Reid was authorized to enter into agreements for expenditures up to $10,000.

The co - sponsorship was contingent upon approval by the San Francisco Opera Assn., which has already undertaken moves to get the theater into operation. A grant of $105,000 from the National Arts Foundation towards the first year's budget must be matched by other financing. The total spending for the year is expected to be $211,000.

Park Made Memorial To Geddes

SAN SIMEON (UPI) — The California State Park Commission yesterday elected George C. Fleharty, Atherton businessman, its chairman for the next year.

Fleharty was elected to succeed Alfred J. Stern, Palo Alto, who had headed the seven-member body for the last three years. Darwin Holway, Santa Barbara, was elected vice chairman at the commission meeting held in the Hearst Historical Monument.

The commission voted to designate the Sugarloaf Ridge State Park in Sonoma County a memorial to the late Sen. Samuel R. Geddes who played a leading role in establishing it. However, it declined to change the name to the Samuel R. Geddes State Park.

Development of federal-state recreation at the Auburn-Folsom project on the American River was approved in principle. The commission also voted to acquire three acres of beach and ocean property north of Montara. The property will include 400 feet of beach and access to a much larger beach area.

The park commission threw its influence behind passage of a constitutional amendment on the November ballot which would allow scenic lands a tax break as long as they are not developed.

Joan Baez Set For Grenada Non-Violent Try

CARMEL (UPI) — Folksinger Joan Baez says she will jion Dr. Martin Luther King Monday in a racial trouble spot, Grenada, Miss.

The 25-year-old brunette said she wants the protection neither of state troopers nor of civil rights groups willing to retaliate with violence.

Her main goal, she says, is "to help bring nonviolence back to the civil rights movement."

"For 15 years, nonviolence did amazing things," she continued "and every place violence came in, there was disaster."

The singer has joined major civil rights marches in Washington, Selma, Ala., and elsewhere, "but this seems different to me. This time it will be a matter of taking a little kid by the hand and seeing what can be done with nonviolence as protection."

Flying Bathtub In New Tests

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE (AP)—National Aeronautics and Space Administration's wingless M2F2 has made another flight over the Mojave Desert — this time with a new pilot.

NASA research pilot Bruce Peterson rode the bathtub-shaped vehicle on a 45,000-foot descent yesterday, after being dropped from the wing of a B-52.

The craft descended in three and one half minutes, reaching speeds of 400 miles an hour.

Space scientists hope the flights will lead to the development of a space - to - airport manned satellite to replace the conventional Gemini type capsules which must land in water.

First flights of the M2F2 were made by NASA pilot Milton Thompson.

A PICASSO FOR CHICAGO

Famed artist Pablo Picasso has donated to the Windy City this design for a 50-foot abstract sculpture that will be erected at the city's Civic Center Plaza. Several private foundations have contributed $300,000 for the monumental steel sculpture. City fathers are puzzled by the design, opining it might be a perched bird or a woman's head.

Youths Hunted In Bay Murder

OAKLAND (UPI) — Police today sought two young men reportedly seen in an apartment building here where the body of an elderly widow resident was found bound and beaten.

The victim, Mrs. Karen Stevens, 75, was killed apparently between noon and 2 p.m. Thursday, according to police. A caretaker said he saw two youths in the building about that time.

A neighbor, Mrs. Olive Kerr, the building manager, said "thousands of dollars in gold rings" were missing from the victim's fingers. Also missing was her car, police said.

Police have issued an all points bulletin for the stolen car and two teen-agers, one tall and blond and the other dark-haired.

Mouse Gives Bus Conductor A Black Eye

WOOLEY, England (UPI) — Judith Sharp, 12 and her grandfather boarded the bus and paid their fares, eight cents each. Because Judith had George with her, she had to pay an additional seven cents.

George is a mouse.

"What's in that basket?" the bus conductor asked Judith.

"My mouse," she replied.

"That'll be seven cents more, please," the conductor said, explaining that anything alive which rides the bus must pay the fare.

"Ridiculous," a bus company spokesman said of the mouse fare yesterday. He said George should have been classified as luggage. He said the rule concerning animals would apply to a dog or a large uncrated animal—but not to a mouse in a four-inch-square basket.

The spokesman said Judith—who takes George everywhere she goes—will get her seven cents back.

George had no comment. Not even a squeak.

Fairfield Resident Hurt In Coast Crash

Monroe E. Sheppard, 41, of Fairfield was reported in critical condition today at Marin General Hospital with head injuries and fractured ribs suffered when his southbound Triumph hit some rocks on State Route 1 and went off the road a mile south of Olema.

The accident occurred at about 5:30 p.m. yesterday. Sheppard is in the intensive care unit at the hospital.

A MORAL QUESTION

Cardinal Urges Restraint In Waging Viet-Nam War

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

When a nation is fighting a war, its people may come to feel that use of any tactic that is militarily effective is justified.

War is so horrible under any circumstances that it seems difficult to draw a line between moral and immoral ways of waging it.

Yet the Christian church has always insisted that there are moral restraints on what may be done in warfare. Indeed, the whole Christian concept of a "just war" depends on the methods used as well as the cause for which the war is fought.

American Christians of all denominations are indebted to a wise Catholic cardinal for reminding them of this at a time when impatient demands are being heard for an "anything goes" strategy in Viet Nam.

In a pastoral letter that deserves to be read far beyond the boundaries of his own archdiocese, Lawrence Cardinal Shehan of Baltimore warns that it is not enough for Americans to debate the reasons why their country is at war in Viet Nam.

QUESTIONS OF DEGREE

Even if they conclude that the war is necessary and honorable, he says, there remains the question of "the degree and kind of violence our nation should inflict on its enemies."

"All is not permissible in even a presumably lawful war of self-defense," says the Baltimore cardinal.

He notes that the recent Vatican Council, while upholding a nation's moral right to take up arms against an aggressor, "gave its unequivocal and unhesitating condemnation to any act of war aimed indiscriminately at the destruction of entire cities or of extensive areas along with their population."

Cardinal Shehan is greatly disturbed by the growing chorus of "harsh voices" which he hears in America, "attempting to pressure our leaders into decisions which the Christian conscience could not endorse," such as bombing raids on North Viet Nam's population centers.

CHECK MORAL GROUNDS

"If we are to resist such lethal appeal to our understandable impatience," he counsels, "we must constantly recall that only on moral grounds can our cause in Viet Nam be just. If our means become immoral, our cause will have been betrayed."

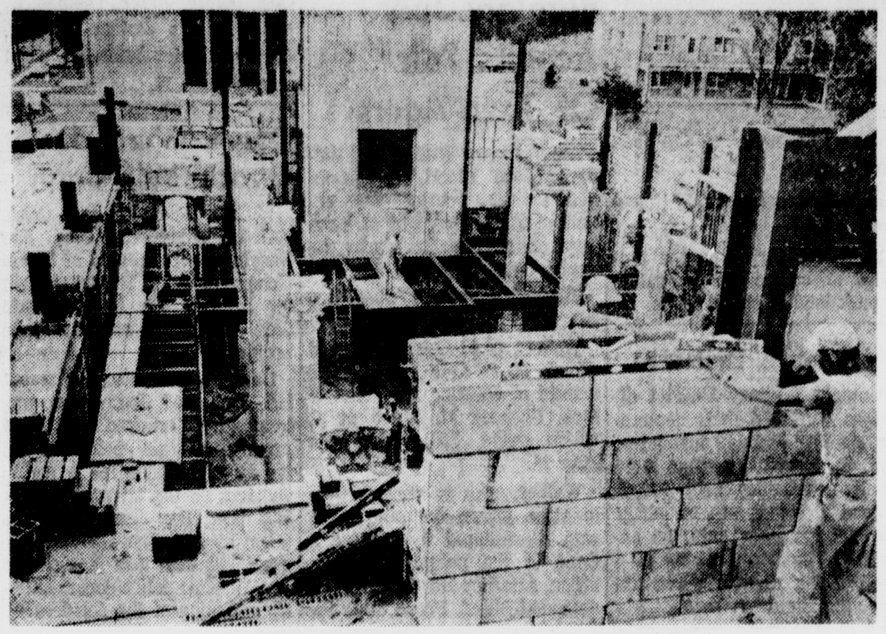
Cardinal Shehan isn't the only American concerned about the methods employed in Viet Nam.

The Protestant magazine Christian Century recently published an article by two medical scientists deploring the U.S. military policy of destroying rice crops in Viet Cong areas by spraying them with herbicides.

The authors were Dr. Jean Mayer, professor of nutrition at Harvard, and Dr. Victor W. Sidel, associate in preventive medicine at Harvard Medicine School.

"By every tenet of our traditional American ethic, the program of food destruction is wrong," they said.

"It is wrong because it is likely to hurt a great many innocent people, principally children, while accomplishing nothing toward decreasing the military capabilities of the Viet Cong."



A GIANT JIGSAW PUZZLE

Putting an English church back together again in Fulton, Mo., has become a puzzle played with a 640-ton jumble of stones. The St. Mary Aldermanbury church was disassembled in London and shipped to Fulton to be rebuilt on the Westminster College campus as a memorial to Winston Churchill. But the stones, marked and crated so each crate could be opened as needed, got all mixed up. Now the rebuilding (above) requires a hunt (below) for the right stones spread over two acres. Yom Kippur Services Next Week In Marin

From sundown next Friday to sundown Saturday, Jews in Marin County will join their co-religionists throughout the world in observance of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, the most solemn and sacred of the Hebrew holidays.

With the ending at sundown today of Rosh Hashanah — the Jewish New Year that introduces the "Days of Awe"—the ancient solemnities progress toward the sounding of the ram's horn on Yom Kippur.

In Marin, as elsewhere, the 2,000-year-old observances will begin with the opening liturgy on Yom Kippur Eve, the "Kol Nidre," a prayer for forgiveness accompanied by a haunting and beautiful melody that originated in medieval Germany.

The service continues throughout the following day and ends as the sun sets with a final blast from the shofar, the ram's horn.

Conservative Congregation Kol Shofar will hold the Kol Nidre service at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Rabbi Morris Schussheim conducting, at Aldersgate Methodist Church in Terra Linda. Morning devotions will be held Saturday at 10 a.m., followed by the reading of the Torah at 11 a.m. and Yizkor memorial service at noon.

Saturday afternoon services will include the sermon at 12:30 p.m. Moosaf service at 1 p.m., young person's hour at 2:45 p.m., Mincha Torah reading at 3:45 p.m., sermon at 5:30 p.m., Neilah service at 6 p.m.

Rabbi Schussheim will be assisted by Cantor Henry Greenberg and Walter Hotzner and Merril Ring.

Reform Congregation Rodef Sholom will hold Kol Nidre service at 7 and 9 p.m. Friday, Rabbi Morton Hoffman leading the worship. Yom Kippur day services will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday and continue throughout the day, with a special children's service to be held at 1:30 p.m. Cantor Arthur Lincoln will assist Rabbi Hoffman and the choir will be under the direction of Elsie Krinitsky.

TO SPEAK — Margaret Hardisty, star of KEAR's "Secret Hideout" program for children, will sepak on "Christian Woman Today" on Tuesday at the 11:25 a.m. second annual luncheon of the Women's Association of Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur. Women of all other churches in Marin have been invited to attend the luncheon in Fellowship Hall. Mrs. Hardisty, a recording artist as well, will play some of her records.

NEW CHOIRMASTER — Richard B. Riddell of Greenbrae has assumed leadership of the choirs of Episcopal Church of the Nativity in Marinwood. He was previously choir director of First Presbyterian Church of Petaluma and has had some 30 years experience as choir singer, soloist and conductor. He received his Bachelor of Music degree from the New England Conservatory of Music in 1949 and his master's in music in 1951.

Faith Lutheran's Fall Schedule Set

The fall schedule for Faith Lutheran Church, Terra Linda, now in effect, provides:

Early church worship at 9:30 a.m.; church school for four-year-olds through eighth graders from 9:15 to 10:30 a.m. and nursery care for infants to three-year-olds.

An 11 a.m. service with nursery care for children through two years of age and class instruction for three, four and five-year-olds.

San Rafael Church Has New Pastor

San Rafael's Assembly of God Church welcomed a new pastor last Sunday, Rev. Robert V. Phillips.

Rev. Phillips succeeded Rev. Lester Sheets, who is doing revival work in Canada.

A native of Sanger, Fresno County, Rev. Phillips has served churches in Oregon, Northern California, Southern California and Nevada. His last post was in Las Vegas.

He and his wife, Betty Jo, and their two daughters, Linda, 13, and Carla, 18 months, live at 21 Sunset Way, San Rafael.

The church's fall schedule provides a 9:45 a.m. Bible study period on Sundays in addition to the 11 a.m. service and a 7 p.m. evangelistic service. Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. there will be a Bible study and prayer meeting.

Bethel Baptist To Hold Weekday Church Class

The weekday church school for children, ages three through five, began classes Monday at the Bethel Baptist Church in Novato, with Mrs. A. E. Schmidt of Novato, the teacher.

This is a church training program with group activities both indoors and outdoors, hand crafts, Bible stories, drawing, games and a snack time, according to Rev. Clark A. Wyly. It is held until noon each day, Monday through Friday.

Rabbi Milgram To Succeed Rabbi Schussheim

The board of directors of conservative Congregation Kol Shofar has announced the appointment and acceptance of Rabbi Jacob Milgram as spiritual leader of the congregation, starting Oct. 1.

He succeeds Rabbi Morris Schussheim, who is leaving to head a congregation in Portland, Ore.

Rabbi Milgram has served several congregations over the past 20 years and last year was selected to head the University of California's department of Near Eastern studies. He will continue in that capacity at the university in addition to his new duties as spiritual leader of Congregation Kol Shofar.

Rabbi Milgram will be introduced tomorrow to the children of the congregation's religious school at the Three-R School on Redwood Highway.

To Honor The Gospel

NEW YORK (UPI) — Christian Education Week this year is Sept. 25-Oct. 2, according to the National Council of Churches which says:

"This annual observance seeks to open ways for the Christian worker to become more efficient in his calling.

Tiburon's Rev. Sandrock Plans Far East Mission

Rev. Sig G. Sandrock, pastor of Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church in Tiburon, will leave Oct. 6 to conduct a month of Protestant religious missions in the Far East.

He will fly on a Military Air Transport plane from Travis Air Force Base at the invitation of Maj. Gen. Robert Taylor, chief of Air Force chaplains.

Rev. Sandrock will preach a series of five sermons each week at Tokyo, Naha Air Base in Okinawa and Tainan Air Base, Formosa. He will also address military and civilian organizations and hold counseling interviews for servicemen when requested.

Following his tour of special duty, Rev. Sandrock has been granted an extended 30-day leave, during which he plans to visit Hawaii. He will return the first week in November.

His pulpit will be taken in his absence by a chaplain from the Lutheran Servicemen's Center in San Francisco.

Yom Kippur At Prison

Jewish inmates at San Quentin will observe Yom Kippur at a service at 9:30 a.m. next Saturday in the prison chapel. Rabbi Norman Twerski will conduct the worship service.

FROM AFRICA

Anti-Apartheid Bishop To Speak In Tiburon

One of South Africa's most controversial figures, the Rt. Rev. Clarence Edward Crowther, Bishop of Kimberley and Kuruman will speak at 2 p.m. Monday at Whitaker Hall, St. Stephens Church, Belvedere.

Bishop of the largest diocese in South Africa, he was the youngest bishop in the Angelican Communion when he assumed his duties last November at the age of 36. For six years prior to his African assignment he had been senior Episcopal chaplain at the University of California at Los Angeles.

During his stay in Africa, Bishop Crowther has been a leader in the church's opposition to the apartheid policies of the South African Government. His scheme for feeding the dispossed Africans at Mamuthla in Kimberley attained world-wide recognition. He is in the United States on a coast-to-coast speaking tour, and hopes to return to South Africa in October. There has been some speculation, however, as to whether he would be granted a return visa. He is accompanied by his wife, Margaret. Both are citizens of the United States.

The bishop was educated at Leeds University and Oxford University in England, obtaining honors in history and law. He trained for the ministry at Cuddleson College, Oxford. While at UCLA he was active in the civil rights field. He was a member of the Episcopal Society for Cultural and Racial Unity and president of a Los Angeles fair housing organization.

Courses Set On Christian Philosophy

The history of Christian thought in the era that saw the beginnings of Protestantism will be the subject of a University of California Extension adult education class this fall. Also scheduled is a course on selected topics in the philosophy of religion.

Dr. Ralph L. Moellering, campus pastor of the University Lutheran Chapel in Berkeley will teach "History of Christian Thought in Europe, 1415 to 1600." He will cover such courses as the relation of the Renaissance to the Reformation, the genesis of Luther's ideas, the theology of Calvin and the counter-Reformation.

The course will be given Monday evenings, starting October 3, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Room 247 of Dwinelle Hall on the UC campus.

"Selected Topics in the Philosophy of Religion" will deal with specific philosophical problems, including the status of evil, religious experience, and arguments intended to prove the existence of God.

This course will be presented in two locations: on Tuesdays at 7 p.m., starting Oct. 4, in Room 228 of Dwinelle Hall under the direction of Dr. Jerry S. Clegg; on Saturdays at 9:30 a.m., starting Oct. 8, at the UC Extension Center, Laguna and Market streets, San Francisco, under the direction of Dr. C. Franklin Kelley.

Star Of The Sea Lay Officers To Be Installed

Officers of two new lay organizations of Sausalito's Star of the Sea Church will be installed at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the church's parish hall.

Mrs. William T. Duggan will take office as president of Star of the Sea Women's Guild and Joseph W. Fontana as the men's club president.

Others to be installed are Mrs. H. J. Keizer and Mrs. Frank Fuetsch as vice presidents of the women's group and James E. Muldoon as the men's vice president.

The subsequent meeting, according to Rev. James M. Moher, the parish administrator, will be devoted largely to planning fall and winter activities.

Christian Science Talks Tomorrow

"Facing Up to a New School Year" will be tomorrow's topic on the Christian Science Church's radio series, "The Bible Speaks to You," at 7:30 a.m. on KGO.

A lesson-sermon on "Matter" will be presented at all Christian Science churches tomorrow.

NEW COMMANDER — Capt. William C. Williams of 112 West Street, Sausalito, has succeeded Capt. Robert J. Brazil as commanding officer of M Company, Marin County's Marine Corps Reserve unit. Captain Williams, a municipal bond analyst for Bank of America, entered the Marines in 1958 and has served two years active duty.

Speed Villain In Labor Day Toll

SACRAMENTO (CNS) —Speed was the big villain in accidents over the recent Labor Day weekend in California, which resulted in 59 deaths.

The California highway patrol said the cause of about one-third of all accidents over the weekend was speed — exceeding the maximum speed limit, exceeding posted limits, and driving too fast for conditions.

An examination of representative accidents from the Labor Day weekend showed that violation of right of way was the next most frequent accident cause, accounting for 8.7 per cent. This was followed by driving on the wrong side of the road, 6.9 per cent, and driving while intoxicated, 6.7 per cent.

Alcohol again played a big part in the traffic accidents, Crittenden said, with 16 per cent of all drivers in Labor Day weekend accidents having been drinking. Of all drivers killed during the period, 17.2 per cent had been drinking.

Minority Hiring Conclave Slated

The Marin County Human Rights Commission will try to arrange a meeting with the unions of all trades and crafts to discuss minority hiring, Mrs. Bella M. Aaron, liaison officer for the commission, announced today.

The commission met Thursday night at the Civic Center with representatives of the plasterers, laborers and carpenters unions to discuss minority employment. Other unions were not represented but sent a letter asking for a meeting of all crafts.

Mrs. Aaron said she hopes to set the meeting within the next 10 days.

She said questions such as the apprenticeship program, testing methods used, recruitment procedures, and system of promotions will be discussed.

Elderly Housing Project Hearing Set Wednesday

A public hearing on the proposed elderly housing project in Homestead Valley and several other hearings will be held on Wednesday, not Tuesday, by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

The supervisors regular Tuesday meeting will be cut short so board members can attend the dedication of Point Reyes National Seashore by Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson.

The supervisors' schedule for Wednesday is as follows:

9 a.m. — Marin's War on Poverty program. Supervisors will discuss the bylaws and budget for the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council.

9:30 a.m — Hearing on the proposed ordinance to ban back yard burning.

10:30 Elderly housing in Homestead Valley.

11:15 — Hearing on the proposed ordinance for dedication of park land in subdivisions.

Almonte District

Almonte Sanitary District directors will hold their September meeting Monday instead of Sept. 26, Board Chairman Robert A. Alexander said today. Several directors will be out of town on the later date, he explained. The board meets at 8 p.m. at the district office 226 Shoreline Highway.

Burglary Jury Acquits Pair Of Teen-Agers

Larry Cleary Walker and William Lloyd Bland, 18-year-old Marin City youths, were acquitted Thursday night of burglary charges by a Marin Superior Court jury.

The jury deliberated about five hours.

Walker, of 31 Cole Drive, and Bland, of 99 Cole Drive, were acused of entering the home of Mrs. Frances M. Staub at 30 Glenn Drive, Mill Valley, on May 16.

Walker, who is serving time in state prison for auto theft, was represented by Robert I. Conn of the public defender's office. Attorney Harold R. Hayes defended Bland. Prosecuting the case before Judge Thomas F. Keating was Joshua Thomas, deputy district attorney. Trial started Sept. 12.

Couple Injured In Miracle Mile Crash

William Delay and Jean Criss, both of 13 Medway Road, San Anselmo, were treated at Marin General Hospital Thursday night for injuries the hospital said they suffered in an automobile accident.

Delay was treated for a cut left arm, and Jean Criss was treated for a cracked rib. United Ambulance said police called for an ambulance for a traffic accident on the Miracle Mile at 5:55 p.m. and Jean Criss was taken by ambulance to the hospital, but both San Rafael and San Anselmo police denied knowing anything of the accident.

Santa Venetia Teen Arraigned In Check Charge

Dennis Yates, 19, of 663 Vendola Drive, Santa Venetia, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a felony charge of possession of a worthless check with intention of defrauding another person.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas scheduled plea entry for 1:30 p.m. Monday and continued bail at $1,100.

Yates, arrested by San Rafael police, was wanted for allegedly cashing two checks that had been stolen from Milton C. Beck of 633 Vendola Drive, whom Yates had been visiting. Officers questioned him Monday, then lost him in a frantic footrace. He was found again and booked in county jail at noon yesterday.

Second Deck Plan Show For Board

Golden Gate Bridge District directors yesterday authorized a full-scale presentation to the San Francisco Board of Supervisors of plans for a second deck on the bridge.

In a letter to the bridge board, chairman John A. Ertola of the San Francisco supervisors' streets and transportation committee asked such a presentation before the committee next Thursday.

Directors decided to request a 30-day delay, and designated director Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco to lead the presentation.

How to keep in the swim

...and keep your interests very much afloat

It's pretty obvious we're telling you that the I-J will keep you "up," keep your mind buoyant, keep you in the swim of affairs.

But maybe it's NOT so obvious that your newspaper can do so many things IN ONE ISSUE that no other medium of communication can approach.

Think about it: immediate news of the entire world . . . today's happenings for tonight's reading. We take you to Viet Nam, to Washington . . . to the Giants game wherever they play. To city hall, to the top food specials at your market. To the courts, to auto row; we run off today's stocks for you, show you the latest in fashions, and tell you what's on TV.

But we don't just flash the news; we report it, check on it, give you details that give you full perspective and thorough information. Sports, women's affairs, financial news, the latest in education, politics, science, health, menus, entertainment — the list is never-ending.

Look what it does for you: opens your mind; gives you a sense of belonging to your community; improves your judgment on public affairs. Yes, and through the ads, leads you to exciting buys and welcome savings.

Night after night, more than 40,000 Marin families plunge in to the Independent-Journal — and come up better informed. Great way to stay in the swim!

NO NURSERY SCENE, THIS

There's an old nursery jingle about "rub-a-dub-dub . . . men in a tub," but this tiny raft overloaded with fighting men couldn't be it. The South Vietnamese soldiers and their American adviser, S/Sgt. Raymond Spivey of Fort Pierce, Fla., are using a fiberglass raft to navigate a monsoon-swollen river about 50 miles from Saigon, during patrol activities. (AP Wirephoto)

Point Reyes Land Swap Cleared Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The General Accounting Office reported yesterday it found no malfeasance or corruption on the part of public officials in its inquiry into proposed land exchanges for the Point Reyes National Seashore.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., presented the 200-page report to the senate for printing in the Congressional Record.

It covered events leading to controversy between Charles H. Stoddard, former director of the Bureau of Land Management, and Russell E. Getty, former director of the bureau's Oregon office. Both Stoddard and Getty were removed from their jobs June 2 by Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall and assigned to other duties. Getty resigned.

The auditors concluded there was no indication that federal officials made improper commitments to A. W. Sweet before he filed applications for exchange of his interests in land within the boundary of the Point Reyes Park in Marin County for public domain lands in California and Oregon.

Sweet, the report said, became interested in the proposed land exchange "through the suggestion of a non-federal source" and the auditors found no evidence, in comparing it with other exchange procedures, that federal officials imposed secrecy on the proposed exchange of Oregon lands.

Painter Union Case Near Jury

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The murder conspiracy trial of Sacramento painting contractor Norman Call was in recess today as Judge Norman Elkington prepared final instructions to the jury.

The case will go to the seven women, five man jury after the judge instructs the panel on legal points.

Call and four others, who will be tried later, are accused of planning the shotgun slaying of Dow Wilson, an official of the San Francisco Painters' Union.

Closing arguments by both sides were made Thursday.

Walked Into Window

Mrs. Meredith Knock, 49, of 136 Lakeside Drive, Corte Madera, was treated at Marin General Hospital at 8:30 p.m. Thursday for cuts on her wrists and knees after she walked into a plate glass window at her home.

POLITICAL BRIEFS

Jazz Artist To Play At Pro-Storer Event

Jazz trombonist Turk Murphy and his band will hold a concert aboard the Harbor Queen excursion boat when it tours San Francisco Bay Sept. 25 to benefit the congressional candidacy of Marin County Supervisor Thomas T. Storer. The excursion will take on passengers at 5 p.m. from Fisherman's Wharf and at 6 p.m. from the Windjammer Restaurant in Tiburon. It will return to Tiburon at 9:30 p.m. and to Fisherman's Wharf at 10:30 p.m.

P. R. FIRM

Assemblyman William T. Bagley (R-Seventh District) has again named the public relations firm of Ed Skevin and Associates to handle his campaign for re-election.

BILL HAILED

Rep. Donald H. Clausen (R-First District) praised the passage Tuesday by the House of the National Sea Grant College and Program Act of 1966 The vote "amounts to final passage of this landmark legislation," said Clausen, co-author of the bill. He expressed confidence a House-Senate conference would produce agreement quickly on the final bill.

McCARTHY AIDES

Attorney Raymond Shone of San Rafael will again serve as campaign chairman for State Sen. John F. McCarthy (R.-13th District). Shone has been McCarthy's volunteer chairman in every one of his five Senate campaigns.

New women's chairmen have been named for McCarthy's campaign. They are Mrs. Rolfe C. Croker, co-chairman in San Rafael; Mrs. Frances Brenner, Greenbrae; Mrs. Kenneth C. Lucas, co-chairman in Tiburon-Belvedere, and Mrs. Charles F. White, Ross.

Sen. McCarthy has been granted honorary membership in the California Correctional Officers Assn. Officer A. F. Mello of San Quentin Prison presented the award.

UDALL TALK

Assemblyman Pearce Young, democratic candidate for State Senate, said he discussed Marin County conservation projects and the proposed damming of the Grand Canyon with Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall when the secretary visited Marin last week.

REAGAN AIDES

Additional appointments have been made to the Finance Committee of the Reagan for Governor Committee in Marin. New members are Alfred E. Castle, Theodore B. Craig, Charles I. Daniels Jr., Edwin Grundstrom, Herbert M. Hanson Jr., Walter Kieckhefer, Peter Martin, William H. McDevitt, William P. Murray Jr., Melville Owen, Arthur P. Vogel, Edward K. Wachsman and William O. Wiessich.

CRANSTON FETE

State Controller Alan Cranston will be honored at a reception Friday at the Woodland Avenue home of Roger Kent in Kentfield from 5:30 to 8 p.m. He will speak on "California Politics 1966—The Year of Choice."

STORER PICNIC

Two teen-age bands from San Rafael, the Lexington Minutemen and Davy Jones and the Lockermen, will perform at a benefit family picnic for congressional candidate Thomas T. Storer tomorrow from 1 to 6 p.m. at the Roger Kent home in Kentfield.

Storer and Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall discussed the Marin Supervisor's plan for a Redwood National Park during Udall's recent visit to Marin.

Foster Parent Meet

Marin County Social Services Department is holding informational meetings for prospective foster parents on the fourth Tuesday of every month at 7:30 p.m. in room 400 of the Civic Center. An article in Wednesday's Independent-Journal incorrectly stated that the meetings are held on Thursdays.

Deputies Shuffled By Sheriff

A shuffle of personnel which includes assigning a sheriff's inspector to the civil department for serving of civil and criminal warrants was disclosed yesterday by Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos.

He said the inspector, Bowan Bridges Jr., and Deputy Raymond Tschirgi, who has been in the patrol division, will be reassigned to the civil department starting next week because of manpower shortages in that department.

Sheriff Mountanos, who said such personnel changes are made according to work load needs, said the civil department currently has one man on vacation, a second was transferred earlier to another post, and a third is ill.

Another change, placing of Earl Cummesky, supervisor of the identification bureau, in charge of investigation of all worthless and forged check cases, was also announced. Cummesky will also continue in his present capacity.

Deputy Carl Mead has been assigned to replace Deputy Edward Alves as transportation officer, Sheriff Mountanos said. Mead has been in the patrol division. Alves suffered a heart attack as result of heat prostration while transferring a prisoner, and is now convalescing.

President of the Novato City Employees Assn. is Henry Anderson and vice president is Harold E. Owen Jr.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Hoarseness Is Symptom, Not Disease And Should Be Examined

VAN DELLEN

Hoarseness is a symptom rather than a disease. When the disorder lasts longer than 10 days, examination must be made to determine the cause. This should be done by a physician who has the equipment and the knowledge to make a thorough study of the vocal cords.

The main worry about chronic hoarseness is that it may be caused by a malignancy. But cancer is only sibility that a more innocent disturbance is responsible, because hoarseness stems from any condition that interferes with the functioning, tension, or vibration of one or both vocal cords. Paralysis, scars, secretions, and inflammation are not unusual causes.

TUMORS ALSO interfere with the workings of the voice box, but the majority of these lesions are not malignant and do not jeopardize life. But even when cancer is to blame, cure is the rule provided treatment is instituted early.

Acute laryngitis is a form of the disease that is associated with a cold or upper respiratory infection. It lasts two to three days and relief is obtained by resting the voice and avoiding irritants, such as smoke, fumes, and dust. A vaporizer is soothing, more so when a teaspoonful of compound tincture of benzoin in added to each quart of water used. If hoarseness persists, other possibilities come up for consideration.

STRENUOUS USE of the voice often causes thickening of the cords which may develop into tumors of a benign nature. These singer's nodes favor not only singers but those who are forced to raise the voice or shout. The growth rarely becomes larger than a pea. In some instances a polyp forms which has the appearance of a miniature punching bag. Surgical removal of these nodules is best in the majority of cases, but now and then a good response is obtained by complete voice rest over a long period of time.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if a stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

DAYS TO MONTHS

L. W. rites: How long does it take to recover from jaundice?

REPLY

This depends upon the cause. In infectious hepatitis, for example, the condition may last for a few days to several months. Jaundice resulting from obstruction of the flow of bile by stone will persist until the rock is removed. Occasionally the origin of jaundice is difficult to determine and exploratory surgery may be needed. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a leaflet on jaundice.

BECOME CALLOUSED

B. K. writes: i find that guitar lessons leave my fingers sore. Will calluses form in time so that I won't find practicing so painful?

REPLY

Those who practice long enough must develop calluses, otherwise the ordinary guitar would have fallen out of favor long ago.

SCALP WEN

J. G. writes: I have had a small wen on my scalp for years. Recently it started to grow. Does this mean cancer?

REPLY

No, provided the original diagnosis is correct. On the other hand, removal is so simple it would be better to have the lesion taken out rather than entertain such gloomy thoughts.

LATE MIGRAINE

Mrs. B. writes: Could migraine attacks first appear in middle age?

REPLY

Yes, but this is the exception. In women, migraine usually starts early in life and subsides with the menopause.

$ee for yourself . . .

They're pretty amazing, these I-J Want-Ads. They can sell a tractor, get a job, find a puppy. And do it fast, at low cost.

Do they have a secret power? Nuclear energy? Special ingredient? No. Something better than that—human interest. The interest of more than 40,000 families in Marin who read I-J Classified night after night. To sell what they want, and find what they need.

Behind every I-J Want-Ad, then, is this amazing human drive to find a bargain, or sell one . . . to look to the largest single marketplace in Marin County for action. Imagine, thousands of people looking, weighing, deciding to buy . . . all because this is the great LOCAL MEDIUM that meets every local need.

When you advertise a sofa, a horse, a hi-fi, an appliance, the huge I-J reader audience SELECTS YOUR OFFER in the classification under which you run your Want-Ad. Can't miss it! Wouldn't miss it. (Because they know other buyers are in the market, too!).

Buyers are actually LOOKING FOR YOUR AD! That's the secret. Human interest that moves into action fast.

Better get your ad in . . . and see for yourself. But stay handy to the phone. There's nothing like I-J Want-Ads to ring the bell!

San Rafael's Growing Riviera-By-The-Bay

Visitors to and residents of Point San Pedro —which lies partly in and partly outside San Rafael city limits — are constantly treated to a fascinating variety of views. A drive out San Pedro Road, beginning from the lower left, takes one past multitudes of waterside apartments and homes, yacht harbors such as the clearly visible Loch Lomond, tree-shaded homes of the Country Club section, the lagoon and hillside homes of Peacock Gap, and the landmarks of the old McNear brickyard at the point's tip. Swinging back on the other side of the peninsula, San Pedro road meanders along the cliffs, passing famed China Camp, swoops down to the pickleweed flats, then through lush hills still undeveloped, before coming to Santa Venetia's homes and shops, visible in the upper center of the picture. Completing the looping drive is a sight of the Marin County Civic Center created by architect Frank Lloyd Wright. (Photo courtesy Aero Photographers, Inc., Sausalito)

Terra Linda Loses Grid Opener To Clayton Valley

By GARY TISCHLER

Terra Linda's hopeful football team outrushed, outpassed, out first-downed and generally outgained Clayton Valley at San Rafael High School's field last night.

The Trojans also lost the game.

Three pass interceptions, a fumble, a quick kick that was too short and 70 yards in key penalties undid the Trojans and handed Clayton Valley a season-opening victory by the margin of a second-quarter two-yard touchdown, 6-0.

The quick kick came in the second quarter and set up the only touchdown of the game. The Trojans with first and 14 on their own four-yard line, pulled a fast one and dropped a quick punt that unfortunately was retrieved by Clayton Valley back on the Terra Linda 43.

Clayton Valley, behind some powerful footwork by 173-pound halfback Rick Gay, and cool guidance by quarterback Bob McEachran, quickly drove for the hills and scored on a first-and-goal two-yard blast by Gay with eight minutes left in the half. The try for the extra point was blocked by Larry Collins.

That was all the scoring for the night, except for a half a touchdown by Clayton Valley. The winners had taken advantage of a lateral fumble by Terra Linda on the Trojan 14-yard line and had goal-to-go on the two-yard line in the final quarter when the Trojans knocked them for three successive jarring losses back to the nine. Substitute quarterback Bill Emery tossed a TD strike to end Chuck Cambera but the play was called back on an illegal receiver penalty.

Novato and Marin Catholic win their openers, but Redwood and Tamalpais lose. See page 24.

The Trojans came close several times and almost threatened to pull it out in a heart-checking drive to beat the clock at both ends of each half.

Quarterback Bill Lee, with Terra Linda on the Clayton Valley 37 chucked for six yards then tossed an arching pass to halfback Rich Jones on the seven-yard line just as time ran out in the first half.

But it was in the fading moments of the game, with the Trojans in a big hole dug by a 15-yard penalty that Lee, who passed for 102 yards, made a desperate grab at winning the game with long passes.

He threw a 17-yard strike to End Tom Flautt on the Clayton 31-yard line with 43 second left then went to his right side to Rod Powell for a 13-yarder and another first down.

And with just 21 seconds left came the play that makes coaches have bad dreams. Lee spotted Flautt in the left side of the end zone, lofted a pass just above his fingertips. The ball skitted off Flautt's fingertips, was tapped around by a pair of Clayton defenders, bounced up in the air again and, as Powell and three Clayton defenders all dove for it, it wound up in the hands of Clayton Valley's Dwayne Ferriera and that for all it mattered, ended it. Clayton ran out the clock by dropping the quarterback on his face for three downs.

The Trojans were hurt by 70 yards in killing penalties.

Lee and Jones with 58 and 56 yards respectively, led the losers on the ground.

Giants Sink Another Game Behind In N.L. Race

Notes And Quotes On Marin's Tourney Of Stars Tomorrow

OKAY, NOW that you've decided to attend tomorrow's third annual Marin Invitational Tournament of Stars at Peacock Gap, I'll clue you in on what to expect.

Andy Williams will tee off at 12:24 p.m. If you have any trouble identifying him, he'll be the one wearing a sweater.

I imagine John Brodie, the millionaire quarterback, will have a large following, too. In fact I'm going to follow him with a vacuum just in case his money belt breaks.

BRODIE WILL be playing in a foursome with Dr. Douglas Ramsey, the distinguished orthopedist. The good doctor may be able to tell Brodie why the 49ers have pulled so many boners this season. (Dum-dee-dum-dum.)

Incidentally, there'll be enough past and present football talent there to excite old and young alike. Besides Brodie will be Ernie Nevers of Tiburon, Tommy Harmon up from L.A. and Y.A. Quarter, the great old tittleback.

DON'T BOTHER to ask Father Scannell, the Pasture Pastor, how to pronounce his last name because he'll crack: "If you're rich it's Scan-ELL; if you're poor it's SCAN-ell."

Gary Morton, a southpaw golfer, is not only a very funny comedian but also is famous as the husband of Lucille Ball, and we all hope Lucy joins the gallery tomorrow.

OTHER FAMOUS husbands or ex-husbands on hand will be John Agar (Shirley Temple) and Buddy Rogers (Mary Pickford.)

THE NAME Bob Wilke may not ring a bell with you but his face will. He's played so many villainous roles in the flicks that he'll scare you right out of your pants. If your kids are along, bring an extra supply of diapers. You might even bring along an extra pair of togs for yourself, Bunkie.

DONALD O'CONNOR is coming to Marin fresh from a successful run in Las Vegas. On the stage, that is. I don't know how he did athletically down there.

You'll be able to tell the Rowan and Martin comedy team from the way they play golf. Martin will be out in the rough because Rowan's the straight man.

CLINT EASTWOOD and Richard Long will probly need haircuts because they've played many westerns. Forgive them if they appear to be unstable in Marin's civilization.

Robert Colbert is remembered for his portrayal of Maverick after James Garner popularized the title role. Colbert currently is starring in "Time Tunnel," so bring your own miner's lamp to follow his foursome.

CHARLES BATEMAN, star of TV's "Four Faces West," will be a one-man foursome, I suppose.

Robert Steele's gallery should be conspicuous by its maturity. He's an old, OLD time cowboy star and one of my favorites. I can still see him—the good guy—shooting the bad guys daid and riding off into the setting sun in a cloud of dust with some cute little cupcake riding sidesaddle. (Sigh) The good old days.

KRON-TV WILL film several segments of the weekend's activities for a possible show to be shown later on how Hollywood stars donate their time to charity and have fun doing it.

SIXTY TOURNAMENT invitees — prominent businessmen all — are paying $150 each to play in this thing. I know these "Solvent Sixty" can afford it and that many of them have been known to spend that much just for lunch, but still I think they rate a rousing round of applause for their contribution.

AND FINALLY, let me remind you that before you go to bed tonight I want you to call out your little kid for inspection. Count his arms and legs and fingers and toes. If they're all there and in working order, and if his mind is alert, then you have so much to be thankful for. Then you should be happy to attend tomorrow's Marin Youth Fund benefit tournament with the warm feeling that your money will help less fortunate youngsters who are, after all, the heart and soul of this fine event.

TROJAN MAKES QUITE A CATCH

Terra Linda High School's Rich Jones reaches high to haul in a pass during the Trojans' football opener last night in San Rafael. Defending on the play are Clayton Valley's Don Rath (38) and Mike Haluchak (27). Jones juggled the ball, but held on for a 19-yard gain. Terra Linda lost the game, 6-0. S.F. Now Trails Dodgers By Four

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—New York rookie Bud Harrelson's daring steal of home means the San Francisco Giants must win 11 of their remaining 14 games to catch Los Angeles should the Dodgers split their last 16 contests.

Those dreary statistics faced the Giants today after they lost 5-4 last night to the Mets, who scored three times in a wild ninth inning featured by Harrelson's two-out theft.

"It looks all uphill now," someone suggested to San Francisco Manager Herman Franks. Franks merely grunted and drew hard on a dying cigar.

"I'm going with (Juan) Marichal," said Franks about today's game against the Mets. He had hoped to save his 22-game winner for two shots at the Pittsburgh Pirates, starting Sunday.

But when a third-place team is four games from the top at this stage of the National League race, no one can be choosy.

Harrelson's steal of home off veteran reliever Lindy McDaniel made it 5-3 Mets. Because the Giants came up with a run in their half of the inning, it was the play of the game — perhaps of the season.

Reliever Bob Priddy had not allowed a hit since coming in during the fifth inning and carried a 3-2 lead into the ninth. But he was yanked for left-hander Billy Hoeft after walking the first batter, Chuck Hiller.

Hoeft struck out Ron Hunt and Danny Napoleon, with pinch-runner Shaun Fitzmaurice stealing second on the latter strikeout. It didn't look too important at the time, but Hoeft suddenly fell apart.

He gave up a pinch single to Bob Taylor, who moved to second as the Giants threw to the plate trying to prevent the tie. And Harrelson's second triple of the game put the Mets ahead and chased Hoeft. Harrelson was batting .170 before the game.

Mets third-base coach Whitey Herzog noticed McDaniel was ignoring the 22-year-old Harrelson on his first pitch, a strike to Ed Bressoud.

"He didn't look on the first pitch," Herzog told Harrelson. "If he doesn't look on the second, go right ahead."

Herzog said later, "It would have been a close play if he (catcher Tom Haller) would have held onto the ball. Lindy doesn't take much of a windup."

The Giants got their first two runs off starter Jack Fisher on homers by Willie McCovey and Haller. McCovey's 30th was a 480-foot blast, one of the longest home runs in Candlestick Park history. Haller's was his 25th, but only his first since Aug. 14.

Ken Henderson doubled off Fisher in the eighth and checked across on a single by Willie Mays. That looked like it for the Giants until Harrelson started to work.

The young shortstop was recalled from Jacksonville of the International League Aug. 13.

Dodgers Making It A Runaway

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports writer

What pennant race?

There was, or at least there seemed to be, one in the National League only a few days ago, but now you can't be sure.

The first-place Los Angeles Dodgers, using the same tactic they used in capturing the pennant last year, increased their lead to 3½ games over Pittsburgh and four over San Francisco last night by defeating the Pirates 5-1 while the Giants lost to New York 5-4.

The tactic the Dodgers used last year was simple — win, win and win some more. Now they're doing it again.

Just one week ago the Dodgers were tied for second with San Francisco, each 1½ games behind the Pirates.

Since then Los Angeles has won all seven of its games — the winning streak is eight overall — while Pittsburgh has dropped four of five and the Giants four of seven.

That combination has been enough to open for the Dodgers' the biggest lead since the Giants led the Pirates by four games on June 28.

In winning the 1965 pennant, the Dodgers, who were 4½ games out at this time, won 13 straight games and 15 of their last 16, while the Giants managed only a 9-8 record in that time.

Perhaps, it's such a situation that prompted last night's losing pitcher, Bob Veale, to say:

"We're not out of it yet. They have 11 games to play on the road. Who knows, maybe they might lose eight or nine of them."

And maybe they won't, at least not while they have Sandy Koufax pitching. The brilliant left-hander stopped the Pirates on five hits and posted his 24th victory, most in the majors, against eight defeats.

"Sore arm my foot," Pittsburgh's Roberto Clemente muttered after the game. "I not say his arm not stiff after game, but it can't be hurting when he's pitching. If it did, he couldn't throw that hard. He threw as hard as he ever has."

In other NL games Atlanta whipped Cincinnati 7-0, Houston topped Philadelphia 6-4 and St. Louis swept Chicago 3-1 and 4-0.

In the American League, Chicago blanked Baltimore 4-0, Detroit trimmed Cleveland 3-1, Boston nipped California 5-4 and Minnesota edged New York 2-1. A power failure forced suspension of the Kansas City-Washington game.

Helping Koufax was Lou Johnson, who hit a three-run homer off Veale in the third inning. Koufax extended his consecutive scoreless inning streak to 21 before Gene Alley drove home a Pirate run in the seventh with a sacrifice fly.

Rookie Pat Jarvis won his fifth straight game, pitching a four-hitter against Cincinnati. Joe Torre drove in two runs with two singles as Atlanta handed Jim Maloney his eighth setback against 14 victories.

Chuck Harrison's fourth-inning, grand-slam homer carried Houston past Philadelphia and Chris Short, now 18-9. Harrison also doubled and scored in the sixth.

Bob Gibson became the majors' fifth 20-game winner in St. Louis' opening-game triumph over Chicago. He received help from Curt Flood, who drove in all three Cardinal runs.

Mike Shannon's three-run homer powered the Cardinals in the second game. The eighth-inning blow broke up a scoreless duel between St. Louis' Al Jackson and the Cubs' Rich Nye.

Oakland Raiders Christen New Stadium Tomorrow

OAKLAND (AP) — The city of Oakland and Alameda County play their ace in the battle for Northern California sports patronage tomorrow when they open the stadium portion of their $26.5 million complex.

Oakland's Raiders and the Kansas City Chiefs battle on the football field as the opening attraction with a crowd of about 45,000 expected at the inaugural.

Built for both football and baseball, the new stadium currently has only football as a tenant. Robert Nahas, president of Coliseum, Inc., says 1968 appears the target date for baseball.

Kansas City might well spoil the inaugural for Oakland fans. The Chiefs bombed the defending American Football League champion Buffalo Bills 42-20 in the season opener while Oakland was downed by Houston 31-0.

Nahas points out the stadium is being opened before the scheduled completion date. Radio broadcasts have warned fans to arrive well before the scheduled 1:30 p.m. kickoff in the nationally televised game.

The Chiefs' split end, Chris Burford, returns to his home town where six years of planning have gone into the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum Complex. It won't be until November that the coliseum portion is opened.

With three-tiers, the Oakland stadium will hold 53,000 fans for football and is accessible by freeway from most parts of the San Francisco Bay area.

During the formative years, the Raiders played in Kezar Stadium, home of the San Francisco 49ers, Candlestick Park, home of the Giants and cozy Frank Youell Field, a temporary home in Oakland the past few years.

Built 23 feet below sea level, the coliseum isn't expected to experience the wind problems which have plagued San Francisco's Candlestick.

Kansas City presents the problems. In racing undefeated through the pre-season games and the opener against Buffalo, the Chiefs have been led by veteran Len Dawson, former Purdue ace, and Pete Beathard, the strike thrower from Southern California.

Veteran Bert Coan has proved so strong at the running back slot that last year's Heisman Trophy winner, Mike Garrett of Southern Cailfornia, rates as second string.

The loss at Houston was the first time in 38 games that a Raider aggregation has been held scoreless.

Coach John Rauch of the Raiders declared, "We'll have to be tougher to put pressure on Dawson and Beathard. If we don't, they will run around back there until someone is clear."

At the same time, Rauch hopes his quarterbacks, Cotton Davidson and Tom Flores, will be given time to set up their shots.

The Raiders have a new kicker for the stadium inaugural. Mike Eischeid from Upper Iowa University was activated to do the booting and Mike Mercer, with the Raiders since 1963, was released on waivers yesterday.

MRS. JOHN HURLEY RAPS HOLE-IN-ONE

Mrs. John J. Hurley of Peacock Gap Women's Golf Club made a hole-in-one yesterday.

Mrs. Hurley used a 3-wook to sink the 150-yard gem on the third hole. The witnesses were Mrs. A. S. Cole and Mrs. Richard DeKay.

Ron Cerrudo Is Upset In Norcal Golf

Ron Cerrudo of San Rafael was upset by Harry Taylor of Hayward yesterday in the Northern California Golf Assn. Amateur Tournament, 1-up, in the quarter-finals at Spyglass Hill golf course.

Thus Cerrudo, the defending tourney champion, will not repeat.

Vic Loustalot of Sacramento was to meet Bernard Magnusson of Atherton today in the 36-hole final match in the NCGA. Magnusson yesterday beat Steve Boucke of Oakland, 6 and 5, and Tom Culligan III of Hillsborough dumped Ray Arrino of Sacramento, 3 and 2. Both of these matches were in the quarter-final upper bracket. Magnusson won the upper bracket semi-final 6 and 5 over Culligan; while in the same round with Cerrudo, Loustalot defeated Ross Randall of Alameda in two extra holes.

Novato Triumphs In Opener

Like a football Job, the Novato Hornets overcame a variety of misfortunes, including four pass interceptions, one first down in the second half and an untimely power failure, to hang on to a 7-6 victory at College Park High in Concord last night.

Quarterback Harold Fain, who otherwise had a miserable night, made his one completion count for all it was worth when he flipped a six-yard scoring pass to halfback Frank Perachiotti in the second quarter to account for Novato's only TD. Chuck Day's kick for the extra point provided the margin of victory.

College Park, huffing and puffing and knocking on the door all night, came across only once, after a pass interception on the Novato 15-yard line but its try for the extra point failed.

College Park outgained the Hornets every which way (202-85 total) but could not overcome a real Scottish Novato defense when it counted.

Three times in the second half, during which the Hornets never got past their 50-yard line, College Park was inside the Novato five-yard line but was stopped cold.

After College Park had scored, the Hornets' Gary Dinkel returned the kickoff 60 yards and was immediately thrown in the dark. A power failure knocked out the lights for more than 20 minutes and when the lights went on again the game resumed. Novato never regained its offensive momentum.

Perachiotti led Novato rushers with 43 yards in 10 tries for a 4.3 average.

Marin 'Cats Win Grid Opener, 21-14

Marin Catholic, winner of only one game last year, unleashed sophomore quarterback Don Fouts on an unsuspecting Albany High School team in the second half last night and bounced to a 21-14 victory at Albany.

Fouts, making his first varsity appearance, wasn't a bit disturbed and uncorked two 60-yard scoring passes, the last one coming with just 15 seconds left on the clock to win the game.

Fouts finished with 162 yards passing in five completions.

Albany had taken a 7-0 lead when an errant Fouts pass was run back 40 yards for a touchdown, but Marin Catholic quickly countered with a sudden 60-yard pass from Fouts to Stan Hardiman that tied it up.

A grind-it-out drive that climaxed with an eight-yard sweep to paydirt by halfback Jim Finnegan put Marin Catholic ahead at the end of the third quarter.

Albany came back to tie it up after a short punt that was returned to the Marin Catholic 15-yard line, from where the losers took it in to score.

Fouts then produced his game-saver when he hit Marty Fredericks, who had eluded Albany defenders, for a 60-yard touchdown pass. Bing Foster kicked all three conversions for the winners.

El Cerrito Ruins Redwood Debut

El Cerrito, running like a tank primed for war, ground out 228 yards on the ground and ran right over Marin County favorite Redwood, 27-14, at El Cerrito last night.

Although heavily outrushed on the ground, the Giants still made a tight affair of it for three quarters but a weak Redwood kicking game eventually put El Cerrito in the drivers seat for keeps.

A feeble 19-yard quick kick by Redwood put El Cerrito in business early in the first quarter as the winners punched across from the 26-yard line in four plays.

Redwood came right back, churning up the field in a 70-yard drive in 16 plays, capped by a seven-yard touchdown run by halfback Harvey Hand. Ken Johnson's kick tied it up at 7-7 at the end of the first quarter.

After a scoreless second quarter, El Cerrito corked up a 70-yard drive of its own in a quick 7 plays, scoring on a 37-yard touchdown pass.

Redwood, still game, tied it up when Stan Tobiason intercepted an errant pass on the El Cerrito 30-yard line. Quarterback Kevin Wilson then tossed a 27-yard scoring pass to end Joe Cooper and kicked the extra point to tie it up for the last time.

The boot came back to haunt Redwood then. An on-side kick was recovered by El Cerrito at the midfield stripe and five plays later resulted in another touchdown dropping Redwood behind for keeps.

Wilson slipped and fumbled while trying to punt on the one-yard line in the fourth quarter and El Cerrito recovered and scored one play later.

Bob Goalby Has Lead In Portland Open Golf

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) —Bob Goalby held the lead, Pete Brown was one stroke back and Dave Hill was doing the talking after two rounds of the $50,000 Portland Open Golf Tournament.

"Everybody shoots the grass off this course," said Hill, who had just done it. His second straight 68 on the par-72, 6,436-yard Columbia - Edgewater course left him two strokes off the lead.

But Hill was not satisfied as the third round got under way today.

"I was in good position all day," he said. "I had a 32 on the front side (par 36) and could have had 30 easy. I should be a couple shots in front."

He would have been, except for Goalby, Brown, one bad hole and a few putts that barely missed. Hill took a six on a 373-yard hole when his drive hit a tree and his chip back to the fairway went into the rough.

Otherwise, his play was flawless, and he talked like he expected to keep it up through the final two rounds today and tomorrow.

Goalby, meanwhile, ripped off his second straight 67 to keep the lead he shared Thursday with three others. He dropped in seven birdie putts, most of them from less than three feet.

It was a fine round, marred only by a six on the 361-yard sixth hole where he hit a tree.

"The rounds were similar," he said, "but I was closer to the pins with my irons this time."

If the 35-year-old Goalby hangs on through the final 36 holes, it will be his first victory of the year.

Brown, who in 1964 became the first Negro ever to win an official PGA tour, is fast becoming a crowd favorite.

Eyes began turning his way Thursday when he fired a 67, including a 135-yard eagle.

Yesterday, he stormed in with four long birdie putts on the final nine holes for a 68. That won him more fans.

A long hitter, the powerful Brown said he is playing his best golf of the year.

Bert Yancey, with some fine iron play, and Gay Brewer, with eight birdie shots, were tied with Hill two strokes off the lead.

Yancey shot his second straight 68 and Brewer came in with a 67. Brewer went over par on three holes.

Billy Casper, the leading money winner on the pro tour, had a bad time on the green and finished with a 71 yesterday.

That left him four shots behind.

The other co-leader in the first round, Bill Martindale, was in trouble repeatedly and fell to a 75.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, matching par again, was 10 strokes behind Goalby and seemed out of contention.

He escaped the 36-hole cut by only two strokes.

COLLEGE OF MARIN

Many 'Ifs' In Tars' 1966 Grid Outlook

By GARY TISCHLER

At first glance, it doesn't look so good.

Thin is the key word for College of Marin's football team. The second-biggest man on the squad is a back. And there are only 42 candidates for a starting berth, only 10 of whom are lettermen. And there is not enough depth to throw a decent shadow.

But at second glance, it doesn't look hopeless either—if.

"If we don't have any crippling injuries to key people," Coach Dick Read said, "then I think we can be pretty good spoilers."

Read has a nice-looking, talent-laden and more or less experienced backfield that, poundage-wise, averages almost as much as the line.

There is freshman halfback Dick Otis, who did all kinds of wondrous things while a prepster at Novato. And Read has a fine quarterback in Al Simontacchi, a transfer from San Francisco State where he played frosh ball. Simontacchi is built like a fullback at 6-2, 210 pounds. And the fullback is built like a lineman. He's Joe DeMasi, 6-2½ and 225 pounds of rock, a former Drake high back. The other halfback is John Clifford, a "measly" 170-pounder. Otis weighs in at 185 pounds.

But the line is the real problem, despite some veterans. There aren't enough linemen and they're not big enough.

Heading the list of veterans is former Novato tackle Steve Koonce, a 195-pound letterman and returning starter. There is also Mark Colombo, a 185-pound back, and Bob Edelstein, a former Drake guard who weighs in at 190. Gary Freuglo, who returns after an absence of two years, is a 205-pounder as is Brian Palmer, an ex-Drake defensive end. Ken Porter, a 5-10 Novato center weighs in at 210 pounds. Ken Washington, a big 230-pounder from Tamalapis returns at guard.

Of these, Palmer, Porter and Washington are expected to start along with Tony Yarish, a 6-2, 190-pound freshman from Novato, Bob Unruh, a 6-3, 125-pound transfer from San Francisco State at cetner, and Joe Cunningham, a 5-10, 170-pound end.

"We're not too big," Read said. "We'll have to make up for it with speed. Some of these boys can move pretty fast and they have quick reactions."

"We'll be passing a lot," he added. "We've got a good quarterback, and we can always give the ball to DaMasi. He's fast and he can get around as well as through."

Read sees Shasta and Yuba as the teams to beat in the Golden Valley Conference along with weighty Santa Rosa.

Marin opens its schedule Sept. 23 with a game at Menlo.

NFL ROUNDUP

Rams Wallop Bears, 31-17

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The Los Angeles Rams can thank George Halas for their resurgence in the National Football League.

It's nothing he did; it's what he didn't do.

The Chicago owner and coach brought Bears assistant coach George Allen to court last January on a breach of contract suit to prevent the coach from becoming skipper of the Rams. But when Halas had the case won, he didn't press charges.

"Allen was a minor issue here" Halas said. "The validity of the contract was the real issue."

Released by the Bears, Allen took charge of the Rams and rebuilt their offense and defense into solid units.

REALIZED EFFORTS

Allen's efforts were realized at the expense of his former boss last night when Los Angeles won its second straight by whipping the Bears 31-17 for Chicago's second loss in a row.

The Bears went ahead 10-0 before quarterback Roman Gabriel hit end Jack Snow with an 84-yard touchdown pass. A three-yard run by Dick Bass put the Rams temporarily ahead 14-10 until Gale Sayers rambled 58 yards for the Bears.

The Ram defense held the Bears scoreless in the second half and stopped Chicago twice after fumbling on their 19-yard line.

Bass put the Rams ahead for good with a one-yard plunge and Lamar Lundy picked off a Rudy Bukich pass and ran it back 33 yards for a TD. Bruce Gossett, who booted four field goals against Atlanta last week, kicked an 11-yarder in the last quarters for Los Angeles.

All other NFL action takes place tomorrow with Cleveland hosting Green Bay, New York visiting Dallas, Minnesota entertaining Baltimore, Washington traveling to St. Louis, Detroit journeying to Pittsburgh and Atlanta playing at Philadelphia.

Riordan Gets Revenge With Win Over Tam

Tamalpais High School's sophomore quarterback made a fabulous debut at Kezar Stadium last night but it wasn't enough to avert a 36-24 thumping at the hands of revenge-minded Riordan.

Don Machin, a highly-touted but untried sophomore, sprayed the air with 23 passes, completed 11 of them for a hefty 256 yards and four touchdowns to account for all of Tam's scoring.

But Tam made only 82 yards on the ground while Riordan was chugging for 205 yards.

Tamalpais jumped off to a 12-0 first-quarter lead when Machin found Mike Biber for a 43-yard TD strike and end Mike Fowler for a 39-yard touchdown pass.

Riordan came back for a pair of second quarter touchdowns but a Machin to Biber scoring pass that went 64 yards left Tamalpais ahead at the half, 18-12.

Riordan relentlessly pounded away in the second half, scoring two touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters, while Tamalpais managed another score 33-yard strike from Machin to in the final period, this time a end Scott Nelson.

Fowler piled up 41 yards in 13 carries and Walker 41 in just four attempts to pace the Tamalpais attack.

Neither team could make connections on extra point tries, with both teams going for a combined 0 for 10.

The Redskins were hurt by a pair of fumbles and two pass interceptions.

San Rafael At Canyon For Opener

San Rafael High School's football team will go into its 1966 football opener against Canyon tonight at 8 o'clock intact, with no injuries to speak of. The game will be at Canyon, in Castro Valley.

That's something that pleases Coach Bob Muster. But he's keeping his fingers crossed.

"Last year we won our opener against McClymonds," he said. "We won the next one too but we got hurt pretty badly."

With everyone hale and hearty, Muster will have a chance to see what kind of football team he has and if his thin but spunky line will hold up to let quarterback Bill Joost do some passing.

Joost will be the key in what looks to be a wide-open type attack.

If the passing fails, three backs and maybe four will try to pick things up with their running. Don Walker, hard pushed by Mike Donahue, will start at fullback and will be flanked on either side by veterans Bill Meredith and Dick Loomis.

Three lettermen will try to buck up a light, inexperienced line. Chris Klyse is the biggest at 210 pounds. Only a junior, Klyse will be at right tackle. The only other veterans are guards, 185-pound Mike Rosso and 160-pound Bob Maglione.

Dave Wagg, a 165-pound junior, will start at center. The ends will be Roger Widmer, 5-10 senior, and Sam Crowell, a 145-pound senior. Both are fine receivers.

Big Yachts Compete Next Week

A dozen beautiful yachts will be competing in the third annual St. Francis Yacht Club Invitational series next week on San Francisco Bay.

Longest of the 12 boats for the race is Ken DeMuese's 87-foot schooner Serena from the San Francisco Yacht Club in Belvedere. Sentimental favorite is Baruna, 72-foot sloop owned by Jim Michael of host St. Francis Yacht Club of San Francisco.

Monday's first race begins at 1 p.m. Wednesday's action starts at 4 p.m., with 1 p.m. starting times for Friday and next Saturday.

Over-all winner of the series has his yacht's name engraved on the St. Francis perpetual trophy, on permanent display at the club. The trophy is made out of gold, silver and platinum and contains rubies, diamonds and sapphires. The trophy is valued at more than $10,000, the most valuable yacht racing trophy in the world.

Michael has been preparing Baruna for the last three months. She's got new sails and rigging and the main boom has been shortened to improve her rating. She placed second last year behind Vixen, a 54-foot sloop owned by Burke Sawyer of Newport Harbor Yacht Club. Vixen will be back to defend her title.

Perhaps the most famous of the entries is Stormvogel, a strong competitor in the 1965 Trans Pacific race.

The entry list for the series:

Serena, 87-foot schooner, Ken DeMuese, San Francisco Y.C.
Stormvogel, 73-foot ketch, C. Bruynzeel, Royal Dutch Y.C.
Baruna, 72-foot sloop, J. Michael, St. Francis Y.C.
Spirit, 66-foot sloop, N. McConvill, Royal Vancouver Y.C.
Orient, 63-foot sloop, Peter Davis, Newport Harbor Y.C.
Athene, 63-foot sloop, J. Wilhite, St. Francis Y.C.
Rampage, 60-foot sloop, Jim Jones, Newport Harbor Y.C.
Sirius, 59-foot sloop, Art Wald, Del Rey Y.C.
Santana, 55-foot sloop, W. Solari, St. Francis Y.C.
Vixen, 54-foot sloop, Burke Sawyer, Newport Harbor Y.C.
Ocean Queen, 54-foot sloop, T. Moseley, St. Francis Y.C.
Zapata, 53-foot sloop, S. McDougall, San Diego Y.C.

Cadets To 'Put Ball Up In The Air'

By ROB HARVEY

San Rafael Military Academy was to open its 1966 football season today at 2:30 p.m., as the Cadets traveled to Santa Rosa to tussle with Piner High School.

It's a young, green club this year, but if the SRMA kids follow the advice of their coaching staff, headed by Larry Fulton, they should win their share of games this year, including those they play in their Bay Counties League.

With only five returning lettermen, three linemen and two backs, Coach Fulton plans to have his thus far healthy troops "put the ball in the air" this year, working out of his pro-set "A" formation — which utilizes the tailbacks as the quarterback, also.

"If the kids can handle their pass blocking assignments, I think we'll do well," Fulton said yesterday while taking a short pause from his busy schedule.

There to put the ball in the air is tailback Tommy Davis, the first string SRMA signal caller for three years running, described by Fulton as "as good a high school passer as you want to see." Tommy is 6-1 and 185 pounds and, well, as Larry said, "he does a real fine job." Rod Henderson, a speedy, little (5-6, 145) junior wing-back was to accompany Davis in the backfield in today's game, along with fullback Jim Lincoln, for whom Fulton also had much praise, and flanker Chris Pidgeon, another junior, with good speed, and good hands.

Also expected to see a lot of action are flanker Lydall Fahden, a 155-pound senior, and Ron Peterson, the last of the two returning lettermen in the backfield, a wing-back who was also outstanding at his defensive halfback position in 1965.

Miles Sheldon (6-1, 200), and Mark Pierce (6-3, 190), both tackles, and Mike Richman, (5-7, 160), a guard, are to be counted on heavily this season to utilize their experience and leadership, being the only other lettermen, especially Richman, who "kind of anchor the line both offensively and defensively," according to Fulton. Tim Thurber (6-0, 170), seems to have earned the starting berth at the tight end slot, while Dave Page (5-11, 160), a lad vaunted as the team's best receiver, mainly because of his aggressiveness and ability to "really catch the ball in a crowd," seems to have the split end slot tied down.

Mark Procter, (5-11, 175), is a senior who will be playing his first year. He's the center, the fellow who initiates every offensive play of the game.

Fulton, a College of Marin and San Francisco State grad, who is assisted by a fine group of coaches, said that most of the boys will go both ways this season. But Dennis Cooke (160) will certainly get the nod at middle guard, and Ted Pollock (170) will be a starting defensive end, for now at least. Fulton's assistants are line coach Charlie Tubbs, who played with the Chicago Bears in the late 1930's; backfield coach Randy Gold, the former all-coast-man at Cal; Don Vachini, a recent graduate of Sonoma State; and Randy Townsend, the jayvee coach, who lends a hand to the line coaching chores.

The Academy's first league tilt is slated for Oct. 14, when the Cadets meet the invasion of Emery, at 3:30 p.m.

Benefit Slated At Gap Sunday

It will be field day for autograph hounds tomorrow at Peacock Gap golf course in San Rafael.

The fairways will be filled with Hollywood personalities and top-flight Northern California amateurs competing in the third annual Marin Invitational Tournament of Stars.

Starting at 8:32 a.m., the tourney will run throughout the day, with the last foursome leaving the first tee at 12:24 p.m. That 12:24 foursome includes Andy Williams and he will be swinging, not singing.

PEANUTS, LANGE

Charles Schulz, creator of Peanuts comic strip, will be there. So will Jim Lange of Lucas Valley, ex-San Francisco disc jockey who has made it big in television.

Besides the Hollywood stars, there will be plenty of golfing stars who'll be trying to tame Peacock Gap's 6,451-yard, par-71 layout. San Rafael's Ron Cerrudo, who yesterday lost his chance for a third straight Northern California amateur title, also will be trying to win low honors in the Marin Invitational for the third straight time.

The husky 21-year-old Cerrudo was under par in both the 1964 and '65 tourney of stars. He shot a 70 the first year, tying the low score of the day, and last year stroked a three-under-par 68.

And there's John Brodie, who was a pro golfer for a short time before he realized he could eventually become a millionaire by playing pro football instead. If you're a sports page reader for the first time, you may not know that Brodie has signed contracts this year that promise him almost a million dollars spread over the next three years with the San Francisco 49ers.

Col. Leonard Scannell, Catholic chaplain from Hamilton Air Force Base, also happens to be one of the best golfers around. He tied Cerrudo in 1964 and was only one stroke behind Ron last year with a round of two under par. Father Scannell won the Nugget championship at Sparks, Nev., earlier this year.

STAR GOLFERS

E. Harvey Ward Jr. is a former two-time national champ, Robert Roos Jr. has won a string of tournaments, Ray Leach of Novato is the California junior champion, and they'll be in tomorrow's tourney. So will Don Hawken of San Rafael, another junior star.

Bob Brossier of San Rafael will be back to defend his low net title of 1965. Two former All-American football players will be in the field, Ernie Nevers and Tom Harmon.

Not to slight the golf playing of the celebs, Agar shot a 73 in 1964 and Wilkie duplicated the score last year.

Tournament chairman William H. McDevitt and his committee are expecting a crowd of 10,000 spectators and hoping to net $20,000 for the Marin Youth Fund. The 1964 tourney netted $3,500 and $8,700 was raised last year.

Gallery tickets cost $2 and will be sold at the entrance to the course, located off Point San Pedro Road.

A $25-a-plate celebrity banquet kicks off the weekend tonight at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael. The banquet was an early sellout.

Women Tie For Medalist Honor

Mrs. Hal White and Mrs. William Wieland tied for medalist honors Thursday in a qualifying round for the Marin Country Club Women's Championship. Both had rounds of 88.

Mrs. Bill Brown won the hole-in-one contest, only 10 inches away from the cup. Other winners:

Class A — Mesdames Hal White, 88-18—70; James Parris, 90-17—73; Charles Gondak, 90-17—73.

Class B — Mmes. George Greenwood, 93-20—73; Robert Peterzon, 96-20—76; Edward Abrahamson, 97-21—76.

Class C — Mmes. L. T. Kett, 92-23—69; Walter Goldman, 99-27—72; Walter Kessler, 100-25—75.

Pro Shoots Two Straight Eagles

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Fred Marti, 25-year-old pro from Baytown, Tex., scored two straight eagles yesterday in the Portland Open Golf Tournament.

It was the first time it had been accomplished on the pro tour this year.

Marti sank a 10-foot putt on the 512-yard fifth hole and holed a 130-yard nine-iron shot on the 347-yard sixth hole.

"I couldn't see the green on that shot," Marti said. "I only saw the top of the flag stick."

Marti, who turned pro in 1964, had a five under par 67, his best round of the year. He had a 74 Thursday.

Marin Team In San Francisco Tilt Tomorrow

Litchfield's San Rafael semi-pro baseball team will dual with The Flying Goose team, champions of the Peninsula Summer League, tomorrow at Golden Gate Park's Nelson diamond, San Francisco.

Ace righthander Bud McGee will go to the mound for the local nine, with Harvey Kaufmann and Ron Cole available for relief. Righthander Bud Shenk, Stanford's top hurler, will toe the slab for the "Goose" squad.

The Palmsmen will be seeking their third consecutive win, and their 34th in 41 tries this season. Lou Millholland, Litchfield catcher, is presently swatting the ball at a fantastic .889 clip, with eight safeties in nine trips to the plate, including three doubles and two triples.

The Litchfield management, incidentally, announced the signing of Kansas City infielder Ernie Fazio for the coming winter season. Fazio will see action at shortstop. In addition, Steve Howder, former Litchfield outfielder, and presently Los Angeles Dodger property, will return to the outfield for the upcoming winter league.

Catcher, Pitcher Win PCL Honors

SEATTLE (UPI) — Inidanapolis catcher Duane Josephson and Denver pitcher Jim Ollom shared Pacific Coast League honors for the season.

League president Dewey Soriano announced that Josephson had been named Most Valuable Player of the year.

In addition to his outstanding defensive ability, Josephson batted .324 and drove in 77 runs.

Ollom today was named the league's outstanding pitcher on the basis of his 20-8 record. Ollom is the first PCL pitcher since 1957 to win 20 games and currently is on the staff od the Minnesota Twins of the American League.

Archie Moore Slated To Speak In Marin

Former world light-heavyweight boxing champion Archie Moore will address the Mill Valley Rotary Club on his "Any Boy Can" youth project at noon Tuesday at Sabella's Restaurant in Alto.

Moore is director of the pilot program for youth in Vallejo sponsored by American Savings and Loan Assn. His work with youngsters has earned him the John F. Kennedy Memorial Award and a commendation from Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Novato Basketball League Is Planned

A meeting for all men interested in playing or managing in a basketball league sponsored by the Novato Parks and Recreation Department will be held at 8 p.m., Sept. 26 at the Novato Community House.

Rules for the league, entry fees and general information will be discussed at the meeting, according to Gary Howell, recreation supervisor.

Today is Saturday, Sept. 17, the 260th day of 1966 with 105 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter; the morning stars are Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, and Venus; the evening star is Saturn.

Baron von Steuben, who served in the American Revolutionary Army of 1777, was born in Prussia on this day in 1730.

On this day in history:

In 1787, the United States Constitution was completed at the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia and signed by a majority of the 55 delegates.

In 1796, President George Washington delivered his farewell address and warned the American people to avoid foreign alliances.

In 1939, Russia invaded Poland in World War II.

In 1962, nine new American astronauts were named to train for moon flights.

A thought for the day—British philosopher Bertrand Russell said: "A good society is a means to a good life for those who compose it: not something having an excellence on its own account."

East won the first trick with the ace of diamonds and saw that he had a reasonable chance for two club tricks. This would not be enough to defeat the contract. East needed a trump trick also, and his king of trumps was clearly in a very dangerous position.

Just in time East thought of a way to save the life of his king. At the second trick East returned the ten of spades up to dummy's long suit.

This return was so "obviously" a singleton that South tried to draw trumps quickly to avoid the risk of a spade ruff. Besides, East's failure to lead a club gave South some hope that he would find the ace of clubs in favorable position.

DRAWS TRUMPS

South won the spade return with dummy's jack and drew a round of trumps with the ace. Then he led a spade to try a finesse with dummy's nine.

This worked, as expected, and South continued with dummy's ace of spades. It was now time to come out from the closet. East ruffed with the king of trumps and led the queen of clubs. Two club tricks then defeated the contract.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. You have 10 points in high cards and 2 points for the doubletons, enough for an optional opening bid.

You would open the bidding if you had two small diamonds and the A-5 of clubs instead of the K-5. Avoid opening a borderline hand when you have to count a doubleton jack as one of your high-card points.

Four Party Lines For Hungarians

LONDON (AP)—Hungary is to introduce four-party lines to meet the demand by 70,000 applicants for private telephones, the Hungarian news service reports.

The quadruple lines will be installed first in large blocks of flats, according to the report.

It quoted the Hungarian Post Office as justifying four-party lines not only because of the considerable saving in installation cost but because "the average subscriber uses his phone not more than 30 minutes a day."

Clausen Redwood Plan Deserves Consideration

CONGRESSMAN DON CLAUSEN is most conscientious in his efforts to represent in Congress the views of the people of his district, which includes Marin.

There are times when even Solomon couldn't do it.

Take the Redwood National Park proposal.

Because Clausen is conservation-minded, he has been a consistent fighter for funds for Point Reyes National Seashore in Marin. In general, Marin is conservation-minded and Clausen has done an admirable job of representing this point of view in Congress.

UP IN HIS HOME counties, Humboldt where he was born and Del Norte where he resided when elected to Congress, logging is one of the foundations of the economy.

Clausen has considerable of the humanitarian about him.

The idea of throwing a lot of blue collar working people out of jobs repels him.

The most grandiose of Redwood National Park plans unquestionably would put some lumber mills out of business and many of their employees out of jobs.

Clausen just could not be a party to such a move.

FROM THE FIRST, then, he has been an advocate of compromise in the Redwood National Park controversy. He has recognized the need for preserving sufficient areas of ancient giant trees, but has advocated thorough study of the economic impact of park proposals that could result in a serious cut-back in lumber industry employment.

Some of his friends and supporters in the logging business have been critical of his stand. Some of his friends among conservationists who strongly support the Redwood National Park proposal likewise have been critical.

To repeat, it is doubtful that even Solomon could please both sides in this situation.

But Clausen is not one to quit trying.

IN HIS STRUGGLE to find middle ground he has come up with something that deserves careful consideration by all.

Tis plan would involve 300,000 acres of Del Norte and Humboldt County redwood forest and scenic coastal beach lands.

Approximately 30,000 acres are contained in existing Jedediah Smith, Del Norte Coast and Prairie Creek state parks.

The largest, oldest redwood giant trees are on coastal slopes not too far from the shoreline. Clausen proposes the acquisition of most of the coastal beach areas and adjoining groves of redwood giants. This would embrace an area of around 25,000 acres. Additional areas already are contained in National Forest lands. He advocates establishing National Forest recreational reserves so as to protect the park-quality redwood giants from logging and preserve them too for recreational enjoyment.

He has studied the problem of ecology. He knows that the biological interrelationships of the giant redwoods must be protected and preserved if they are to survive. To accomplish this he proposes to impose strict controls over private lands ecologically involved with the National Park redwood groves.

HE FURTHER ADVOCATES a government-private sector partnership to ensure public access for recreational purposes to the vast acreages of privately-owned timber lands. The agreements would provide forest practice controls to make sure that the privately owned lands were maintained in truth as perpetual tree farms, renewing themselves in cycles — providing needed redwood lumber and at the same time open to campers, hikers, fishermen, and hunters in season.

Some of Clausen's thinking is obviously borrowed from Oregon and Washington where for more than a generation some of the largest lumber producing firms have maintained perpetual tree farms, open to the public for recreational purposes. Likewise, Oregon's beautiful coastline and immediately adjacent groves are largely held in public ownership.

CLAUSEN'S PLAN SEEMS to have much to recommend it.

Selfish logging interests won't like it because it would put more forest area into public ownership, would impose additional new controls over their private logging operations and require them to keep their forest lands open to public enjoyment.

Conservation extremists won't like it because it permits private loggers to continue harvesting tree farm lands.

Whether reason can get far in the field against emotion is doubtful these days. Watch what happens to Clausen's plan and see.

Meanwhile, Supervisor Tom Storer who is opposing Clausen for re-election also has come up with a plan of his own. Providing the spirit moves, it will be examined here next week.

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BOUQUET to the cows who won the right to continue grazing at Marinwood on their historic pasture lands now being overrun by tract homes. BOUQUETS to county planning commissioners for siding with the cows in the dispute over their presence there.

A BOUQUET to the Fairfax city council for proclaiming clean-up week BEFORE fall storms bring waters to trash-blocked creeks. Ordinarily, we don't think of things like this until after the rains have come and there is flooding.

BOUQUETS to all those who made possible this year's successful Muir Woods Park Mountain Fair, despite near-distastrous winds.

A BOUQUET to Col. Tracy J. Henderson, new commander of the Western Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Center at Hamilton.

BOUQUETS to the publishers of Marin's newest newspaper, Cindy, Jerry and Eddy Fowler, ages 11, 10 and 8, who have launched the Ocean View News at Bolinas.

BOUQUETS to four Belvedere girls who spent a part of their vacation doing volunteer work at a convalescent hospital in Tiburon.

OIL ON THE TROUBLED WATERS

The skipper of a crippled ship found that pouring oil on the stormy sea gets results.

When the British freighter Parthia lost her rudder during a storm in the mid-Atlantic last February, Captain Mortimer Hehir was confronted with additional problems. The ship's propellers were damaged and its stern plating was punctured with holes.

The next day the ship rolled 45 degrees and the deck rail was awash. Then Captain Hehir poured oil on the sea to stop the waves breaking over the decks.

Later he remarked that he had done something "I had only previously read about in books."

The vessel had to be towed 1,700 miles to Southampton. The voyage from New York took nearly three weeks instead of the normal five days.

There are numerous opportunities for all of us to "pour oil on troubled waters."

You can be a peacemaker of the Lord by healing discord, promoting understanding and patiently bearing with the shortcomings of others.

"Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called sons of God." (Matthew 5:9)

Inspire me, O Holy Spirit, to be a cause of harmony rather than of dissension.

You Are Borrowing Your Own Money

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In reference to the business editorial by John Cunniff (AP) Sept. 9, concerning "loans" on insurance policies, I would like to discuss this concept of loans further.

As you no doubt know, but 98 per cent of life insurance buyers do not seem to realize, the money "loaned" to the policyholder is his own savings. He is loaning his money to the insurance company at a low fixed rate of less than 3 per cent.

When this one fact is realized it is easy to understand Norman F. Dacey's advice in his excellent book, "What's Wrong With Your Life Insurance." That is, to buy term insurance and invest the difference in stocks and bonds, savings and loan, bank savings or U. S. Bonds where they receive more earnings or interest than with the savings part of an ordinary insurance policy and one is not charged 5 per cent interest to use his own savings in an emergency. Don't expect the insurance salesman to push this "term insurance and invest the rest" plan. He receives very little commission from the company on term policies.

Lottery Suggested For School Money

Editor, Independent-Journal:

For a long time I have worried about Tax—Property Tax.

I know it is a state law to take money for education out of real estate. To me it seems incredibly stupid and unfair.

Every time one of these bonds come up for voting, I do not vote but sit tight and hope nobody votes yes, in spite of believing that education is one of the most important things for any country.

And I am not alone about this. Every retired person who has saved and slaved to have a small home for the old age is doing the same thing.

And each time a bond fails, taxpayers money is again wasted. It is a fight for the home when the income is small and set. Every four years the old home goes up in value, and every year the tax rate goes up too. It would not be so bad if it was normal tax for running the business of the county but the school tax should not be paid by real estate owners alone but by all people who have an income say a certain percentage for education out of the income: first federal, then state, then county for schools. This way there would be no expensive voting, the school boards would just have their cut from all people with income large enough to pay federal tax, and the school boards would just have to get along on the income like any other person has to do: most important things first, and the rest must wait.

As it is now, people are being punished for being good citizens trying to look ahead instead of spending all on food, drink, fur coats, etc.

A State Lottery could take care of the whole business very nicely — with handicapped people running the collections and earning a little; but no, we must give all that money to Nevada.

Other people must have thought about that too. Everybody must start to complain and talk so we can get some action.

Education is too important to have to rely on voting. That expense should be compulsory for all, not just the home owners.

Witness Supports Driver In Mishap

Editor, Independent-Journal

In one edition of your paper last week, I noted a front page story concerning an unfortunate accident where a 86-year-old woman was killed on Sir Francis Drake Blvd. in Kentfield.

We live just two houses down from the crosswalk in which the lady was walking when she was hit, so, consequently, were one of the first ones on the scene, after the accident.

To be true to myself, I had to write a letter on behalf of the young man driving the automobile involved. Arriving on the scene ahead of either the police or the ambulance, we saw the young man and his companion in the car, and found him to be, despite his youth, a very reliable, and much concerned young man. He was completely sober, clean cut, had a decent hair cut, and, I am sure, any one would have been proud to have him in the family. He very obviously hadn't been exceeding the 25-mile-an-hour speed limit, as there were no skid tracks, and he had stopped his car right on the spot.

Living in this location, my husband and I use this same crosswalk many times each week, and have remarked many times that, although it is brightly lighted, some precaution should be taken to warn motorists of people crossing in the walk, such as a push button signal.

It is indeed a tragedy that someone had to lose their life at the place, but I felt I had to say these few words in the young man's behalf. It was definitely an accident.

Who's Going To Pay When Taxpayer Gone

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Your columns recently carried a most apt article on our welfare state pointing out that the only money the government has with which to subsidize people is that which it collects from the people in taxes. So what happens to this false paradise when we run out of taxpayers (or the taxpayers run out of money)?

A similar question is directed to the socialistic-minded who advocate taxing land instead of homes to pay for the demands of the population. Who picks up the tab for the free loaders when our ranches and open country are taxed out of existence and Marin is nothing but wall to wall houses and humanity?

China's Immaturity Makes It Dangerous Threat To Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is a commonplace knowledge that the Red Chinese are dangerously unpredictable. Among the reasons for it, and one of the best symbols of it, are the Red Guard youth brigades created by the Red leadership.

These brigades haev been turned loose by Mao Tze-tung and those close to him to frighten and club the Chinese people into a vast conformity: unquestioning acceptance of the leadership and edicts of Mao and his clique.

There's one thing wrong with the idea.

IT IS AXIOMATIC that power is only a temporary possession. Dissent can be hushed but not crushed, even though it lies dormant for a generation. Unless the reasons for the dissent are altered, the dissent remains.

It may be silenced through force for the lifetime of the aging Mao. He will retain the power to hush it so long as he remains No. 1 man with the support of those who share his views or who figure they can benefit by his favors.

But once he is gone the dissatisfactions of the discontented—whether they are intellectuals, factory hands, farmers or shopkeepers — will assert themselves.

THIS IS SO obvious, the use of the Red Guards by the Mao leadership is an indisputable sign of its political, social and emotional immaturity. It is one of the factors which make the Red Chinese regime look frightening.

The immaturity has shown itself in various ways. For instance, the impulsive and disastrous "Great Leap Forward" of a few years ago, an experiment in stepped-up communism from which Red China has not yet recovered.

The immaturity has been displayed in its ragged and disastrous foreign policy which in the past couple of years has suffered one setback and humiliation after another around the world.

BUT THE IMMATURITY is coupled with stupidity, which makes it doubly painful. Red China, preaching world communism and proclaiming itself the leader of it, has revealed that its basic compulsion is the crudest nationalism.

Thus it has alienated itself from the rest of the Communist world with its vilification of the Soviet Union and its childish and primitive effort to claim a monopoly on Red wisdom.

The Soviet Union has been around longer and through time, power and other devices has attached to itself the loyalty of other Red states. More than just Chinese hissing will be needed to shake them loose.

This is not to suggest that the United States, the Soviet Union and the other big powers are not equally nationalistic in their basic motives, but they are a little more subtle about it except perhaps for France, which is crude on that.

BUT IF IMMATURITY makes the Mao regime look emotionally unstable, so do its inferior feelings about its lack of industrial development while shouting like a giant, other forms of progress, and the fact it is not yet a nuclear power, while the Soviet Union and the United States are. No wonder those nations are its two main targets.

It could be assumed Red China would talk big and do little until it is a No. 1 world power for fear that war with the Soviet Union or this country would bring the ruin of such nuclear development as it has.

House Amendments Weaken Rights Bill

By WHITNEY M.YOUNG JR.,

THE CIVIL RIGHTS ACT of 1966 is now before the Senate.

Amendments in the house weakened some of the provisions. For example, the original version of the act empowered the attorney-general to initiate legal action against segregated school systems. This was changed to allow him to do so only after receiving a written complaint from individuals who had been discriminated against. This seems like a small change, but the net result is that many persons, especially in the Deep South, will be afraid to sign their names to a public complaint, thereby inviting retaliation from the local segregationists.

It is the weakening of the housing title, however, which has come in for the most criticism. The new amendment would limit the bill's effect to houses of five or more units and would exempt realtors from its provisions if the owner of the house asks him to discriminate.

ONE OF THE REASONS for the change was the argument that the seller of property should have only one main concern — to get the best price he can.

The result of the bill as it now stands is to draw a line around the city limits and forbid discrimination within the city, while allowing it in the suburbs, since that is where most of the exempt housing is located. This could intensify the alarming trend toward lily-white suburbs ringing cities made up of poor minority groups. I wonder if the Senate, too, will agree to one law for the cities and one law for the suburbs.

Part of the need for fair housing laws is found in the high rate of segregated housing in northern cities. The segregation index in housing shows this quite clearly: in Chicago it is 92.6 per cent; in St. Louis it is 91 per cent; in all of our big cities it is far too high. This has resulted in Negro families who can afford good housing in better sections or in the suburbs, being forced to live in slums because of discrimination.

JUST AS FEDERAL intervention has led to expanded competition and a stronger free enterprise system, so too, federal action now can lead to a free housing market. There is no freedom in the market place when the market has a "white only" sign.

Because of the importance of this bill, its progress is being followed closely by all Americans, but especially by the GIs in Vietnam. Open housing there means sharing the same barracks and even the same foxhole. Negro GIs especially are following it with interest. When I was there recently, I found they were concerned about the debate over their rights as citizens at home, although they didn't question their obligations as citizens when they entered the army.

One soldier spoke with me from his hospital bed, concerned that the summer riots were being used as an excuse to limit fair housing rights. He said: "Mr. Young, I shed my blood here for my country, but I just can't face going back home and trying to find a decent apartment for my family.

"I know I'll be forced to take a place in the same slum I joined the army to get out of. They are debating about our rights and talking about a few rioters, but they are forgetting the thousands of us out here fighting for our country."

Viet War Spills Across Borders

By CONRAD FINK

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—Viet Nam's war virtually has become a wider and more dangerous Southeast Asian war with fighting exploding on or from the soil of five countries.

Stepped-up air and ground combat is involving not only North and South Viet Nam but also to various degrees neighboring Laos, Cambodia and Thailand.

And in addition to soldiers of both Viet Nams and the United States, the war today is being fought by troops or support personnel from Thailand, the Philippines, South Korea, Australia and New Zealand.

With war thus knocking at more and more doors, the atmosphere in Southeast Asia is thick with fear that even greater conflict could erupt.

Thailand's foreign minister, Thanat Khoman, has declared that the war "poses a great threat" to peace and stability in the entire region.

Malaysia, the Philippines and Thailand, using their newly-created Association of Southeast Asia as a forum, have called for concerted peace efforts from the people most directly involved—Asians.

Here in Thailand, which officially is holding the Viet Nam war at arm's length, signs of involvement are everywhere.

At Bangkok airport, the thunder of U.S. Air Force jets assaults the ears of casual tourists. In the remote northeastern village of Mu Mon, the headman proudly shows visitors the twisted propeller of a U.S. plane that crashed nearby.

Thailand, while fighting its own small-scale Communist insurrection, has sent an air force contingent to Viet Nam and is providing the U.S. Air Force with valuable real estate from which to fight.

American aircraft are launched at North Viet Nam and Communist-controlled portions of Laos from Thai bases at Takhliv, Korat, Idorn and Ubon. Other bases are at Sattaheep and Khan Kaen.

The Thai and U.S. governments do not acknowledge this, even though Bangkok bar girls and illiterate peasants for miles around the bases know what is going on—as do the Communists, judging from their broadcasts.

About 27,000 American troops now are in Thailand but only part of the U.S. buildup is advertised.

At Korat, in central Thailand, the 9th Logistics Command openly maintains "pre-positioned stock" in quantities vase enough to arm and equip more than an army division if troops had to be airlifted in quickly.

Sealed warehouses, with interior humidity carefully maintained at 40 per cent, protect the gear from tropical rot.

The war has touched neighboring Cambodia in another way.

American officials insist North Vietnamese and Viet Cong guerrilla units fighting in South Viet Nam operate out of Cambodian refuges.

"I have seen them with my own eyes moving back into Cambodia under attack," a U.S. official said in Saigon.

American field commanders have told newsmen the Chu Pong mountain range stretching across the Viet Nac-Cambodian frontier is a Communist nest—and a route for Red infiltration.

At least three North Vietnamese regiments fighting in central Viet Nam are said to take orders from what is described as the 119th Division headquarters stationed in Cambodia.

In addition, American officials say there is no doubt the so-called Ho Chi Minh trail from North Viet Nam passes Cambodian soil, giving Communist troops and supplies a route to battlefields in central and South Viet Nam.

Cambodia's ruler, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, vociferously denies his country is either a staging place or highway for Communist troops.

Sihanouk counter-charges that planes and troops based in South Viet Nam have shot up Cambodian border villages and violated Cambodian soil without provocation.

Whichever account is true, it is obvious war has visited Cambodia.

It also has again touched Laos, as proven by a recent Washington announcement that 30 U.S. military men have been killed in officially secret operations in Laos since 1961.

Most of these men reportedly were pilots, with some killed recently while bombing and straffing the Laos section of the Ho Chi Minh trail.

Unconfirmed reports in Saigon say a large part of the U.S. air effort in late July and early August was directed at Laotian sectors of the trail.

Clearly, the circle of conflict in Southeast Asia has widened.

This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The space walk that was cut short was the only disappointment in the highly successful mission of Gemini 11.

Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr. and Lt. Cmdr. Richard F. Gordon Jr., 36-year-old Navy test pilot buddies of several years, finally got off the Cape Kennedy launching pad Monday after two postponements in the blast-off of the Agena target vehicle.

They circled earth for 71 hours, reaching a world record altitude of 850 miles. They took ultraviolet pictures of stars expected to give astronomers 400 times more information than is now available. They attached a tether to the Agena and whirled coupled through space. On the first orbit they caught up with and docked with the Agena.

But Gordon's space walk of 115 minutes had to be reduced by one-third because of fatigue suffered by Gordon.

Dr. Robert R. Gilruth, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center at Houston, said later the space walk was more difficult than at first thought.

"We still have a lot to learn," he said.

On the way down, though, the astronauts had another first: Their computer guided them automatically to a safe splashdown in the Atlantic.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

Saigon—The South Vietnamese election drew 80.8 per cent of eligible vote-casters, a solid government victory over Viet Cong terrorism which tried to block the election.

Washington—The administration failed to get a cloture vote to shut off the filibuster on the 1966 civil rights bill and it appeared to be dead this session.

Hamburg—The West German submarine Hai (shark) sank with one immediate survivor and 19 probable victims.

MOSS UNHAPPY

Airwaves Abuses Face Stiff Look

By ANN WOOD

WASHINGTON (UPI)—There are evenings when Rep. John E. Moss would like to go home, turn on the television, and watch a documentary, an educational program or a good play.

More often than not, he says, all he can find are cowboys, hillbillies, detectives, soap operas and old movies—so he rarely watches.

A man with some string ideas about broadcasting, Moss is in line for a key post in which to exercise his feelings.

Barring an election upset, the California Democrat will become chairman of the communications and power subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee when Rep. Walter Rogers, D-Tex., retires from Congress at the end of this session. Moss has made it clear he will resist any attempt to sideline him out of the job.

"I do not believe television is a vast wasteland, but neither is it a perfectly cultivated field," Moss said in an interview. "It is a medium of great potential. I hope I can aid in realizing it more fully."

The implication was that he would investigate some facets of TV programming, once he takes over the committee. But he declined to disclose his plans on grounds it would be premature.

Moss, 53, holds numerous awards from news organizations for his role as champion of "freedom of information" legislation. After a decade of trying, he won its enactment into law this year.

To Moss, today's television is riding too hard on the "format of mediocrity."

"Ratings have become supreme law," he said. "If Batman is a hit, then pretty soon you are likely to have batgirl, batcat and probably half a dozen others."

Moss noted that the government puts a good deal of regulatory effort, at taxpayer expense, into guaranteeing each broadcaster exclusive use of a segment of the airwaves.

"Broadcast channels are a public gift," he said. "All we expect is a public service. I am very uninterested in movies that I have seen 10, 15 or 20 years ago . . . or third and fourth generation reruns of programs — this hardly seems the type of public service which justifies exclusive private right to a channel or frequency."

Although old movies and reruns are a mainstay for a number of local stations, Moss said the networks are among the worst offenders. "Now you find network movies on prime time," he said. "There is an amazing lack of coverage at convenient hours of news, informative programs, any effort at originality. This is something Congress can do something about."

Moss does not see the solution in legislation prescribing the content of television programs. Rather he said:

"The attitude of Congress has significant impact . . . I have tremendous respect for the value of public hearings in exerting influence and forming public opinions."

Behind The News

A Weekly Page Of Background Information

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Gubernatorial Campaign Heating Up

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The fall election campaign has moved into high gear but, at least in the case of the governorship race, the voters will need a score card to keep track of the charges and counter charges.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Ronald Reagan, the Republican nominee, met on the nationally televised Meet the Press show which may be as close as the two will come to a debate. they were questioned separately by a panel of reporters.

A good part of the show was taken up with charges of extremism from both sides — Brown attacking Reagan's failure to disavow all John Birch Society support; Reagan charging that Brown was the captive of the left wing California Democratic Council.

The governor said he feared for the state if Reagan took over, that it might be the end to the present way of life. Reagan hit again at the breakdown in morality in the Brown administration, noting that two members of the University of California board of regents were involved in his campaign.

After shocks from the show began to hit about the time the state capitol was rocked by the strongest earthquake in years. Brown and an array of Democrats began grinding out press releases from the governor's office, charging that Reagan had lied on the television show when he said he opposed restrictive covenants in deeds — provisions that the property could not be occupied by other than Caucasians. They showed proof Reagan had purchased property in Los Angeles in 1941 with such provisions in the deed. But later, Reagan's staff produced the deed for the house that Brown lives in each year in Los Angeles while he's campaigning and, guess what? The deed to the 'Los Angeles governor's mansion' contains similar provisions.

If that sounds like about a break-even exchange, that's the way the campaign seems to be going. One pollster has showed Brown as climbing to within 3 percentage points of Reagan and the Las Vegas odds-makers have set Brown up as a 9-5 favorite to win.

Another move to block an initiative from appearing on the ballot has failed. The state supreme court denied without comment a petition to keep Prop. 16, the so-called CLEAN anti-obscenity measure off the Nov. 8 general election ballot. The court denied similar moves against Prop. 14, the housing initiative, in 1964, on the basis that the people should have the chance to vote on such matters. Meanwhile, Robert H. Finch, GOP nominee for lieutenant governor, announced his opposition to Prop. 16. Finch said he recognized the dangers in the flood of obscene literature going to California children but was concerned the initiative might nullify every anti-pornography measure in the state.

Familiar subject was in the news again in the capitol. The senate committee on legislative organization and reapportionment said it is beginning studies of the state's congressional districts and hopes to have a bill ready in early 1967 to re-draw the boundaries on the one-man, one-vote concept. Congressional reapportionment bills traditionally have originated in the assembly because the districts corresponded to assembly district lines.

However, this no longer is the case, under the U.S. Supreme Court edict. The committee also will consider whether districts for the state board of equalization should be reapportioned or whether the functions of the board itself should be changed.

A record number of nearly 9 million persons could be qualified to vote in the Nov. 8 general election. Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan announced as the deadline for registration for the election fell on Sept. 15 that he believed the registration would total about 8,750,000. If last minute efforts by party workers were successful, the total could go as high as 8.8 million, Jordan said. Highest previous registration was the 8,184,143 for the presidential election in 1964.

The State Fair, in its next to the last run on the old grounds, set some new records by the time it closed Sept. 11. Total attendance, at 951,818, was at a new high; six daily attendance records were broken, and the mob of 131,704 which jammed the grounds on Sept. 3 was the highest single daily crowd by far. At the race track, bettors also hit new highs in wagering, with a total of $6,129,935 being pushed through the parimutuel windows.

Sen. Paul J. Lunardi, who was the first senator in a reapportioned district to announce retirement plans, also became the first to announce he would move into a position in the "third house." Lunardi will resign his senate post Oct. 1 to become lobbyist for the Wine Institute of California, with headquarters in Sacramento. Lunardi had represented the three-county seventh district but his new district, which includes all or parts of six districts, would have extended from Stanislaus on the south to the Oregon border on the north.

The tallest building in Sacramento, the 16-story resources agency structure, did some swinging and swaying as effects of the earthquake centered just west of Reno were felt. A number of state buildings suffered cracks in plaster but no serious damage was reported otherwise. Office routine generally was shook up, however, by the most serious tremor to hit the Sacramento area in many years.

A face-lifting of the higher echelons of the transportation agency will be considered by the state's "Little Hoover" commission at a meeting in Sacramento Thursday. The commission also will study a proposal by Governor Brown to extend the agency's functions to the entire field of transportation, rather than primarily the construction and maintenance of highways.

Whom Will Max Rafferty Favor?

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Dr. Max Rafferty, foe of progressive education and outspoken chief of California's educational system, is going to have a word for the state's politicians on Thursday.

On that day, he has said, he is going to announce which —if any—of this year's candidates for state office he will endorse.

And Rafferty's standards for endorsement are tough.

"Any politician who goes out of his way to oppose my educational program is out of touch with reality," he said in an interview. "I just can't conceive of any politician—governor, legislator or board member—standing in the way of my policies."

That's why he is on the verge of plunging his office into the California campaign for governor.

Furthermore, Rafferty, 49, no longer denies, as he used to, that he himself is not available for higher office. Asked, for instance, about reports that he might seek a U. S. Senate seat in two years, Rafferty, a Republican, now issues an enigmatic "no comment."

The source of Rafferty's self-confidence is evident. He was re-elected state superintendent of public instruction last June by nearly 70 per cent of the vote. It was a landslide in anyone's country and far more than the 52 per cent he received when first elected to the officially nonpartisan office in 1962.

His educational ideas first received national attention in 1961 when a magazine reprinted one of his speeches, "The Passing of the Patriot."

Rafferty, then a local school superintendent in a suburban area of Los Angeles, took a militantly anti-Communistic tone and said that "life adjustment" philosophies in the schools had sapped the patriotism of American youth.

At about that time, several Southern California groups, of politically conservative bent, were looking for a successor to the incumbent state school superintendent, who was about to retire. They asked Rafferty to run; he campaigned against "life adjustment" and "progressive education," and took office in January, 1963.

Rafferty's major activities during the past three and one-half years, and those which have done most to keep him in the public eye, have involved what might be called "moral reform." He has, for instance:

Asked a study of an alleged "imbalance to the left" in state college faculties.

Attacked the U. S. Supreme Court's decision against prayer in the schools.

Encouraged Bible fundamentalists who opposed the teaching of evolution as fact.

Declared that the "Dictionary of American Slang," with its definitions of four-letter words, should be removed from school shelves.

Publicly investigated the character of a pretty San Diego school teacher who wrote a play entitled "A Cat Called Jesus."

In the dictionary and cat cases, Rafferty was condemned by librarians generally, by the state teachers association, and by the State Board of Education.

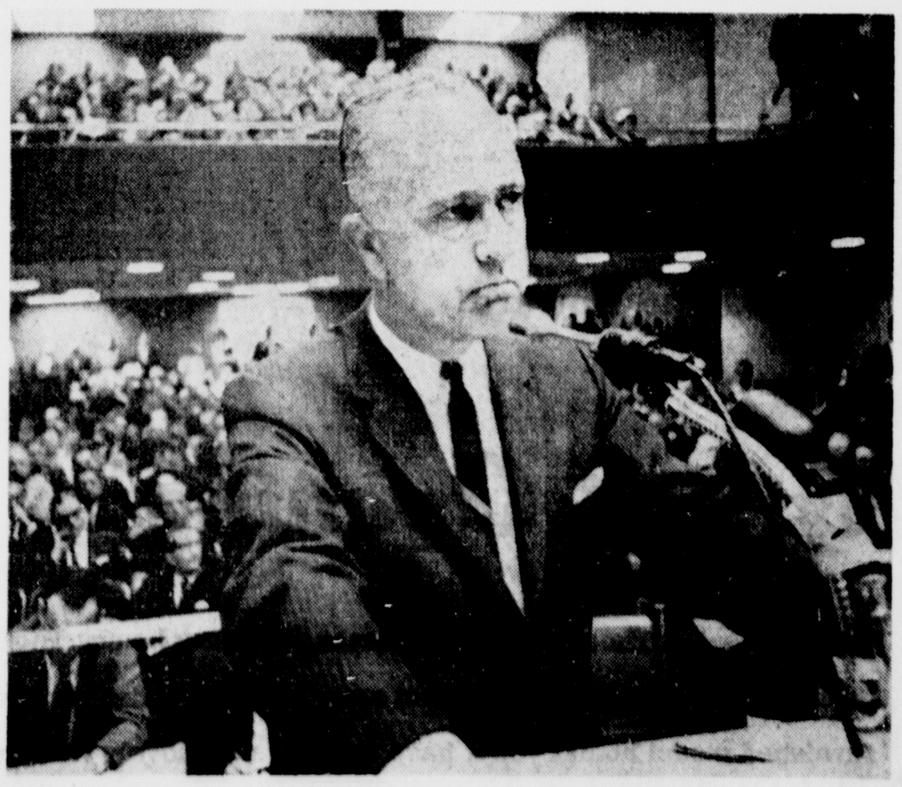
Rafferty said that in his next news conference his endorsement of a candidate, or failure to endorse, will depend largely on the candidate's response to his call for an investigation of what he calls the University of California's "mess at Berkeley."

He has submitted questions to the gubernatorial candidates, Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Republican Ronald Reagan, to determine whether either or both is likely to carry out his program.

Among the questions, Rafferty asked the candidates if they would "exert the leadership necessary to . . . prevent treasonable and immoral conditions from existing" within the state university and "lead a statewide attempt . . . to stem the rising tide of obscenity in California."

Democrats doubt that Rafferty will endorse Brown no matter what the governor does, if anything, to woo his support. The question is whether Rafferty will endorse Reagan or remain neutral.

Regardless of his decision, Rafferty will no doubt carry on as a controversial figure. And with a weekly column in 50 newspapers across the nation, with a local radio broadcast, with four or five speeches a week, with his books and articles published regularly and with 70 per cent of the vote, he will continue to be heard.



NON-PARTISAN BUT INFLUENTIAL — Dr. Max Rafferty, state superintendent of instruction, says he may endorse some candidates for state office next Thursday, depending on their views of his program for the state's classrooms. Meanwhile, he's not squelching hints that he might run for partisan office—possibly the U.S. Senate—himself in the near future. (AP Wirephoto)

Goldberg, United States ambassador to the United Nations, to be the guest on "Face the Nation" at 9:30 a.m. on Channels 5 and 10, and President Ferdinande E. Marcos of the Philippines will be interviewed on "Meet the Press" at 1 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4.

A pro and con discussion of the controversy surrounding the two proposed hydro-electric dams in the lower Colorado River Basin Project that would bracket the Grand Canyon will be seen as an hour-long special at 9 p.m. on Channel 9.

Richard L. Lesher of NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration) explains and illustrates how the agency compiles information on new discoveries on the debut of "R & D Review" at 10 p.m. on Channel 9.

Film clips from movies such as "Little Caesar" and many more help to show how the gangster movie became so popular on "Hollywood and the Stars" at 7 p.m. on Channel 2.

Vic Damone, the Osmond Brothers, Juliet Prowse and Dick Shawn guest-star on "The Andy Williams Show" at 10 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4.

Ed Sullivan welcomes Jackie Mason, Red Buttons, Herman's Hermits, Nancy Ames and Franco Corelli to "The Ed Sullivan Show" at 8 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

Deborah Kerr and Stewart Granger star in a romantic adventure detailing a search for love, for a lost husband and for a vast treasure in "King Solomon's Mines" to be seen on "The Sunday Night Movie" at 9 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

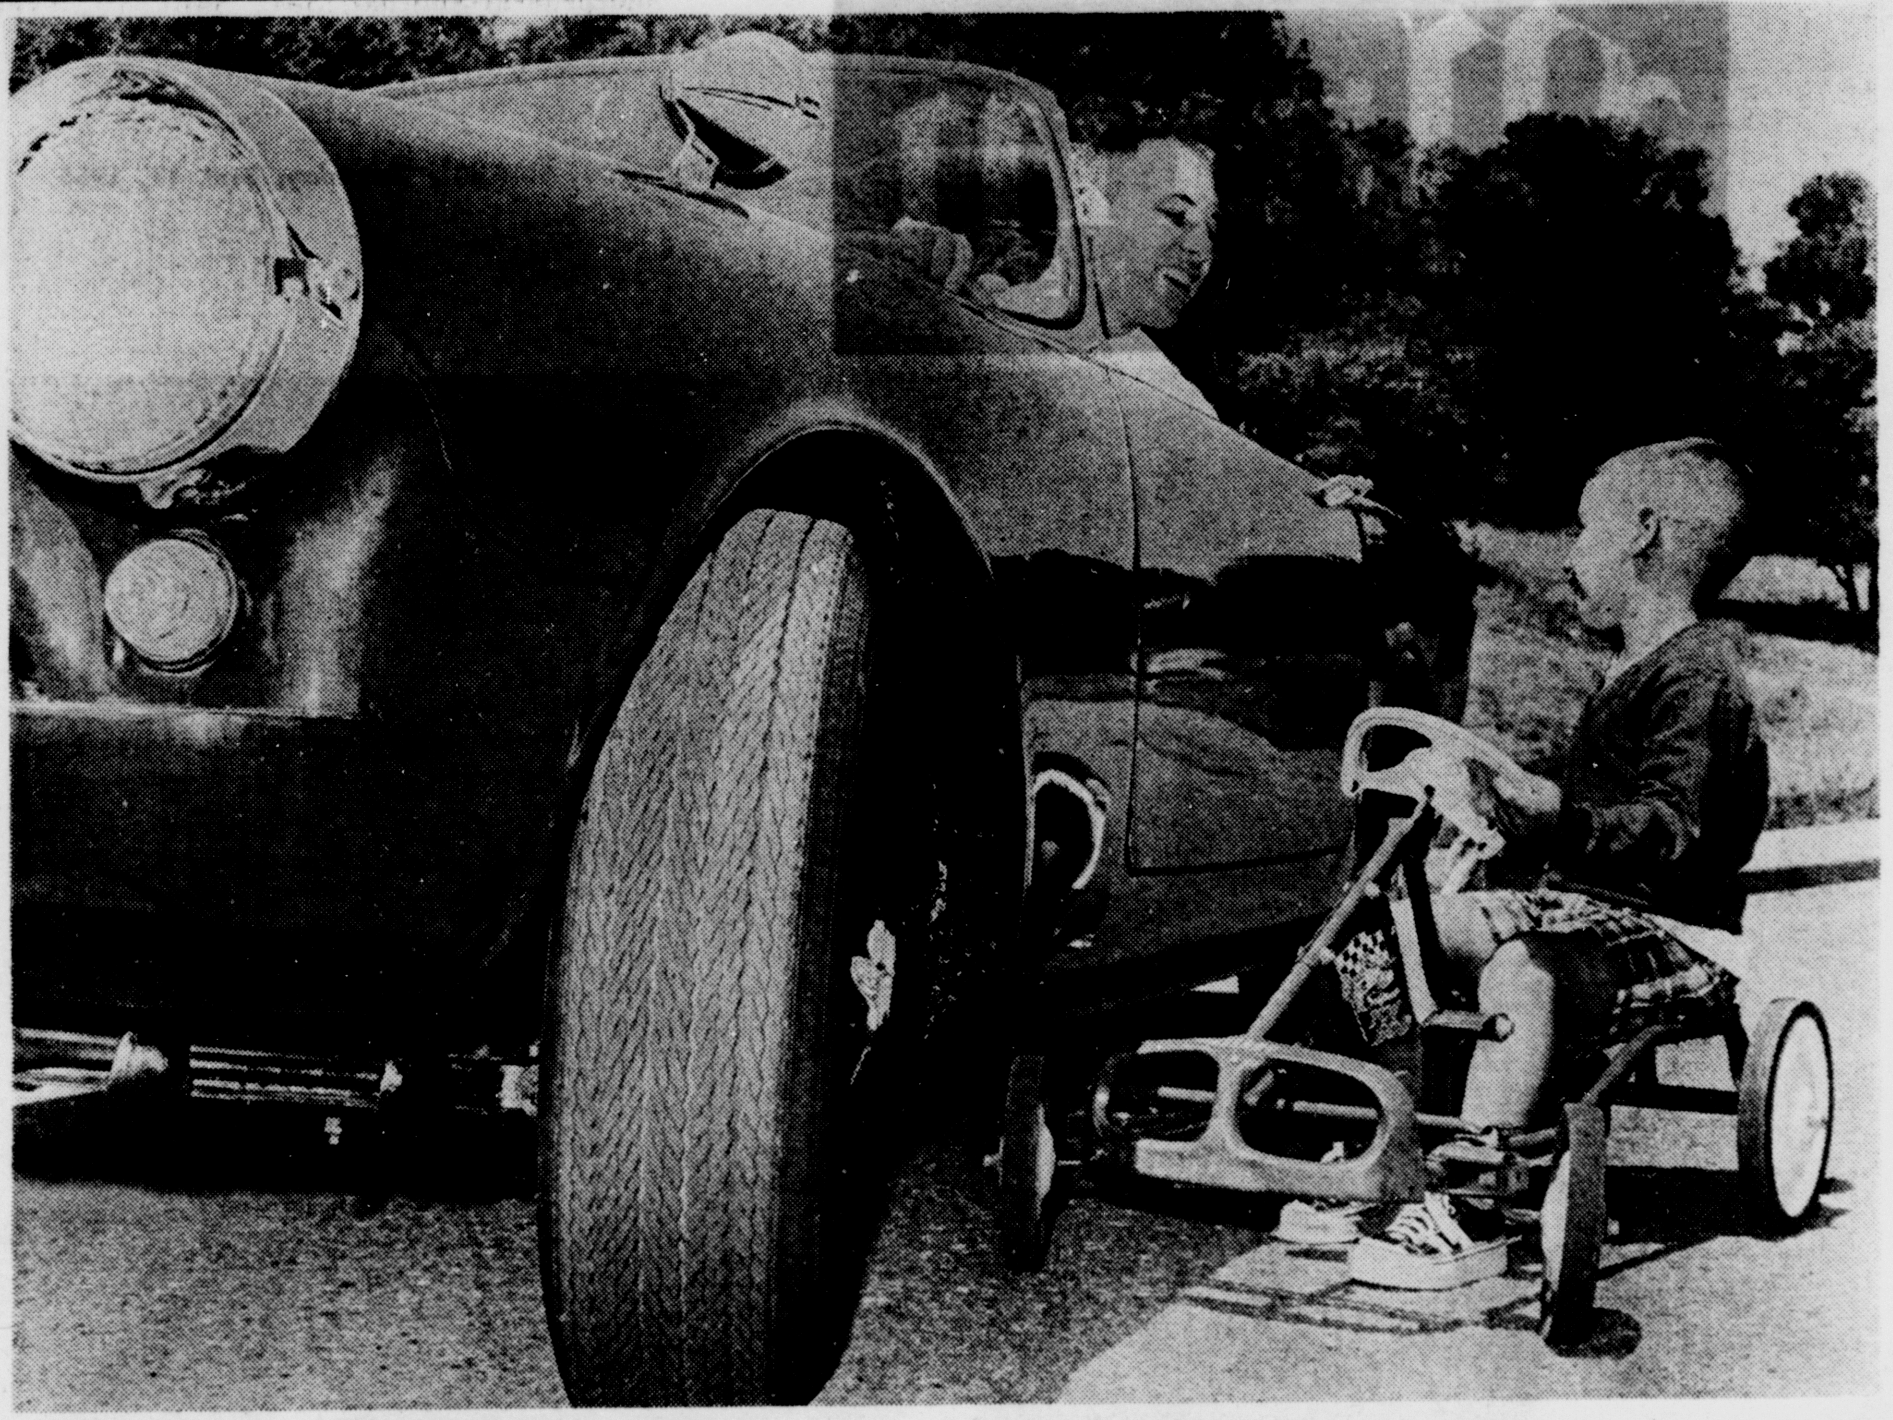
The Power Plant Of A Sunbeam Talbot

See Page M2



"HOW ABOUT A race, dad?" 5-year-old Arthur challenges his father, Fred Tmps, However, Temps' sleek Sunbeam Talbot C-Type Alpine is no longer a racing car. Behind it is a successful career in English rallies. But it has been retired from competition of that kind and is now winning honors from concours judges.

How Fred Temps Caught Car Show Fever

By DON KEOWN

When the 1966 Concours d'Elegance is held next weekend at Peacock Gap, one of the automobiles certain to attract the greatest attention from judges and the public alike is the Sunbeam Talbot C-Type Alpine owned and shown by Fred Temps of San Rafael.

Even in the company of the finest sports cars in the west, the Temps entry will be something of a standout.

It is, Temps believes, the only C-Type (modified for competition) Sunbeam Talbot Alpine of its kind on the Coast.

"THE ONLY other one I have run into or heard about was owned by the late Ken Miles," Temps says, "and it has been out of existence for some time."

Temps, a resident of 35 Fernwood Way in Glenwood and the Marin County district manager of Farmers' Insurance Group, has been a sports car owner for 10 years.

His first such vehicle was a Triumph which, he says frankly, "I bought because it looked so pretty in the showroom."

Until then, he had been driving a 1949 Ford.

"I HAD ALWAYS been intrigued by sports cars, but had had no experience with them until I bought the Triumph," he says.

The Triumph was for transportation and pleasure driving only. It was not entered in shows. Nor was the MG he purchased subsequently.

It was in 1961 that he bought the Sunbeam Talbot in Fresno where he was then living.

ter of liking its looks," he says.

THE CAR WAS manufactured in 1957, and in 1961 had undergone a factory restoration job by the Rootes Group at Coventry, England, that had, according to Temps, "made it as good as new."

Behind it was a competitive career as a Rootes factory team car in English rallies during which it had enjoyed a considerable success.

Now, reconditioned, it had been shipped to the United States where a considerable demand for Sunbeam Talbots had developed, and to Fresno where it caught Temps' eye.

"I REALLY didn't know a thing about Sunbeam Talbots, and I didn't buy it with the idea of acquiring a show car," Temps says.

But Temps had begun attending concours in the late 1950s including the big show at Pebble Beach. Naturally, he became interested in displaying his own unusual acquisition.

The Sunbeam Talbot Alpine made its first appearance in San Rafael's Peacock Gap concours in September of 1964. It failed to place, but that was only the beginning.

TEMPS SHOWS the car in a combined class for sports cars, competition, current and retired, as a retired competition car because of its past record in the English rallies.

The second showing came in June of 1965 at The Guardsmen's show in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park. Again, the Alpine failed to place. But in September of 1965, Temps and his entry crashed through the prize barrier with a second in its class at that year's Peacock Gap concours.

There followed a first in class at El Macero in Sacramento in April of 1966, a second at Hillsborough in May, a first in the Herrick Memorial Concours at Berkeley in June, another first in the Herrick Memorial Concours in San Jose that same year, and a second in its class at the Palo Alto Town and Country show three weeks ago.

TO WHAT does Temps attribute the record of continuous improvement for his car?

"Experience," he answers simply.

Then he adds: "You learn to anticipate what the judges will be looking for. It's a matter of experience."

He estimates that an average of 100 hours goes into the preperation for each show.

"YOUR CAR must be, quite literally, spotless and in perfect condition, if you wish to compete successfully," he says. "You should be able to rub a white tissue over any part of the automobile — and not soil it."

Temps has the assistance of wife Muriel in preparing the Sunbeam Talbot for a concours. And son Arthur, 5, accompanies them to the shows.

The next competitive appearance of the Sunbeam Talbot will take place tomorrow at Concord.

But the big one coming up for Temps is the 1967 Concours d'Elegance at Peacock Gap, to be held Sunday, Sept. 25.

"THE PEACOCK Gap show is definitely one of the major concourses in the country now," he says.

What contributes to its prestige, in addition to the high caliber of entries, is the beautiful setting, he adds. "It is right up there with Pebble Beach in that category, in my opinion."

The Sunbeam Talbot originally sold for $3,400. It would bring more today, Temps believes, partially because of the handrubbed British racing green lacquer paint job it has acquired in the interim.

FRED TEMPS TAKES his Sunbeam Talbot out for a spin. He likes to drive the sports car about three times a week in good weather. Otherwise, he drives his Chevrolet.

AND PROUD AS Temps is of the Sunbeam Talbot, he might just wind up selling the car some day.

"Once you get involved, there is always the feeling that perhaps you would like to acquire something different and try your luck with it," he says.

Temps also owns a 1965 Chevrolet Impala. "That is my first car, in which I do most of my driving."

He tries to drive the Sunbeam Talbot about three times a week in good weather only. "I never take it out in wet weather."

THERE IS, he says, "a lot of difference" in driving the two cars.

Contrary to the contentions of most sports car buffs, Temps says he is more relaxed and at ease when behind the steering wheel of the Chevrolet than when driving the Sunbeam Talbot.

"You feel a lot safer in the Chevrolet," he says. "The sports car hasn't the bumper of the weight around you. You just feel more exposed, and the maneuverability factor doesn't counteract it — at least not for me."

But when it comes to show time — then that is when the Sunbeam Talbot Alpine shines.

YOUNG ARTHUR TEMPS enjoys looking over some of the trophies his father, Fred Temps, has won with his sport car in West Coast automobile shows. The scene is the Temps home in San Rafael's Glenwood district.

The Lord And His Lady

The Fairfaxes Lived In The Style Of Their English Nobel Ancestors

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

In the mid-1800s a gay and handsome couple brought vitality and culture to what was until then a primitive section of Marin.

They also gave the community that was to develop there its name.

Fairfax was named for Lord and Lady Fairfax, who dispensed hospitality in the grand manner of British nobility and the Southern gentry at their 31-acre estate which was a portion of the old Canada de Herrera grant, made to Don Domingo Sais.

LORD CHARLES Snowden Fairfax was 20 years old when, with members of the Virginia Company composed of other young and adventurous young southerners, he set out boldly for the West to make his fortune in the gold fields.

The year was 1849. And the company was bringing with it a cargo of tobacco, machinery and sundry materials for goods-hungry California, the proceeds from which would be used to finance an expedition into the mining country.

The Glenmore sailed from the James River in Virginia on April 6, 1849, and arrived in San Francisco Bay on Oct. 6, 1849.

AMONG THE 75 members of the Virginia Company were two young men of outstanding character who had been friends since boyhood and who were to play major roles in the history of Central Marin. They were Fairfax, and Dr. Alfred W. Taliaferro, to become the beloved physician who administered so faithfully and skillfully to the poor and rich Marinites alike.

The young Virginians encountered disappointment when they unloaded their cargo. The market, they found, had become quite suddenly glutted. Other ships had reached the bay before them with similar merchandise.

The ship, for which $36,000 had been paid, was sold for $12,000. The tobacco was left to rot at the wharf. The machinery and other goods found few buyers. Soon the company was disbanded with some, including Charles Fairfax, heading for the mines.

HE HAD, however, become accustomed to a luxurious life on the southern plantation he had left. Now the rough lot of the miner in the Mother Lode country was not to his liking.

A member of one of the first families of Virginia, he was a descendant of Lord Fairfax of England who had settled a grant to his ancestors from the British crown of what was to become the province and then the state of Virginia.

Charles, or Charlie Fairfax, as he preferred, could have renounced his American citizenship and returned to England to become the titled tenth lord of Fairfax. However, he chose to remain in the country where he was born and reared.

THUS THE rugged winter of 1849-50 found him living in a cabin in Grass Valley, then the mining center of the Far West. It was to produce upwards of 100 million dollars in gold in a century-plus of mining.

Charlie Fairfax, however, had neither the patience nor the physical stamina for gold mining. Politics was more to his liking.

From a description written by Samuel B. Dickson it is easy to see that Charlie Fairfax was a flamboyant personality attractive to the color-starved California pioneers. Wrote Dickson:

"Charlie Fairfax, instinctively the nobleman, innately the gentleman, wore frock coats, silk hats and high boots, in days when linens were white and stiffly starched, and heavy guns were carried in the belt. He was soft of voice, kindly of eye, courteous, gallant and debonair, and a charming gentleman when ladies were present.

"HE PLAYED in politics, played with life, with no thought of tomorrow, no worries of today. Pioneer of pioneers, he was a red-blooded, devil-may-care gentleman. All San Francisco knew him and was glad to call him friend, but withal a dangerous enemy. No man might question his honor for he was quick on the draw, a dead shot and quick to demand satisfaction when crossed."

Fairfax began his political career in 1851. That July he was a delegate to the Democratic State Convention at Downieville.

His subsequent career was to include service as an assemblyman from Yuba and Sierra counties and as speaker of the Assembly, and still later as a Marin County supervisor.

In January of 1855, Charlie Fairfax and Ada Benham were married.

SHE WAS a belle of early San Francisco society. Her father was Joseph Benham, a lawyer from Cincinnati, Ohio, who had served as a chief justice. Her grandfather had fought in the Indian wars. Her mother was from the DuPont family, and she raised her beautiful daughter to excel in the social graces.

Ada's stepbrother, Calhoun Benham, a noted San Francisco lawyer, was already well established in San Francisco when Ada and her family arrived there. He introduced Ada to many young men anxious to meet the attractive newcomer. She had scores of admirers, among them Charlie Fairfax. He was much struck by her personal charm — not only her beauty, but her dignity and brilliance of mind and conversation as well.

Soon after the wedding of Jan. 10, 1855, the young couple established their home on the Central Marin estate that they called Bird's Nest Glan.

THE LATE James H. Wilkins, newspaperman and onetime mayor of San Rafael, knew Lord and Lady Fairfax well. He wrote:

"Whatever the circumstances, whatever his clothes, anyone with half an eye could see that Fairfax was a gentleman by right. He had a bearing, a poise, an unconscious stateliness that is born, not made. This was joined with a perfect courtesy that was extended to high and low alike.

"His wife was his female prototype. She looked more like a queen than any woman I ever saw, albeit a very gracious one.

"SHE WAS followed everywhere by a troop of worshipers, whom she accepted as a matter of course and treated all alike.

"Their old-fashioned love of an estate induced them to seek a home in Marin County. His lordship's business was principally political. He held a string of offices, state and federal. He was speaker of the Assembly and for some years was clerk of the Supreme Court where the salary was small but the prerequisites enormous. The duties of these positions could not have been very onerous, for the incumbent still managed to spend most of his time at his country residence."

While Fairfax did not especially care for the title lord, his wife delighted in being addressed as Lady Fairfax. She enjoyed her fine home and her garden where her gardeners planted the shrubs and flowers she liked best. Lady Fairfax had many hours in her garden to herself, as her husband was away much of the time, either on political forays, hunting or gambling.

JAMES WILKINS wrote: "At the Fairfax home, old-time southern hospitality was dispensed according to the best traditions. The house was always a little more than filled with guests. Farmers, cattlemen, even strangers never passed the Fairfax residence. A great table was always spread out, and at the noon meal, what with the regulars and the casuals, it took on the appearance of a vast boarding house.

"In those days the cost of living didn't worry anyone. Fruit, vegetables, milk, butter, fish and game were all at hand. The price of beef and mutton was a joke. Labor cost nothing as there were a lot of loose characters who preferred to hang around the Fairfax home and work for their keep, rather than earn wages elsewhere. So free-handed hospitality was not such a burden as one might suppose.

"But there was one item that must have been staggering — namely whiskey. A demijohn or two of the liquor was always on tap, and there were some mighty heavy tankers in those days. The lord was not adverse to dallying with the enemy at times, but, although he never went beyond a certain stage, his lady made strenuous objections.

"AFTER ONE of his exploits, and the usual certain lecture, Lady Fairfax wound up saying she would condone that particular offense, but if it were repeated, there would surely be a storm.

"Not long afterwards Fairfax went to San Rafael, and business of importance evidently detained him there until a late hour. Sometime in the night — or early morning — Lady Fairfax awoke to find the room lighted and my lord sitting on the floor with a peculiarly solemn expression on his face. Over his head he held an opened umbrella.

"'Charles Fairfax, have you lost your senses?,' exclaimed his lady.

"'No, madam,' replied the nobleman. 'Senses never better. Just waiting for the storm to break.'

"LADY FAIRFAX, besides being a beauty, was also a woman of brilliant wit. She seemed to talk much the same was as a bird sings — just because she couldn't help it. At the head of her mixed table at the rural home, where society and rough rancheros touched shoulders every day, there never was a more graceful hostess, one more quick to put everyone at ease, or more ready in her powers of entertainment.

"But like all true gentle folk, Lord and Lady Fairfax were

"FABRICS BONDED TO FABRIC GIVE YOU MANY ADVANTAGES"

Permanently bonding an outer or face fabric to a knitted tricot lining fabric—so the two are inseparably one unit—imparts certain benefits. It eliminates separate linings, simplifies alterations, imparts wrinkles-resistance, gives pleat-retention, protects against skin irritation, and helps control shape and fit. Besides, this construction prevents cold clamminess in winter and a hot, humid, heavy feeling in summer.

For satisfactory performance, bonded fabrics should withstand drycleaning and wetcleaning, and maintain drapability and original hang. They should not change color or develop an odor, nor undergo chemical changes due to the bonding. They should be treated for shrinkage control so any shrinkage of the face and lining fabric are compatible.

Many fabrics bonded to fabric dryclean satisfactorily. Some do not. Problems that may occur are:

Shrinkage in drycleaning or finishing—

Separation of the face fabric from the lining fabric—partially or completely—

Stiffening in drycleaning and finishing—due to adhesive used—

Staining or mark-through of the adhesive to the face fabric during drycleaning and finishing.

Performance in wear and cleaning depends on the bonding formula and the procedure for joining the fabrics. The temperature at which the bond is cured is a factor, too. Consult your professional drycleaner if you have questions regarding the selection and care of fabrics bonded to fabric, suggests the National Institute of Drycleaning.

LADY FAIRFAX, the former Ada Benham, a San Francisco society belle, was noted for her brilliant wit, as well as for her poise and beauty, captured so well in this portrait.

THE FAIRFAX STORY

never personal and never attempted to be witty at the expense of someone else. They had the tenderest consideration for the feelings of others; in short, they avoided the bad breeding and vulgarity that is now so common among those who pride themselves on their conversational charm.

"Lady Fairfax would tell a good story on herself as well as on her spouse.

"FOR EXAMPLE, I heard tell of an incident that happened while she and her husband were staying at a hotel in Marysville. Her husband was suddenly called away and she was left alone. She was nervous and timid as the night came on. The noise of roistering goldseekers in the street below terrified her.

"Finally, a brilliant scheme flashed into her mind which was promptly acted on. She placed a pair of her husband's boots outside the door to indicate a male occupancy, and with this protection she felt safe.

"Presently, a step was heard in the corridor and halted at the door. After a pause, a voice inquired: 'You there, Lady Fairfax?'

"'Yes,' said the lady faintly.

"'Then if you value your reputation, for God's sake, take in those damned boots. Everybody in the hotel knows your husband is away tonight.'

"FAIRFAX WAS not a perfect character. Among other things, he was more or less given to the godless delights of gambling, very prevalent in the early days. Cards were too slow for him. His favorite amusement was the pastime known as 'crack loo.' The game was simplicity itself. The players arranged themselves over a crack in the floor, dropped 20-dollar gold pieces as near as possible to it, and the one who came the closest gathered in the coins.

"As a device for speedy action and to promote the interchange of money, it had no superior. But at his home gambling was not tolerated. His lordship was very sensitive on the point that no one should have cause to lament a sojourn under his hospitable roof.

"He was so impertubably good-natured and had such a faculty for smoothing troubled waters that no one could be angry with him, even when he was grievously at fault.

"ONE MORNING he stopped his buggy at my home for a friendly chat with my mother. He explained that he was on his way to a rodeo. 'Why not let the boy go with him?' referring to this writer. My mother, fresh from Baltimore, probably supposed a rodeo was some kind of a refined social function, and she readily consented.

"The rodeo was held on the domain of James Black, the cattle king. Every year he held a

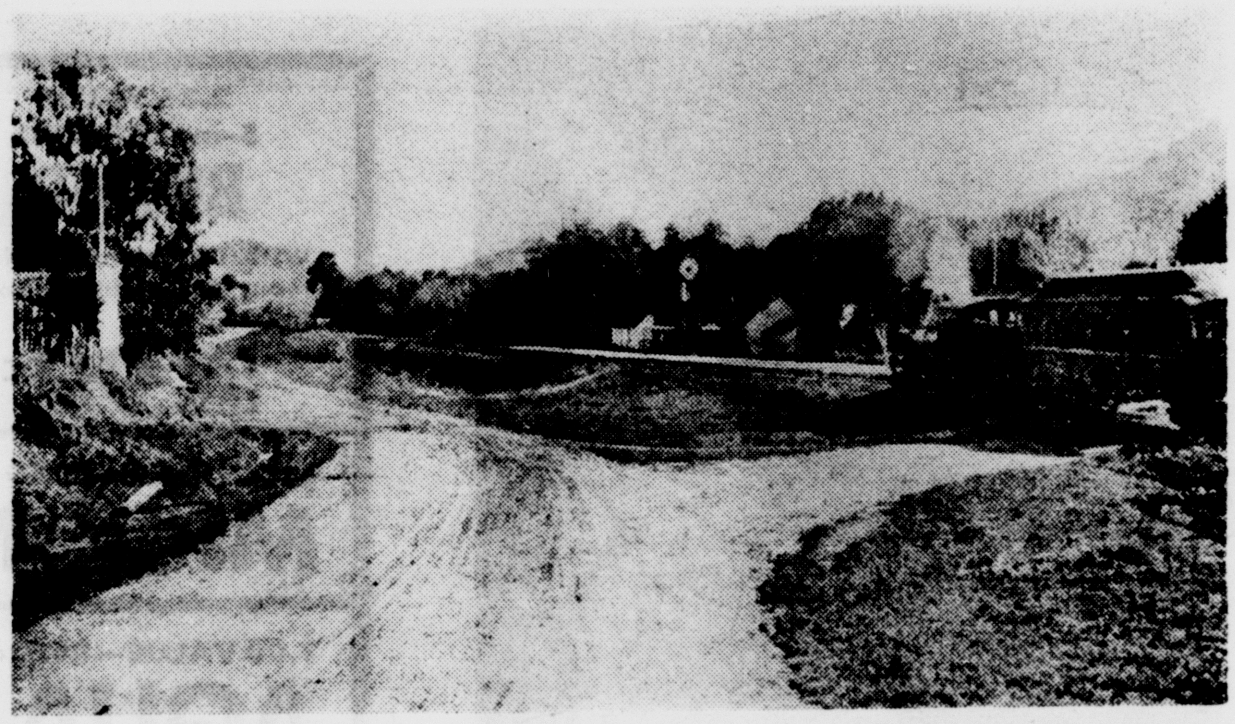
Lord Charlie And His Lady Lived In The Grand Manner



FAIRFAX WAS STILL very much a pastoral community, despite the train, when this photograph was taken in 1898, nearly three decades after Lord Charles Fairfax had died, and a decade after his wife had followed him in death. (Photo courtesy of Marin County Historical Society)

rodeo, or round-up of his thousands of head of animals at the home ranch Olompali where they were counted and the yearlings branded.

"As to what happened on that particular occasion, I have only a sort of stupified remembrance.

"I have a vision of a sea of bellowing, struggling cattle, of vaqueros in gala dress on plunging horses, swinging riatas, of a fiery bull with lolling tongue and outstretched tail that charged our buggy, only to be deprived of its prey by a timely rope cast by an expert. I seem to recall a banquet of barbaric proportions, a scene of wine and wassail, a single combat between my protector and a gentleman of dark complexion, and finally going to bed in an adobe mansion.

"SOMEWHERE ABOUT mid-night I was awakened and got up and got into the buggy and started homeward with his lordship.

"My mother was waiting with an uplifted candle, resembling the modern figure of Liberty enlightening the world. She was the gentlest creature who ever lived, except in matters concerning her brood. She flew at Fairfax with the fury of a tigress, and I doubt if nobility ever was handed such a tongue-lashing. But presently my lord began to get a word in edgewise. The atmosphere seemed to soften and, in a few minutes, the two were seated at a table, talking in the most friendly fashion of Maryland and old Virginia.

"Nothing short of genius could have won such a triumph.

"Fairfax was a firm believer in the code duello. He advocated the settlement by artillery of differences between gentlemen that are now adjusted more rationally by a club.

"HIS TERRIBLE reputation as a marksman probably secured him immunity from afront. With shotgun, rifle or pistol, he was an unequaled practitioner. Yet his untimely death was caused by a sword wound that never healed properly and finally broke down his splendid constitution. The incident leading to this injury showed the real nobleman at his best."

There are several versions of this incident spoken of by Wilkins.

As nearly as can be reconstructed from the records, the event took place in Sacramento in 1858. Fairfax had come out of the hotel where he was staying when he met a friend who had been appointed a reporter of the State Supreme Court. Most of the judges had been in favor of the appointment of a relative of Fairfax.

Fairfax and his friend got into a fierce argument during which the other man made a derogatory statement about one of the judges. Enraged, Fairfax slapped the man's face or tweaked his nose. The manner of the insult does not matter.

ACCORDING TO Wilkins again:

"The man insulted did not challenge but meeting Fairfax the next day unawares whipped a sword from a cane and ran it through his lungs. It was a dastard's act.

"In an instant, Fairfax drew his pistol, covered his assailant, hesitated a moment, then threw the weapon to the street, saying proudly: 'I spare you for your wife and family. You and I are quits'."

Fairfax was not expected to live, as the wound was deep and the victim lost much blood. However, he recovered, and, although weak, continued his activities as usual. Lady Fairfax wanted him to stay at home, but he was restless and rode to Northern California and to Nevada.

"THEN CAME a time of sorrow for Fairfax and his lady. An article in the Marin County Journal of May 25, 1867, under the heading "Dramatic Suicide," reported that C. W. Snowden, 33, of Howard County, Md., had killed himself. He was a relative of Lord Fairfax and probably the one who had been the cause of the trouble between his lordship and the erstwhile friend in Sacramento that had nearly caused the death of Fairfax.

More light is thrown upon the suicide tragedy by an article in the Independent of Feb. 2, 1915.

That story told of the razing of the old sawmill at San Quentin that had been erected by Benjamin Rush Buckelew. The mill was destroyed to make room for the wharf for ferryboat operation to Richmond.

ACCORDING TO the article, after the machinery of the sawmill was taken away, a Joseph Santos, friend of the Buckelews, continued to live in the old mill building as a caretaker. The story said that a Colonel Snowden, "a tall, handsome fellow, was assistant in the commissary at San Quentin Prison and frequently walked down to visit with Santos." And the story went on to say that the young man was in love with the daughter of a wealthy San Rafael man, but that she jilted him and married another.

On a day when Joe Santos was not at home, Snowden walked into the old mill building, seated himself in Joe's favorite armchair, put an old army pistol to his head and blew out his brains. The body of Snowden was taken to San Rafael for interment.

From all this dramatic and romantic background came stories of a tall white ghost seen moving in and around the old mill site. Joe Santos told of such visitations. And when he was found dead in the same old armchair, there were those who believed the ghost had strangled him.

ON MAY 9, 1868, the Marin County Journal announced that Charles S. Fairfax had been selected by the Democrats of California as one of their delegates to the National Democratic Convention.

When Fairfax went to New York for the convention, it was as chairman of the California delegation. But he was in failing health by then. When he continued on from New York to Baltimore to visit his mother, Caroline Fairfax, he died there April 4, 1869.

The Marin County Journal of April 24, 1869, had a long account of the death of "our former fellow citizen."

It reported that Thomas Fairfax had reliquished his English estates to his brother Robert, preferring to settle on a plantation of more than a million acres in Virginia that he had inherited from his mother Catherine Culpepper.

THE ARTICLE concluded: "He (Fairfax) never claimed the title, preferring to die as he had lived, an American citizen." the same was true of his son Charles. It was society that insisted upon bestowing the title of lord upon him.

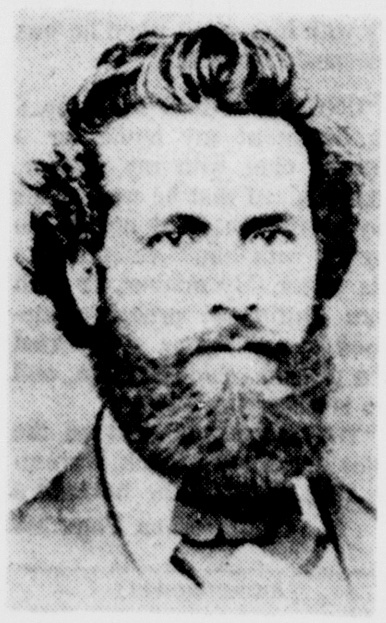
The days that followed her husband's death were sad ones for poor Lady Fairfax. No longer was Bird's Nest Glen filled with his vibrant presence, now with gay company. The house was silent, its walls no longer reverberating with laughter.

Soon after her lord's death, Lady Fairfax sold the Marin property to Mary A. Owens for $9,000. The deed was recorded May 21, 1870. She then moved to Fort Ross to Sonoma County property her husband had acquired but, because of litigation, had been unable to possess. The law suit had been settled after Lord Fairfax's death.

THE LAND was heavily timbered and James Dixon, who had owned a lumber mill at Nicasio and had been a close friend of the Fairfaxes, carried on the logging operations.

Dixon was killed in a logjam, and Lady Fairfax moved to San Francisco, where she was registered, as was her stepbrother, Calhoun Benham, then a widower, at the Lick House. She was in "greatly reduced circumstances," as it was politely phrased in those days, for she had indulged her expensive tastes and her money had dwindled away.

As a result, she accepted a government position, and went East to assume her duties. But the rigors of the climate there were too much for her delicate constitution and she died of tuberculosis in 1888, a continent's width away from the community to which she and her husband had given their name — and which was then just beginning to give signs of the pleasant city it was to become.



JAMES DIXON was a close friend of the Fairfaxes. He had operated a lumber mill at Nicasio, and, after Lord Fairfax's death, came to the assistance of his widow by directing the logging operations for her on her Fort Ross property. A logging mishap ended his life.

AS ONE OF THE medical experts appearing at the "Medical Conference on Smoking and Health" conducted by fifth and sixth grade pupils of Dorothy Wall at the MacPhail School in San Rafael last year, "Dr." Richard Klarkowski discusses with his secretary, Tonette Tangcay, a chest X-ray. Also in the photo are two other "doctors" — Pam Blisset and Stephen Lewis — who are studying another X-ray of a lung cancer patient. The conference represented the teacher and students' unique way of dramatizing the perils of cigarette smoking, and has attracted widespread interest.

Dramatization Helps Make Point That Smoking Is Harmful Habit

San Rafael Grade School Students Hold Their Own Medical Conference

By DON KEOWN

With another school term under way, the Marin Interagency Council on Smoking and Health is, in the popular terminology of the day, moving to "escalate" its war against cigarettes among young Marinites.

And from a program first conceived and executed last year by teacher Dorothy Wall of San Rafael's John MacPhail School and her fifth and sixth grade pupils, Dr. Gerald Hill, chairman of the interagency council, believes his group may have been handed its most effective weapon to date in its combat with the tobacco habit.

THE TWO KEY words in the new program are "dramatization" and "participation."

It is based upon the active participation of the students themselves in first researching and then dramatizing the harmful effects of smoking.

The entire class participated.

Their facts gathered, they collectively wrote a script and presented their own theatrical production.

THE CAST INCLUDED the United States surgeon general, medical scientists, representatives and scientists from the tobacco industry, cytologists, roentgenologists, a member of the U.S. surgeon general's study commission, physicians from the Royal College of Physicians in London, a cancer specialist, an obstetrician, a number of specialists in pulmonary diseases accompanied by their patients, and two ex-smokers who had beaten the habit.

The scene was "A Medical Conference on Smoking and Health."

Kevin Ryan, portraying the surgeon general, outlined the purpose of the conference: "The controversial problems we have come to discuss is whether or not cigarette smoking is injurious to your health. Our goal is to give you a fuller understanding of the risks you take when you light a cigarette . . ."

THEN THE young audience was told: " . . . the great bulk of medical opinion has concluded that there is an adverse causal relationship between cigarette smoking and health."

In the testimony from the experts and other witnesses that followed, the listeners heard:

That in a single year—1963—327 million dollars was spent by the tobacco industry in television, newspaper and magazine advertising, while, since 1954, the American Cancer Society had spent only five million dollars on cancer research.

THEY LISTENED while the "scientists" and "doctors" reported on experiments and case histories that had led them to the conclusion that smoking was, indeed, harmful to the health.

They heard, too, rebuttal testimony from the tobacco industry

A GROUP PLANNING session for the "Medical Conference on Smoking and Health" conducted by fifth and sixth grade pupils of MacPhail School teacher Dorothy Wall (standing at rear of the classroom) listens to a report from Hans Hartmann, standing. The boys and girls did their own research, then wrote the "script" for the conference and played the roles.

Much of the testimony was illustrated with blackboard drawings, diagrams, charts, slides and other exhibits.

The two ex-smokers told how they had beat the habit. "The year I won the war against cigarettes was one on the most memorable years of my life," one said.

AT THE conference's conclusion, "Dr." Ryan summarized. "My associates and I feel that if we can prevent one non-smoker from smoking or make one smoker stop, our presentation will have been worthwhile, for in the end it is up to every individual to decide whether to smoke or not to smoke."

Says Dr. Gerald Hill of the MacPhail School program: "I think it is the single most effective idea yet conceived as a means of bringing home to our boys and girls the fact that the decision to take up smoking is no light matter."

He adds that it is the hope of the interagency council he heads that other Marin schools will stage similar demonstrations this year.

"WHEN THE pupils do the preparatory work, then act it out, they can't help but be influenced by what they see and hear," he says.

Dr. Hills says that interest in the project has expanded beyond the boundaries of Marin County, and that queries concerning it have been received from a number of other areas.

The California Inter-Agency Council on Smoking and Health, of which Dr. Hill is also a member, has shown an interest in the idea and asked for a summary of how the program functioned at the MacPhail School.

"CERTAINLY," says Dr. Hill of the Marin council, "We intend to do everything we can to push the idea. We think it has great possibilities."

The Marin interagency council includes representatives of the Marin Medical Society, the Marin County superintendent of schools and the administrators of the districts within the county, the heart, cancer and tuberculosis associations, and the school nurses.

The MacPhail School-originated plan is only one of three arrows that the council members have in their bow, aimed at the tobacco weed.

Another program for which they have high hopes originated at Tamalpais High School.

THERE SEVERAL senior students strongly opposed to smoking contacted Edna Maguire School and asked for permission to speak to seventh and eighth grade pupils directly on the problem.

"Such 'platoon' instruction by personal example seems to be an effective means of undermining the status of smoking and helps to balance the presentations of adult experts."

The council also sponsors an established program of 15-minute talks by adult authorities, followed or preceded by a 10 to 20-minute film and a question-and-answer period.

This program can be led by informed teachers, although a third of the membership of the Marin Medical Society has volunteered its services.

It is recommended for presentation with variations at fifth, seventh and ninth grade intervals.

DR. HILL SAYS the anti-cigarette sentiment in Marin schools seems to have slumped in recent years.

"Interest appears to have hit its peak about four years ago," he says, "when we had many, many requests from schools for our programs. Now there are not so many requests.

"Perhaps that has been partially due to the fact that the schools are relying to a greater extent upon their own resources. But we think that that alone is not sufficient. That outside people are needed to supplement those efforts and to emphasize the importance of the problem."

FRESH, NEW approaches may be the answer to stimulating renewed interest, Dr. Hill believes.

Thus the keen interest in the participation program inaugurated among Dorothy Wall's MacPhail School students last year.

"In the process of staging their program, these 11 and 12-year-olds became definitely anti-cigarette," Dr. Hill says. "We feel there will be fewer smokers among them in the future than among the usual group that size."

TO DETERMINE more definitely just how effective the long-term results will be, the Marin Interagency Council on Smoking and Health is setting up a controlled study that will keep a continuing record of the number of students who participated in the MacPhail School program who ultimately take up smoking as against corresponding figures for another group not involved in the conference.

Dr. Hill, for one, is confident those statistics will show a reduction in the number of smokers.

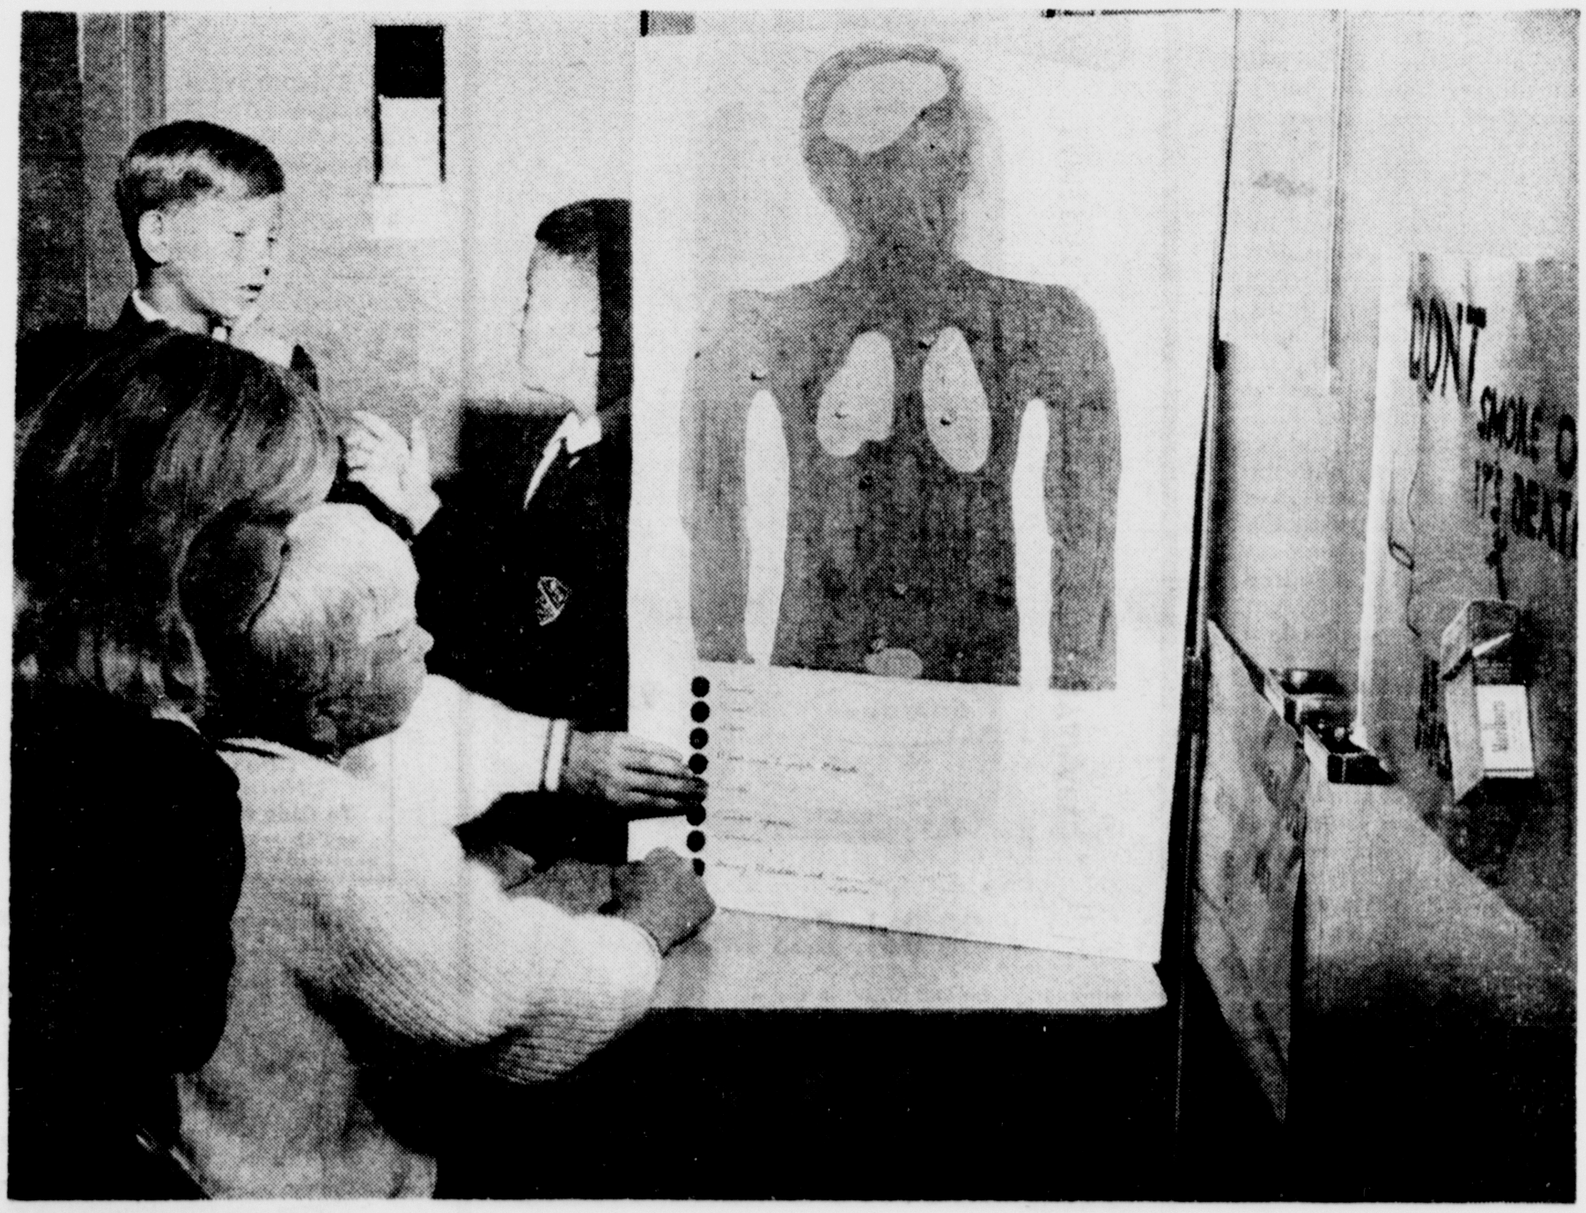
"DR." JULI JONES draws a picture of respiratory organs to help her illustrate a point during her presentation before the health conference. At right two other student-physicians, Linda Boyd and Theresa Kendall, discuss a diagram already on the blackboard showing the differences in growth between cancerous and normal cells. Drawings, chart and other diagrams were used extensively during the conference.



GARY BURNS, in his role as an ex-smoker, listens to "Dr." David McIrvin explain at rear just where cancer strikes the human body most frequently. At front, technician David Zappa follows the discussion and points out to observer Renee Brown on the anatomical chart the location of those body part involved.

WIRELESS MICROPHONES — If you have been to St. Raphael's Church during a mass, you will have noticed that the priest moves freely around the altar without any wires hanging from him, and yet you can hear every word he says clearly. Or you may have been in a Reno or Las Vegas night club and watched an entertainer walk among the audience talking and singing, no wires hanging from him, and yet the sound comes through strong and clear from the sound system. These people are wearing a wireless microphone.

The wireless microphone is really a miniature FM broadcasting station. The small item that the entertainer or speaker wears hanging around his neck consists of a small microphone connected to a minute FM transistorized transmitter and powered by a small battery. The Vega system, one of the leading brands, includes the microphone, the transmitter, and the battery all in a 1 inch diameter assembly smaller than a conventional microphone. Some manufacturers use a small lavalier microphone for hanging around the neck, and an FM transmitter and battery combination about the size of a cigarette pack which can be placed in a pocket or beneath the clothes. These FM transmitters operate on a fixed frequency authorized by FCC for this purpose. The power output is very low.

The wireless system includes an FM receiver. Some receivers are fixed tuned to the microphone frequency, and others have tuneable receivers. The receiver is usually placed at the sound equipment location. The output of the receiver is connected into the sound system. Regardless of where the person with the microphone walks or moves to, within a few hundred foot radius, the receiver picks up the signal, feeds it the sound system where it is amplified and fed to the loudspeaker systems as are the conventional wired microphones.

Wireless microphone systems are used in churches, in lecture halls, in entertainment centers, in TV studios, announcing situations where cables would be a problem such as boat races and rodeos, and sometimes for bugging purposes.

Quality wireless microphone systems are quite expensive.

On The Stereo Scene

By JOHN SUNIER

DVORAK: Trio in F Minor; HAYDN: Trio No. 3 in C Major — David Oistrakh/Sviatoslav Knushevitsky/Lev Oborin — Monitor Stereo MCS 2071:

This is one of the Collectors Series on Monitor, which is making available great performances from Eastern Europe at bargain prices, competing with Nonesuch, Turnabout and other similar projects. While most are re-channeled for stereo, this one is genuine stereo.

Anyone who appreciates the recent increase in interest in Dvorak's chamber music will want to have this exclusive recording of the Trio Opus 65. The Haydn trio is also in its only stereo discing.

The Oistrakh trio's performances are, of course, definitive, with however a considerably more joyful outlook than the soulful Russian. Although couched in the format of "drawing-room pieces," these short works have style and form, tinged with an unsentimental nostalgia.

The major works are the "Pieces Pittoresques," the Cinq Morceaux Pour Piano" and the "Trois Valses Romantiques" for piano four hands.

Good stereo.

CHABRIER: Complete Piano Music—Rena Kyriakou, piano; Walter Klein in the four-hand pieces—Vox Stereo SVBX 5400:

It may come as a surprise to most music lovers that there is more to Emmanuel Chabrier than Espana and Marche Joyeuse. It turns out there is a whole world of piano compositions: Varied, melodic, dance-like and captivating to the ear.

When working with the piano, this composer seems to be a sort of French Tchaikovsky.

AN EVENING OF FLAMENCO MUSIC—The Romeros: Celedinio, Celin, Pepe and Angel —Angel Stereo SR9434:

This fifth album by the astounding "Royal Family of the Spanish Guitar" concentrates on the music that seems to be the most favored in concerts before American audiences—flamenco. This was as true of the latest concert at the Geary in San Francisco as at other appearances.

The eight selections on the album feature either one member of the family or all four in dazzling displays of fiery guitar strumming. The one member specializing in flamenco is Pepe. One Sabicas or Montoya is exciting enough, but imagine four at once and you have the Romeros.

Stereo is a must in this case!

BLUEPRINT

If I should ever be a millionaire,
I'd go down where the busy city hums,
And buy the creaking, crumbling buildings there,
And have them torn down. Here, in place of slums,
A plot of grass would grow, where children dare
To play; and then, I'd build in brand new homes,
Bright kitchens, that would send upon the air
A goodly welcome, when the evening comes.

THE BOOK PAGES

The Teacher Who Cared For The Victims Of Race Hatred

THE CHILDREN OF THE SOUTH by Margaret Anderson, Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 208 pages, $4.95.

THE SEA OF CORTEZ by Ray Cannon and editors of Sunset, Lane, 284 pages, $9.95 until Dec. 31, $11.75, thereafter.

By DON KEOWN

The dedication with which Margaret Anderson pursues her duties and responsibilities as a public school teacher hardly makes her a rarity in a profession for its unstinting service.

What does make Mrs. Anderson unusual, and qualifies her to write a book, are two things:

1. She taught in the Clinton, Tenn., high school at a time when that Southern community was ripped, almost literally, to shreds by racial strife and hatred.

2. She has shown a special interest in and concern for Negro children — especially those entering newly desegregated schools — as part of her work as counselor and teacher.

Her "The Children of the South" is directed largely toward her fellow Southerners. But there is a great deal of value in it for readers from all sections.

Her principal message is that desegregation and integration are not necessarily one and the same. It serves no real purpose if school doors are open to young Negroes, but the hearts of teachers, fellow students and the public remain closed. Along with admittance we owe these young people recognition of the fact that they are starting a whole new way of life sadly handicapped by what has gone on before, and an opportunity to overcome that handicap.

She has specific suggestions including special remedial programs in such basics as reading (highly important), writing, spelling and speech; life experiences of the field trip kind to compensate for an almost total lack of social contact; strong guidance programs directed by those especially trained in interculture relations to meet their special needs; an education in the rich heritage of their people that will instill within them pride in their race; a drawing of their parents into closer contact with the schools.

Most important, she says, is encouragement to build self-confidence, for these are youngsters who have been made to feel that nothing is expected of them but failure.

Mrs. Anderson tells the shocking story of the shameful disorders in Clinton when the unsavory John Kasper fanned latent prejudice into violent resistance to desegregation. That conflagration led ultimately to bombings, one of which destroyed the schoolhouse.

But most of her attention is focused upon children — primarily, but not exclusively, Negro boys and girls. She makes it plain that white children, too, are victims when racism runs rampant.

Of the more recent past, the present and the future, Mrs. Anderson sometimes sounds unduly and naively optimistic. But if she seems to overpraise the pace at which the country is moving toward social justice, it is because of her own innate decency and belief in humanity.

No less a judge than Atlanta's great editor Ralph McGill in his splendid forword says the book is one that "will be remembered and kept when many others books coming out of the fever and ferment of the South will be forgotten." We suspect the years will prove the farsighted Mr. McGill right once again.

ADVANCE WORD was to the effect that "The Sea of Cortez" would be the prize offering on the season's publishing list of Sunset Books from Menlo Park's Lane Magazine & Book Co.

An examination of the book itself amply justifies that pride on the part of the publisher. It is a big and glossy volume that covers the history, the geography, the biology and the culture of one of the world's most exotic and most interesting regions, the Gulf of California and its Mexican coastline.

Ray Cannon, movie-maker turned fishing authority, has written the text in cooperation with the Sunset staff. As might be expected, Cannon has incorporated a large amount of expert information on fishing. The book, however, will appeal to many besides sportsmen — to sightseers, to nature enthusiasts, to photographers, to collectors, to armchair travelers, and to just plain admirers of superior book publishing projects.

The many illustrations are beautifully reproduced, with the color scenic photos especially striking. Wash drawings of plant and wildlife and of fish species are a special feature.

It is certain to receive a great deal of attention as a gift book, come Christmas time.

STEPHEN GREENE Press has issued 78 more of the "Man in Apron" cartoons by Larry (Terence Parker) that were a decided hit in their earlier appearance. The new $1 booklet bears the title "Man's Best Friend," and of course, features some doggy doings.

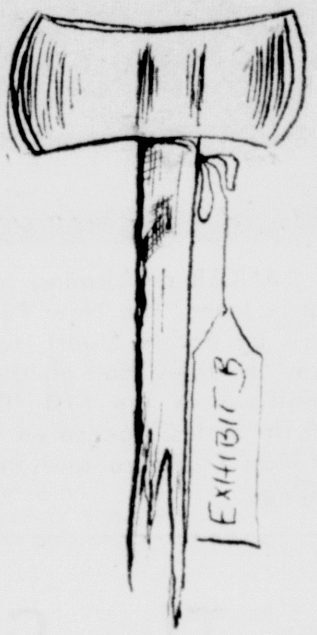
AT BERTRAM'S HOTEL by Agatha Christie, Dodd, Mead, 272 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.



The years have in no way dimmed wonderful Agatha Christie's remarkable abilities as a storyteller, and the publication of a new Miss Marple mystery remains an event to be celebrated among her legions of admirers.

"At Bertram's Hotel" finds Miss Marple playing a somewhat secondary role to Scotland Yard's Chief Inspector Fred (Father) Davy. But that detective is, himself, an interesting character.

The scene is a venerable London hotel that has managed to cling through the years to its aura of dignified respectability, dispensing luxurious service and accommodation with a minimum of fanfare. Seemingly, no place would be less suited to violence. But violence there is, and it challenges all the ingenuity of Davy and Miss Marple.

Atmosphere and characters are first rate. The plot is not quite Agatha Christie at her very best, but it is still highly engrossing.

Changing America From '39 To Present Day

THE GREAT LEAP: The Past 25 Years in America, by John Brooks, Harper and Row, 360 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

"In the United States of America not very long ago, a good many conditions prevailed that seem rather odd today."

Thus John Brooks, one of the better post-Ross New Yorker writers, begins "The Great Leap: The Last 25 Years in America."

The time "not very long ago" that he has chosen to contrast with today is 1939. In that year, Americans were still recovering from a depression, and were growing increasingly uneasy about Nazi German might. That was the year also when Albert Einstein wrote a letter to Franklin D. Roosevelt suggesting that recent experiments indicated the nucleus of a uranium atom might be split to produce "A new and important source of energy" which could be used in a bomb.

Much has changed since that portentous year, Brooks finds, in our economy, our attitude toward science and the arts, our political orientation, our schools, our suburbs and our very way of life.

Among the things he lists that "seem rather odd today": "The birth rate was failing to keep up with the death rate, and demographers . . . were gloomily predicting a more or less depopulated country. . . . The average annual earnings of doctors amounted to $4,229; of lawyers, $4,391; of college teachers, a bit under $3,000. . . . A great howl went up when the President proposed a federal budget of about nine million dollars, which sum was needed, among other purposes, to support an Army and Navy totaling about 300,000 men."

There was no television, no atomic bomb, no jet airplane, no civil rights movement. The word "automation" had not even been coined.

In the quarter century since then, science and technology have sent America (and the world) leaping ahead at a rate surpassing all past history — although "ahead to what?" remains an unsettling question.

Brooks traces what has happened to our life patterns in that 25 years, and why. He does it in absorbing style, drawing upon all sorts of unexpected sources.

The result is an overview of American life today as contrasted with that of 1939 that causes the reader to pause and take stock of his own beliefs and attitudes more than once—especially if he belongs to the "half of Americans alive in 1965 (who) were alive then," as Brooks points out.

Inevitably, in such a task as Brooks (who was a Princeton student in 1939) has set himself, some things are bound to be overlooked.

He has missed the role of overseas service by millions of World War II GIs in some of the changes he notes, particularly the ending of isolationism, the increase of foreign travel, the less insular attitude toward other countries.

He has overlooked the role of the WPA in stimulating American music and writing as well as art. He dates dissatisfaction with our schools from Sputnik, forgetting all about Rudolph Flesch and the many complaints that preceded his "Why Johnny Can't Read." In describing the change in status of minorities, he remarks a diminution of anti-Semitism which the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith seems to have missed, and overlooks entirely the dramatic change in the position in society of Americans of Oriental ancestry.

And in setting forth the reasons why the United States is more widely and deeply hated abroad in the '60s than in the '30s, he has overlooked what probably is the most important reason: The presence of U.S. missiles and military bases on the soil of other nations around the world.

These, though, are minor omissions when considered in comparison with the really tremendous overview Brooks has achieved. Few "looking backward" books have ever done such a good job. This one is for real.

How Ted Won His Bid For U.S. Senate Seat

KENNEDY CAMPAIGNING by Murray B. Levin, Beacon Press, 313 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Wat Takeshita.

America's traditional log-cabin-to-White-House success story no longer carries the appeal it once did. Today it takes wealth, glamor and a costly process of professional image-making to win elections.

This theme is conveyed throughout Levin's book on how Edward Moore (Ted) Kennedy won the U.S. Senate seat in Massachusetts in 1962.

Kennedy, a 29-year-old novice who had never held public office, was up against Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Edward J. McCormack, nephew of Speaker John McCormack, in the primary.

By old standards, Edward McCormack had everything going for him. He had been a faithful party worker, and was an experienced public servant and qualified crime buster who had worked from the bottom up.

Kennedy, born with a silver spoon in his mouth, had no "record." His big claim to fame was that his brother was President of the United States.

But by painstaking planning, by use of professional campaign planners and poll-takers, and by vigorous personal campaigning, the Kennedy camp was able to turn liabilities into assets.

Levin concludes that the image of a working man starting from the bottom is no longer essential. To the modern voter, there is no honor in sweat, in breaking one's back all his life. The modern voter feels that if a man has the good fortune and the drive to start from the top, why not.

Kennedy overcame his youth and inexperience with a studied effort to convey statesmanship, knowledge of state and world affairs.

Image makers succeeded in turning the Kennedy wealth into an asset. "He's got the money; he's not in it for the buck."

And McCormack's record in state government was used against him. He was stereotyped as a typical Massachusetts politician, associated with parasitical professionals and unsavory types.

Levin, a Boston University professor, also discusses in detail the television "debate," where McCormack tore into his opponent, whereas Kennedy ignored the attack and "took the high road" to complete his image as the courteous statesman.

The book gives an intriguing insight on how the Kennedy campaign combines personal magnetism of the Presidential family with the implied threat of retribution and the lure of patronage to win elections.

Southland's Radio Chef Shares His Cooking Savvy

THE MIKE ROY COOK BOOK by Mike Roy, Ward Ritchie Press, 135 pages, paperback, $1.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Mike Roy is an ex-newspaperman who turned to radio and television and wound up ultimately conducting cooking shows on those two media that have been extremely popular with Southern California audiences.

He has specialized in some of the more adventurous dishes with European backgrounds (for which he has undergone special schooling), and in California barbecue favorites.

This paperback collection reflects those interests.

Arranged in the classic menu format from appetizers through the various courses to desserts, Roy shares his most successful recipes from 20 years as a radio and TV chef. There are introductions to each section, and line drawings along with anecdotes and hints to enliven the pages.

It is the work of an expert and experienced chef.

Intense Comic Irony Marks A New Novel

WELCOME TO THE CLUB by Clement Biddle Wood, McGraw-Hill, 246 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Philadelphia blueblood Lt. Andrew Oxblood finds his earnest Boy Scout liberalism in conflict, not only with Mom and the Old Guard at home, but also with the hierarchy of the United States Army when a trio of Negro entertainers arrive to raise the morale of the boys overseas.

The scene is post-war Hiroshima where the U.S. Army occupation forces are helping to set the example of racial harmony and democracy in action for the Japanese. Once this first novel gets moving—as the entertainers step off the train and are put into Oxblood's "lily white" hands— the comic irony becomes intense.

This should be terrific on the screen, if anyone has nerve enough to put it there intact.

Saints On March In Orleans

The Jazz Bands Gain With Youth

THE OLYMPIA brass band parades at the funeral of Kid Howard, trumpeter. Brass bands at funerals are still a part of New Orleans culture. Tourists who inuiqre about jazz parades in the French Quarter occasionally learn of such funeral processions. En route to the cemetery, the bands play dirges, but on the return, they hit the ragtime.

NEW ORLEANS—The mounted police horses pranced, trumpeter Bunk Johnson said, "that's the class of music we used on funerals."

When a band returned from a cemetery playing ragtimes, Jelly Roll Morton commented "it was the end of a perfect death."

Warren "Baby" Dodds the drummer often was hired "because he knew just when to cut in and start the real jazz home."

SOMEWHERE, BACK in New Orleans' gumbo of habits and traditions, it became appropriate to make a major celebration of a funeral. Possibly the idea dates to a West African point of view that it is indelicate and senseless to moralize to a dead person. And a band added immense prestige to a funeral.

Through "societies" their costs were planned for years in advance. On the way to the cemetery, a band played slowly: perhaps "Nearer My God To Thee," or "Flee As A Bird To The Mountains."

BABY DODDS had the perfect sense of timing which told him when to break up the ceremonies over the grave. He would march the cortege for several blocks to his snare drum, then the band would turn the hymns into ragtimes, adding "When The Saints Go Marchin' In."

Huge crowds followed, dancing, laughing, pumping parasols up and down to the music.

New Orleans is a town acutely susceptible to parading. It does not need reasons, only pretexts. But of the jazz parades, there are fewer than there used to be.

ENOUGH TO whet the imagination, but a long time ago bands would meet in the middle of the street and challenge each other's capacity for improvisation.

Buddy Bolden, the first legendary jazz figure, was king of these events, called "carving contests." Women fought for the privilege of carrying his cornet. Bolden went mad during a parade and ran amok; he died insane.

Nowadays, the new Orleans Jazz Club sponsors street parades in the French Quarter and these are well publicized. Every year the heart fund stages a "Battle of the Bands" on Canal Street reminiscent of the old days.

THE TRADITION of bands at funerals still exists, but unless a jazzman has died the information on a funeral must be ferreted out.

Inquiries can be made at the Jazz Museum, home of 10,000 jazz items, and a visit always is worth some of a visitor's time. The museum symbolizes the long way that jazz has come from its status as brothel music.

A local paper in 1817 urged the suppression of jazz "a point of civic honor." In 1961 a paper editorialized "Jazz has it made."

ALONG BOURBON Street and just off it, there is more Dixieland played today than in many years. Mainly on the strength of places like Preservation Hall and Dixieland Hall, Dixieland of New Orleans in the 1910's has come back. Al Hirt and Pete Fountain in their night clubs a couple of blocks apart in a sense are squared off in a "carving contest" for the province of Bourbon Street.

In the past several years, though, several of the musicians who have figured in the present revival of Dixieland have died.

The musicians who played as young men in the 1910's are elderly now and they are dropping off one by one.

KID HOWARD, a trumpeter at Dixieland Hall, recently died. The funeral was held on a warm Saturday and several thousand persons followed Kid and the two bands, Eureka and Olympia. Because of the crowds the bands seemed to be completely out of contact with the black limousines behind them.

The Eureka lead, playing dirges, their grand marshal Fats Houston stony-eyed, hat clasped to his breast. He walked slow-time in an exaggerated strut; a half dozen camermen preceded him, walking backwards.

Howard's burial was in a suburban cemetery, so the bands separated from him. The crowds stood aside and Kid Howard passed through—a dignified, flowery island of insouciance amid the excitement of the bands reforming.

The first number back to town was "Didn't He Ramble?"

Sweet Emma Barrett's jingle bell beanies and garters have long been accepted as a trademark in New Orleans jazz. Emma is in her 50's but she plays nearly every night; and it is almost too tragic to think that Emma's jingle bells toll for herself and the other musicians of her era.

The nice thing to note about Kid Howard's funeral was that the number of young musicians in the bands outnumbered the old.

Many A New Home Has Cracks In Plaster; Repair Is Easy

Handyman's Page

Plaster cracks sometimes will appear on the walls of houses that are only a few months old.

These openings, which can cause the owner of a new house to doubt the purchase, usually occur only because the structure has begun to settle in the ground and very rarely indicate any serious trouble.

BEFORE attempting to repair such cracks, it is important to know whether the house settling has ended. If it hasn't — and if the repairs are made — the same thing will take place again in a short time. The best way to do this is to mark off the extremities or each crack with a pencil or something else that can be easily erased.

Wait a few weeks. If the crack hasn't lengthened, it is safe to go ahead with the patching job. Don't rely on your eyes and your memory to tell you whether the plaster split is getting larger.

MOST PLASTER patching materials come in powder form and are mixed with water to make them workable. One of the most common is the spackling-type compound used mostly for small openings. It dries fairly quickly and is easy to handle. Others, including the old reliable plaster of paris, dry much faster and require that only enough be mixed to cover a small surface.

Some professionals find that a 50-50 mixture of spackling compound and plaster of paris is very effective.

THREE THINGS are important in patching plaster. One is to wet down the opening that is to be filled. The second is to wet it down after it has set. The third is to prime the spot with a primer, sealer or dab of paint before either repainting the entire wall or trying to match the patch with the rest of the surface.

If either of the first two steps is omitted, the patch will dry out too quickly. If the third step is omitted, the spot will be visible after the wall has been repainted.

SMALL CRACKS are filled merely by applying patching material to them with a putty knife. But larger cracks require undercutting. This means making the bottom of each opening larger than the top; that is, making the edges of the plaster slant inward. When this is done, the new plaster is locked in place and will not easily fall out.

Professional painters sometimes patch plaster, then go right ahead with the repainting of the wall. You'll be better off if you do the patching one day and the painting the next or, at the least, allow an interval of five or six hours.

DISPLAY IT in style on this easily built bric-a-brac shelf. The shelf can make a fine gift, but it is a good idea not to paint it, allowing the recipient to decorate to fit her home.

Bric-A-Brac Shelf Is Fine Gift

With the trend in interior furnishings turning back to Early American style, these easy-to-build shelves are gaining in popularity.

When used to display bric-a-brac, books or collectors items, they add color, charm, and beauty to any room. Easy and inexpensive to build, the shelves make an ideal gift.

Since most people decorate shelves with a wide variety of favored possessions, when presented as a gift, friends should be allowed to paint shelves to suit their own taste and decorating scheme.

Both wall and corner shelves can be made by following the pattern offered. To simplify construction, the full-size pattern is traced directly on hardboard or wood. Since two of these shelves are frequently used on either side of door or window, plan to make pairs. Be sure to keep pattern because almost everyone who sees them will want duplicates.

Send 50 cents in coin, check or money order for pattern No. 30 to Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 214, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y.

Hearth Built-Ins

Hearth wall is the perfect place to build in game storage, music equipment, and book shelving. Cabinets can be beautifully detailed and easily built with western woods like Douglas fir and ponderosa pine. Fir and pine take clear finishes, stain or paint beautifully.

Cut A Rug If You Want To Salvage One

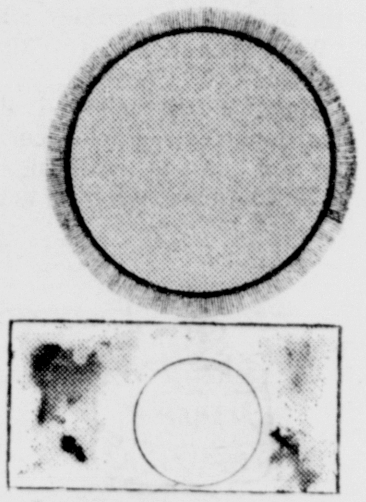
By JOE JONES

Don't throw away that hopelessly dirty, partly worn, old rug. Look at it again and you will find sections that can be salvaged. It's not too hard to do if you have a little time and patience. Your job will be particularly easy if the rug is the rubber-backed kind.

The round rug pictured here was cut from a large, old, badly stained and partly-worn, wall-to-wall living room rug. As you can see in the bottom sketch there was one good salvagable area, and this developed into a beautiful 10 foot diametered rug, excellent as a base for a round dining room table.

Here's how to do it. Describe a circle on the back of the rug, using a cord and crayon or marking pencil. The cord is the radius of the circle. Have someone hold one end of the cord firmly at the center of the circle as you walk around the perimeter with the crayon. Keep cord taut at all times.

Now that you have your circle inscribed you can start cutting. Cut from the back of the rug. Use a sharp single edged razor blade or heavy shears (get these at your hardware store). If you use shears, please wear a glove. Blisters, you know. Be very careful in cutting, as a circle looks much better when it is round.



Now dress the rug up with fringe. This has to be hand sewn and it is a time consuming chore, but in the end it is quite rewarding. Buy an upholsterer's needle and shoemaker's thread. Now sit down like an old tailor and start sewing. It may take you days, but it's worth it.

The Beautiful Ferns

The use of ferns enhances any landscape.

Ferns provide a woodsy background for city living and at the same time a finery which belies the ease with which they grow. Anything so elegant as a fern should really be much more trouble to care for than they are.

MOST FERNS are for shady places but one, at least, our native Woodwardia, does very nicely in sunny locations if it gets plenty of moisture, as it might, say, in a warm tropical setting. Though not a tropical, this tall growing variety should be planted for tropical effect whenever such effect is planned.

Another fern that seems to take some sun is the Mother Fern, a deciduous beauty with graceful long fronds.

The California Assn. of Nurserymen recommends shade planting for this one, but notes that it will take more or less sun, depending on how far from the coast it is grown. Mother Fern sends up new fronds early each spring, and the old, dead fronds from the previous year should be cut back in winter before growth starts.

A FAMILIAR fern, one that can be used to cover a shady embankment, is the Sword Fern, fast-growing, it will cover a lot of ground quickly when watered regularly.

There are two tree ferns which Californians can plant and enjoy throughout the state. The tallest is the Australian Tree Fern, a towering tropical of some 12 to 18 feet. The other is the New Zealand Tree Fern which grows to approximately eight feet with a crown of dark-green, lacy fronds.

There's also golden-green variety of this latter which nurserymen list as the Golden Tree Fern.

And if you're a pot gardener, there's Maidenhair, a lovely florist's type plant which you'll find in nursery greenhouses. There's none prettier.

✓Weed infested lawns may be hit this month with a selective weed killer. Be sure to keep the spray away from nearby shrubs.

✓Feed roses this month and you'll get more and better bloom from them during fall.

Carpet with a new lustre and luxury you don't have to baby in carpet by E T Barwick mills, inc.

Since when? Since

It's here now—carpet with a wondrous glow, lustre, and brilliance made possible only by a new kind of HERCULON olefin fiber. And all this extra beauty is in addition to the many practical reasons that make HERCULON one of today's most desirable carpet fibers. Long wear. Easy cleaning. Unsurpassed spot and stain resistance. Unexcelled colorfastness. More actual yarn per pound of fiber. But why read about it when you can see for yourself just how beautiful, practical, and economical it can be to own carpet with pile of 100% HERCULON. Let us show you today.

*Registered trademark of Hercules Incorporated, Wilmington, Delaware, for its olefin fiber.
